Wolfson Tells Probe Of Florida Election Gift

Explains Sum Put At 'Over $150,000' By Belief Warren Would Aid State

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

Miami, July 14.—Louis E. Wolfson testified today that the only thing he expected in return for his 1948 contribution "in excess of $150,000" to the campaign of Gov. Fuller Warren was that "he'd be an outstanding Governor and sell the State of Florida."

The 38-year-old Jacksonville businessman, who recently bought control of Washington's Capital Transit Co., spent a calm half hour on the witness stand of the Senate Crime Investigating Committee.

According to Warren's one-time campaign manager, C. V. Griffin, Wolfson, Griffin and William H. Johnston each contributed $154,000 to the Warren campaign. Johnston, president of four Florida dog tracks as well as of the club that runs Chicago's Sportsman's Park, is one of 10 subpenaed witnesses the Senate committee has been unable to find.

Wolfson said he didn't remember the exact amount of his gift. He had told a reporter of The Washington Post last Saturday that part was a loan. Wolfson said he was sure he was the biggest contributor to Warren's campaign.

Explaining why he made the contribution, Wolfson said he had known Warren for many years and that he thought it would be "a good investment" for any Florida businessman to contribute to the campaign of such an outstanding salesman for the State.

When asked about a Tampa newspaper story in which Wolfson was quoted as suggesting the possibilty of legalizing gambling in this State, Wolfson said he had talked to Warren about the gambling situation here.

"Something Should Be Done"

"I told him this publicity is hurting the State and something should be done about it."

But he didn't suggest legalized gambling to the Governor. He had only offered that idea to the reporter on the basis of, "if that will solve the situation, I'm for it."

Wolfson told something of his business interests other than in

Two Tribes Win $3-Million Award For Lands Seized

By the United Press

The Indian Claims Commission yesterday ruled the Federal Government owes the Choctaw and Chickasaw Indians $3,489,843.58 for land seized from the tribes in a "treaty" at the end of the Civil War.

It was the first time in history the commission has upheld such an Indian claim against the Government.

Unless the ruling is appealed, the award ends litigation that has been in progress for more than 20 years. Under its terms, the Choctaw nation receives $2,587,835.47, and the Chickasaws $902,008.11.

Police Say Five Youths Stole To Satisfy Craving for Dope

By Alfred E. Lewis
Post Reporter

Five District youths who police say have been stealing jewelry and hardware to buy heroin were arrested yesterday on the word of a restaurant proprietor whom police have charged with receiving the stolen goods.

The youths, ranging in age from 18 to 22, were arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence yesterday on grand larceny charges and held for grand jury action.

Also arraigned was Kenneth Hawkins, 25, of 818 Delafield pl. nw., who police say is the proprietor of a restaurant at 1106 7th st. nw. He was charged with receiving stolen property and put on $500 bond for grand jury action.

Described by police as the ringleader of the youthful gang, and charged with four cases of grand larceny, was James T. Porter, 19, of 2804 14th st. nw. He was held on $4000 bond.

Others listed as gang members and their addresses as given by police:—

Edward D. Monahan, 18, of 3120 Channing st. ne., three grand larceny charges, held in $3000 bond.

Herbert T. Freeman, 20, also of 3120 Channing st. ne., two grand larceny charges, $3000 bond.

Marshall F. Curatola, 22, of 52 New York ave. ne., one charge of grand larceny, $1500 bond.

Robert Garrison, 19, of 1315 Park rd. nw., one grand larceny charge, held on $1500 bond.

Police said Garrison is a student at McKinley Tech.

Det. Sergt. Edwin F. Talbot said all youths have admitted their part in the grand larcenies. He said

30 Republicans, 5 Democrats

10% Cut in Non-Military Funds Asked by Coalition in Senate

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

A coalition of 35 Senate Republicans and Democrats yesterday asked the Senate to shear a horizontal 10 percent from non-military funds in the 34.6-billion-dollar omnibus appropriation bill.

Thirty Republicans and five Democrats signed the amendment jointly offered by Senators Styles Bridges (R., N.H.) and Harry F. Byrd (D., Va.), leaders of the two-party "economy bloc."

The Defense Department and many other specified agencies, including the Postoffice Department, would be spared the slash. But Marshall Plans funds would be hit.

In fact, Senator Carl Hayden (D., Ariz.), who refused to sign the amendment, told reporters ECA appropriations would be cut 20 percent under the President's budget, since the Appropriations Committee already has applied a ten percent slash.

Among other agencies that would be cut 20 percent below the budget, due to prior committee pruning, would be the State, Justice and Commerce Departments. The Interior Department would take an 18 percent trimming, Hayden noted.

The amendment completely exempted, not only the military, but the atomic energy program, the mutual defense program, stockpiling the White House, the Legislative and Judicial branches, hospital and medical services, veterans' care, law enforcement agencies such as the FBI and Secret Serv-

Auto Dealers 'Rolled' for $5000 at Dice

Five Men Booked On Disorderly Counts After 'Friendly' Outing Game

Late stayers at a Washington auto dealers' outing at the Manor Club in Norbeck, Md., lost $5000 in a "friendly" dice game early yesterday before they suspected they were bucking "loaded" dice.

Montgomery County police said approximately 50 of the 400 persons who attended the Washington Automotive Trade Association outing remained on into the early morning, playing cards and shooting dice.

When one disgruntled loser picked up the dice in the crap game and decided they were crooked, came the dawning. Suspicion focused on one group of players who took to their heels and fled from the club. Irate auto men formed a posse and captured three of them.

The auto dealers were in a mood to string their captives to the nearest tree. Their tempers were not improved by the fact that the man who carried the booty—$5000—had made a clean getaway, police reported.

The suspects welcomed the arrival of county police.

One of the men, police reported, had been stripped of his trousers, and all three protested that the angry auto dealers had relieved them of the cash in their pockets.

Police took up the search for the others and added to the haul two hours later. They were assembled at the police station in Rockville, but the auto dealers declined to press charges of crooked gambling against them.

Police said they found a bag filled with crooked dice and decks of cards in the car of one of the suspected players.

An official of the automotive association said he did not know of any gambling at the outing.

So the "crooked gamblers," if

Doris Duke Seeks Farm Permit for 2500 Sanitary Pigs

Somerville, N. J., July 14 (NYHT).—Miss Doris Duke, the tobacco heiress, is seeking permission from the township of Hillsborough, 7 miles south of here, to construct a $50,000 model farm on her property for the raising of 2500 pigs.

A. F. Sommers, manager of Miss Duke's 2000-acre property, said the model pig establishment "will be the most sanitary thing you ever laid eyes on."

The plans call for all-concrete buildings, daily flushing of the pens with 7000 gallons of water, a ventilating system that will change the air at the rate of 3000 cubic feet a minute and individual atomizers built into each pen to keep the pigs "clean, cool and flyless."

Narrowly Escapes Death

Baby Girl Falls Three Floors, Lands in Lap of Neighbor

A 14-month-old girl narrowly missed death yesterday afternoon, when she fell from a third-floor window but landed in the lap of a man sitting on the pavement below.

The child is Wendy C. Crenshaw, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Crenshaw of 411 I st. ne.

She was taken to Casualty Hospital where the results of X-rays were awaited to determine if she suffered internal injuries and a fractured skull.

Wendy's mother remained beside the child's bed at the hospital.

Sitting below in a lawn chair on the pavement was a new tenant of the I street address, identified only as a Mr. Matthews. The child landed partly in his lap, breaking the force of the fall. She was injured apparently, however, when part of her body struck the metal arms of the chair.

The child's mother said the girl and her 2½-year-old brother, Carl, jr., were each trying to get the front spot in a window of the Crenshaw's third floor apartment so they could see their dad come home from work.

Mrs. Crenshaw said she had warned them to stay out of the window and had turned her back only momentarily, when she heard both screm. She whirled around in time to catch Carl by the leg, but the screen had already given way and Wendy had fallen, she said.

Total of Request Awaits Return Today of Collins And Vandenberg

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Additional defense appropriations to expand the armed forces and fight the Korean war will run at least two billion dollars and perhaps much more, it was disclosed yesterday.

Estimates of the cost of the mobilization now tentatively planned were placed as high as eight billions on Capitol Hill, but Pentagon officials insisted that the balance sheet is still in the formative stage.

However, it was clear from totals being talked about that the degree of mobilization of men and materials in view is substantial.

Virginians Use Larger Figures

Virginia's two Senators said the additional funds will run high—six to eight billions. During debate on the one-package 1951 appropriations bill, Senator A. Willis Robertson said he understands that six billion dollars will be asked. Later, Senator Harry F. Byrd said he believed it might run as high as eight billion dollars.

The ranking Republican member of the Senate Appropriations Committee, Senator Styles Bridges (N.H.) said the exact figure is not known but that it may be around two billion dollars. Chairman Elmer Thomas (D., Okla.) of the group has said he was informed it will be "a billion or more."

At the Pentagon, well-informed sources declared that even a round total will not be known until Gens. J. Lawton Collins and Hoyt S. Vandenberg, Army and Air Force chiefs of staff, return from their trip to the Far East and "some firm decisions are made."

The two members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff are on their way home and are expected to arrive here this morning.

Thomas' Figure Too Low

These Pentagon sources, however, indicated that for the tentative expansion now in view, Thomas' figure was too low, but that the Robertson-Byrd estimates seemed too high.

Senator Lyndon Johnson (D., Tex.) said he had been assured by top Administration officials that some National Guard units and Reservists will be ordered into active service very soon. He declared he understood that a total National Guard mobilization is not in view and that Reserves will be called as needed and not en masse.

This bore out what military men have been predicting. How many Guard divisions are tentatively slated for call is not known; but informed estimates are that it will be at least two and perhaps six.

Any such Guard mobilization would certainly require another draft call of substantially greater size than the 20,000-man first call. For the Guard divisions now total only about 9000 officers and men—half of their war strength—and would have to be expanded.

Defense officials, it is understood, are convinced that it is unsafe to deplete the Nation's "mobile reserve" in this country. It now consists of five Regular Army divisions, but military chiefs always

Bulgar Killed In Yugoslav Border Clash

4 Armed Provocations Charged by Belgrade; Cessation Is Demanded

Belgrade, July 14 (U.P.).—Yugoslavia tonight charged that Bulgaria sent small army units and individual troops across the border at four points yesterday and that they fired on Yugoslav border guards.

The charge was made in a formal note delivered to the Bulgarian legation here in the midst of a mounting war of nerves between Yugoslavia and her Cominform neighbors—Bulgaria, Hungary and Romania.

The note advised Bulgaria that one Bulgarian soldier was shot and killed by a Yugoslav guard when he tried to throw a hand grenade.

'4 Provocations' Cited

The Yugoslav note said Bulgarian border troops staged "four armed provocations" and demanded "urgent measures be taken by the Bulgarian government to prevent the repetition of such armed provocations."

Bulgaria "deliberately infiltrated small units and individuals of its army into Yugoslavia with the purpose of capturing border guards and bringing them back to Bulgaria," the note said.

It said the first incident took place near the frontier village of Lokve. One Bulgarian crossed the border and was stopped by the Yugoslav guard. When the Yugoslavs called on the man to surrender his arms, 15 other Bulgarians fired on the Yugoslav guard.

The note said the Bulgarians

U. N. Appeals to 52 Nations For Troops to Stop Korea Reds

Lake Success, July 14 (AP).—The United Nations today appealed to 52-member countries to rush effective aid, particularly ground fighting forces, to a U. N. army trying to stop the North Korean Communist invaders.

Secretary General Trygve Lie announced the step at a somber news conference, his first since the outbreak of the hostilities that he again called a "well-prepared, well-planned aggression" against the Republic of South Korea.

Lie said telegrams were sent to every Nation that supported the Security Council action authorizing a collective army to throw the North Koreans back of the thirty-eighth parallel. The aid provided, he said, "should be effective forces, not token forces."

The action was decided, he said, at an informal meeting he called last Monday, attended by representatives of the United States delegation, Security Council President Arne Sunde of Norway and himself and his executive assistant, Andrew Cordier.

The Soviet bloc and Yugoslavia, which opposed armed resistance to the North Korean Communists, were not included in the newest bid for help to the retreating forces under the command of Gen.

Price of Bread Raised a Cent By One Bakery

The Charles Schneider Baking Co., one of Washington's largest bread makers, yesterday announced a one-cent rise in the price of loaves, effective Monday.

A company spokesman said that the step had to be taken because of "increased costs in operation".

Other bakers here are expected to add a penny to the price of their loaves, in line with a Nation-wide trend. Several Philadelphia and Cleveland bakers announced one-cent price increases yesterday.

Schneider's one-pound white loaves have been selling at 12 cents wholesale, 14 cents retail. The new wholesale price will be 13 cents; the grocers' price, 15 cents. Other types of bread will also increase in price by one penny.

Dock Workers Refuse to Load Aussie Arms

Canberra, Australia, July 14 (U.P.).—Members of the Communist-dominated Waterside Workers Federation today refused to load arms at Sydney for Australian fliers fighting in Korea, and the government threatened immediate prosecution.

Officials of the federation—one of Australia's most powerful unions—hurried to the docks as the group joined the powerful seamen's union in boycotting war shipments to Korea. Treason charges are being prepared against some seaman union executives, it was reported.

Supply Minister H. Ward Beale said the cargo to have been loaded aboard the steamer Changte included airplane engines and other supplies urgently needed in Japan. He promised "despite the watersiders' action, they will go through."

Shipping circles believed he meant troops would be used to handle the cargo.

Authoritative sources said government prosecuton would be carried out under Section 24D of the Australian crimes act, which deals with seditious language.

The seamen's union announced unexpectedly it would review its boycott decision before a full meeting of its membership after 200 right-wing members complained that the decision never should have been taken without consulting the full membership.

Meetings of Australian seamen were called in all ports Tuesday to discuss the union's boycott, and Sydney seamen said they would try to depose their Communist federal secretary, E. V. Elliott.

Evangelist Graham Prays With Truman at White House

By Don Olesen
Post Reporter

A nattily-dressed young man strode into 1600 Pensylvania ave. nw. yesterday and prayed with President Harry Truman.

The visitor was North Carolina's Billy Graham, famed as a crowd-catching evangelist and often known as "God's ball-of-fire."

When Graham left the President's study 30 minutes later, he leaned his rangy, six-foot-two frame against a table and gave reporters this account of the visit:

The President had been "very gracious, very humble and very sweet."

Graham told him the country is being gripped by "a fear you could almost call hysteria," and urged the President "to get to a microphone and encourage the people at this hour."

And the evangelist "suggested that Mr. Truman call a national day of prayer and humiliation for all faiths in this country. I told him we couldn't come through this crisis unless we turned to God."

Then, while the President bowed his head, Graham said a prayer aloud. It went like this:

"Our father, we thank thee for the privilege of being here today and we pray for thy blessing on this man on whose shoulders rests perhaps the most important responsibility in the world.

"We pray that thou wouldst give him wisdom, strength, and courage for these critical days. Bless this Nation at this hour and if it be thy will, give victory to our armed forces, Amen."

Graham quoted the President as saying he believes the answer to today's problems lies in the fifth, sixth and seventh chapters of St. Matthews—the Sermon on the Mount—including the line . . . "Blessed are the peacemakers . . ."

Graham, dapper in a light green suit, rust-colored tie with socks to match, white shirt and immaculate white suede shoes, reported that Truman "already is working on a day of prayer," and is "giving serious thought" to the radio broadcast.

After his visit, Evangelist Graham relaxed in an easy chair in his Mayflower Hotel room and told a reporter something about himself.

Graham is 31, lives in Montreat, N. C., and has the penetrating

Taft Against Proposal

Prices Rise as Officials Debate Issue of Imposing Controls

By The Associated Press

A sharp, war-spawned rise in the wholesale prices of many things people eat, wear or use was confirmed by the Government yesterday.

President Truman discussed the question of possible home-front mobilization with his Cabinet at a morning meeting.

It was apparent, however, that the Administration had not reached a decision on whether to ask Congress for any controls on the price or distribution of goods.

Senator Taft of Ohio, the Republican leader, said he would oppose giving the President any "blank check or standby authority" to put controls into operation. Taft said he thinks Congress ought to stay on the job and adopt any legislation that becomes necessary in the light of events.

The Cabinet members declined to get specific about their conference with Mr. Truman other than to say that no decisions were reached.

The President said at his news conference Thursday that every phase of possible industrial mobilization is being considered, and that the needed steps would be taken at the proper time. On the other hand, he indicated that he has no immediate intention of asking for emergency authority to

American Pilots Blast Bridgehead; Enemy Attempts Enveloping Move

Tokyo, Saturday, July 15 (AP). — North Korean troops today knifed across the Kum River, drove the United States defenders back, and simultaneously launched an encirclement push on the east flank.

Front dispatches said the eastward attack was opened against South Korean troops who hold the line just east of the American sector. It was in such force that the South Koreans called for U. S. artillery support.

Beachhead Gained

The Northerners are trying to throw tanks across the stream.

They were putting the pressure on the American lines at a point about 20 miles northwest of Taejon. There they planted a beachhead after pushing the Americans backward.

At the same time, they were pounding the South Korean line to the east at a point where a breakthrough might well cut in behind the American front position.

A front dispatch did not make clear whether the Reds had crossed the Kum on the South Korean front or whether the fighting was on the north bank.

Pressure Lets Up

The dispatch said the pressure on the American front was slowed this morning. The Americans were fighting a delaying action against the Reds pushing through the hills toward Taejon.

The bridgehead seemed to be extensive. United States jet and Mustang fighters blasted at the bridgehead. Four red tanks being ferried across the shallows of the Kum were reported knocked out.

Philip Deane, 27, correspondent for the London Observer, suffered a minor shrapnel wound in the left shoulder Friday night. He returned to a command post with the report "those American boys were magnificent."

Field reports said a guerilla attack on the western sector Friday night overran an American artillery unit. The Americans had to abandon their guns after blowing the breeches with grenades.

The river crossing against the Americans, the second on this vital sector, was made after a night of artillery duels and smallarms fire.

An earlier Communist force, apparently about 100 strong, crossed last night. It infiltrated American positions. Some of the Reds wore the green fatigue of the United States Army. Apparently the uniforms had been taken from captured troops.

The American defenders likewise were harassed by guerillas

McKellar's Head Cut as He Falls In Senate Room

Senator Kenneth McKellar (D., Tenn.), 81-year-old dean of the Senate, suffered a cut forehead yesterday when he stumbled and fell in a Senate committee room.

The Senator, who has had a leg condition for some time, broke his glasses, which cut his forehead in the fall. After first-aid treatment, he resumed his usual, active duties, friends said.

Several weeks ago he stumbled and fell in a Capitol corridor when his leg gave way under him.

Europe Backs Yanks To Beat Korea Odds

Notes to Moscow

Russia Lied On POWs, Big 3 Charge

The three western powers powers charged in substance yesterday that Russia lied in saying she had freed all German war prisoners. They challenged Moscow to permit an on-the-scene investigation of its treatment of World War II captives.

The United States, Britain and France renewed their prodding on the issue in separate but similar notes which had the effect of a counter blow against Communist propaganda in the Korean crisis.

The United States told Russia bluntly that this Government is "unable to give credence" to a Soviet announcement that all the millions of Germans the Red Army captured have now been sent home except for 13,546 still held as war criminals, or for investigation or medical treatment.

Moscow made the announcement May 5 and the United States said the resultant "shock and concern" in Germany was shared in this country. The Communist press has contended that Russia never held as many prisoners as the Western Allies claim and accused the West of trying to make propaganda capital out of the dispute.

The Soviet figures, the American note said, are "completely at variance" with U. S. information. Officials said there is no way of knowing accurately but the State Department believes 300,000 or more Germans remain to be accounted for.

The Big Four conquerors of Germany agreed at Moscow in April. 1947, to send home all their remaining prisoners by the end of the following year. The U. S. did so by mid-1947. Britain and France have announced they complied with the agreement. Russia acknowledged delays but said the captives would be returned home by the end of 1949.

The United States, in a note made public by the State Department, charged Russia has "demonstrated complete disregard for the fundamental human rights" of the men and their families, and proposed that Moscow:

1. Name and state the present whereabouts of the 9717 persons alleged to have been convicted of grave war crimes, the 3815 said to be under investigation and 14 being treated for illness.

2. In accordance with the 1929 Geneva convention, to which Russia is a party, provide full information on the prisoners and civilian internees who have died in captivity.

3. Permit an impartial international group to investigate the "actual fate" of the prisoners.

London, July 14 (AP).—From Scandinavia to the Mediterranean non-Communist western Europeans reacted with the same phrase today to American setbacks in Korea. It was "Give them time."

Outside those circles obedient to Moscow, the feeling among both press and public was that, despite heavy odds, the American GIs would pull out of the hole.

There were, however, some doubts and some criticisms.

In Norway and Finland, both neighbors of Russia, the man in the street wondered out loud whether the needed reinforcements of men and materiel would be too little and too late. Some Finns found the state of United States preparedness in the Pacific a chilling eye-opener. They were impressed with the apparent military ability of the North Koreans.

Odds Are Underscored

Everywhere, in conversation and in the press, the fact most underscored was the enormity of the odds against which the Americans were fighting.

Almost the only sharp non-Communist criticism of America's Korean effort came from Rome's moderate, pro-government Il Momento.

"The fact alone that America has to half mobilize to oppose a semi-barbarian state, a country that is the last (least powerful) of the Soviet satellites, will mean for America a loss of prestige which a late and painfully secured victory will not be able to regain," it wrote.

During the past five years, Il Momento went on, while President Truman and his various Secretaries of State were "deafening the world with speeches and statements overflowing with boastfulness," Russia was building tanks.

"And today," it added, "even the memory of those speeches has vanished while those armored cars are conquering Korea and are about to hurl the Americans into the sea."

Il Tempo View Differs

Il Momento's conservative competitor, Il Tempo, which also supports the Christian Democrat government, took another view:

"Don't be impatient," it said. "The Communists have enjoyed all the advantages of aggression, including surprise and even using 60-ton Soviet tanks. In the end we shall see MacArthur's army coming back."

The non-Communist press in France, while sympathizing with the Americans, has made little comment. The conservative Le Monde saw in the battle the question of the prestige of two flags—the American and that of the United Nations.

The London Daily Express warned that the news from Korea might continue bad for another 90 days, but predicted eventual victory.

"Korea is no Dunkerque," it declared. "It is a pitched battle between a handful of ill-equipped American troops, some of them battle-green, and a well-trained, numerically superior aggressor."

The whole free world, it added, will benefit from America's "new, grim alertness."

'This Is Our Fight Too'

Another leading London newspaper, the liberal News Chronicle, warned "This is our fight too." Noting that the Americans had made mistakes, the paper said:

"We strengthen our cause by facing up to such errors, but not by jeering at our friends who make them.

"We have no doubt of their ultimate success. For their initial setbacks we should have nothing but sympathy."

West German editorials emphasized that the Americans were outnumbered and outgunned.

Said the Brunswick Zeitung:

"It would be premature to interpret the early tactical losses as a true indication of the power of the free peoples which will be demonstrated in coming days and weeks."

The Wiesbaden Kureir saw American action in Korea as a defense of Germany and said:

"Their defeat would also be our defeat."

Both press and public in the Netherlands took a wait-and-see attitude.

Board to Consider Clemency for Germans

Frankfurt, Germany, July 14 (AP). An American board has begun consideration of whether to grant clemency to 90 German war criminals convicted at Nurnberg, it was announced today.

The new clemency board also is empowered to decide the fate of 16 who were sentenced to death. The death sentences had been stayed in 1949, but the stay was recently lifted.

Chairman of the board is David W. Peck, presiding judge of the Appellate Division, First Department, New York Supreme Court. With Peck are Frederick Moran, of Albany, N. Y., chairman of the New York State Parole Board, and Brig. Gen. Conrad E. Snow, of Washington, D. C., member of the staff of the legal administration in the U. S. State Department.

Most Decorated GI Audie Murphy Joins Natl. Guard

Austin, Tex., July 14 (AP).—Audie Murphy, who won more decorations in World War II than any other GI, today joined the Texas National Guard.

He was sworn in as a captain and assigned to the 141st infantry. Right, now, it is part time military service.

Murphy will train with his unit at Fort Hood next month.

"I think World War III has already started and I want to get all the training I can," Murphy said.

Murphy, a Farmersville, Tex., boy, joined the Army at 18 in World War I. He served with the Third Division and won the Medal of Honor and numerous other decorations.

Mustangs and B-29s Rushed From Storage

San Antonio, July 14 (AP).—Kelly Air Force Base gave top priority today to uncrating and readying F-51 fighter planes. The Mustangs are being taken from storage and overhauled at the base and at plants of private contractors.

The public information officer at the big base said a large number of B-29 medium bombers also are being made ready for combat.

Increased Funds Predicted To Boost 'Campaign of Truth'

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Administration leaders yesterday were confident that Congress would grant an increased appropriation for President Truman's new "campaign of truth" program to counter Communist propaganda.

But they were far from sure that the full 89 million dollar program would go through untrimmed.

The House Appropriations Committee, which yesterday received the printed text of the supplemental appropriation sought, has not yet scheduled hearings on it.

Subcommittee Chairman John C. Rooney (D., N. Y.) has already expressed his interest in the request and his intention to hold early hearings.

The 89 million dollars would be in addition to an appropriation of $32,700,000 already made for the "Voice" in the over-all appropriations bill carrying funds for most Government agencies for the year ending next June 30.

State Department plans call for concentrating the Voice broadcasts on 28 "critical" countries in Europe and Asia, with Russia and the Soviet bloc states at the top of the list.

For more than a year Moscow has been using scores of transmitting stations to blanket out American and British news broadcasts beamed at the Soviet Union. Despite Western counter-measures, some U. S. officials figure the Russian effort is probably 75 percent successful.

who were attacking in the rear of this vital line.

The Chinese Communist radio said guerillas also were attacking in the Sangju and Uisong areas, 40 and 70 miles respectively east of Taejon. This is the sector where the northerners are threatening United States supply lines to the southeast port of Pusan.

American morale was high, reported William R. Moore, an AP correspondent at the front. He said there was a general air of confidence, tempered with cautious alertness.

"This is a good line. This is where we stop them," Moore quoted an unidentified officer as saying.

Another front-line officer in effect confirmed this, telling Correspondent Erickson, "our orders are to hold at any cost."

The field headquarters spokesman estimated that two or three North Korean divisions had been massed on the north bank of the river. These did not include their crack First Division, however.

The North Korean First Division had taken such a mauling in the American delaying action, a communique said, that it had been replaced by the Sixth Communist Division. The Sixth had aided the Chinese Communist conquest of Manchuria.

The First Division spearheaded the Red drive launched nearly three weeks ago from the 38th parallel dividing North and South Korea.

Skillful Holding Operation

The Red attack on the Kum line came a bare two days after fighting Americans, carrying on a heroic delaying action, had dug in on the south bank of the river. For 45 miles the greatly outnumbered GI's had doggedly retreated, taking a heavy toll as they gave ground.

General MacArthur called the operation "one of the most skillful and heroic holding and rear guard actions in history." It had saved South Korea from being overrun, the United Nations commander declared, and given time for the rapid forward movement of reinforcements.

Red artillery hammered the American front Friday night to cover the river crossing. American batteries answered furiously and an intensive duel of big guns ensued.

During this activity the guerillas struck in the rear, apparently in a well-planned effort to support the river crossing by menacing the American artillery. They had been infiltrating for several days, the field headquarters spokesman said.

The small crossing was reported to have been made at a point where the Reds could wade the stream. They used flat-bottomed boats also, presumably to carry their equipment.

of the North Korean Second Di-

A communique said elements vision crossed the Pogang river, a northern tributary of the Kum, and penetrated the South Korean forces near Chongju. This is about 28 miles northeast of Kongju and is near the American right flank.

The Red Fifteenth Division, 40 miles farther east, was credited with seizing Yonpong, about 15 miles southeast of Chungju on the road to Hamyang.

It was announced that Lieut. Gen. Walton H. Walker, commanding the 8th Army, had established headquarters in a South Korean city and taken command of the American field forces. His appointment indicated the American force in Korea now exceeds a division.

The former advance U. S. headquarters at Taejon will revert to a field headquarters. This indicated withdrawal also of the Korean government to the South Korean city in which General Walker had established his headquarters. Such a withdrawal had been planned ever since the Reds captured Seoul, South Korean capital, and headed southward.

Apparently there was a lull in the air war following Thursday's mass strike by B-29s on Wonsan, seaport on the east coast of Korea. The attack was made in thick weather, using radar to locate targets.

fired 100 shots but that the Yugoslav guard did not return their fire.

3 Other Incidents

The three other incidents occurred near the village of Klisura and were similar to the first, the note said. It added that "the Yugoslav Foreign Ministry most energetically protests against these provocations."

The official Yugoslav Communist organ Borda charged earlier this week that Bulgarian troops in battle kit were marching toward the joint frontier.

Bulgaria issued a denial yesterday through the Communist press Yugoslavia was plotting with Greece and Turkey to provoke incidents along the Bulgarian frontiers.

(An official announcement in Budapest said Hungary closed a 10-mile strip of land along her border with Yugoslavia today and that special permits would be necessary to enter the closed region except at the two main towns of Szeged and Nagykanicsa.

(The action came two days after Yugoslavia banned travel to its border regions without special permit.)

114 U. S. Prisoners Held in Capital Camp, Reds Say

Tokyo (Saturday), July 15 (AP).—The Communist North Korean radio says 114 American prisoners of war are in a camp at Pyongyang, capital of North Korea.

The broadcast was heard here about midnight last night.

The Peiping Communist radio, also heard here, quoted a Pyongyang dispatch saying that Cho So Ang, former Socialist Party leader in South Korea, had gone over to the North Korea regime.

Cho was elected a national assemblyman in the May 30 elections in South Korea. A Pyongyang radio broadcast last Wednesday said Cho arrived in the North Korean capital shortly after the Communists occupied Eeoul, capital of South Korea.

The Peiping radio quoted Cho as saying he would lead all Socialists against "the Rhee gang and the American imperialist invaders."

His reference was to Syngman Rhee, president of the South Korea Republic.

Iran Expects $10-15 Million Arms Aid Soon

Tehran, Iran, July 14 (AP).—Premier Ali Razmara today said new United States military aid is coming to Iran, on Russia's south flank, which will completely equip Iran's army for defensive mountain fighting. He said the equipment is due to begin arriving in a month.

The Premier said the equipment, including infantry arms, light mountain artillery and other material, would be worth an estimated 10 to 15 million dollars.

The shipments will be part of the general United States military aid program. Razmara said it had been provided for in an agreement signed last March during the visit of United States Army Chief of Staff Gen. J. Lawton Collins.

Razmara, who was chief of staff of Iran's 150-man army before he became Premier last month, said the threat of Russian invasion of Iran and other countries bordering the Soviet Union is "a reality."

He said Iran is determined to defend itself against attack, but would not attempt to hold its present frontier line if its mighty neighbor tried to cross. Iran's army, he said, would retire to scattered, but prepared, positions in the rugged mountains. He added, however, that Iran wants the "best relations with all our neighbors."

Recent stepped-up attacks by the Russian radio and by Iran's outlowed Communist Party have pointed up the threat to this strategic land, which could provide the Russians with a southern outlet to the sea. Razmara noted also that the Soviets covet the vast oil resources that lie between Baku and the Persian Gulf.

Razmara made a plea for immediate American economic aid, which he said is "urgently needed within one month," to finance his government's economic rehabilitation program.

The cost of the program, he said, would run to more than 100 million dollars a year. It envisages giving jobs to one million workers who will be unemployed when the harvest season is ended.

He said the economic aid was needed if Iran is to maintain its army.

Preparedness Program Stepped Up by Thailand

Bangkok, Thailand, July 14 (AP). This tiny kingdom has stepped up its program of preparedness against Communist aggression both in the military and propaganda fields.

Army units have been ordered to conduct special drills and maneuvers. The army last week revealed that a new division has been organized in the northern provinces, which are perilously close to Communist China and where Burmese and Indo-China Reds threaten to infiltrate.

On the propaganda front, an official "Allied Freedom League" was organized last week. It is made up of newspaper editors and foreign nformation service representatives.

The group plans to publish information combatting Communist propaganda that has been pouring into the country.

20,000 Chinese Reds Reported in Tibet

Hongkong, July 14 (AP).—Independent newspaper reports today said that more than 20,000 Chinese Red troops entered strategic Tibet early this month.

There was no confirmation, but observers agree such a move is logical.

The Chinese Communists had announced ther intention of bringing Tibet, mountain country north of Inda, under Red control.

So. Korea Wanted To Attack; Kept On Defense Basis

Los Angeles, July 14 (AP).—The South Korean government was not given heavy military equipment before the war broke out chiefly because it had a strong desire to attack North Korea, Brig. Gen. William L. Roberts said today.

The head of the U. S. military mission in Korea for 26 months told a news conference that the South Koreans "believed the best defense was to attack."

"This placed us in a 'skittish' position," the officer explained. "To prevent the South Koreans from attacking, we gave them no combat air force, no tanks, and no heavy artillery."

General Roberts said the South Korean soldier is "fine and brave" and that the weakness lies with the officer group.

(In Washington, Korean Ambassador ohn Myun Chang said that President Syngman Rhee pledged on his "sacred honor" that South Korea never contemplated an attack on North Korea.)

52 Nations Asked for Troops

Douglas MacArthur. The invitation did not go, of course, to the United States, which has furnished the bulk of the U. N. resistance.

A special request was made to the Nationalist Chinese government in Formosa, whose previous offer of land troops has been turned down by the unified United States-U. N. command. It advised the Chinese Nationalists that if they want to offer troops again they may do so, but that their offer would be considered only for bilateral discussion—with MacArthur—on what specific, detailed use might be made of them.

Rejection of the original Chinese offer was on the basis of keeping the Korean war localized. The argument was that if the Chinese Nationalists put ground forces into Korea, Chinese Communist forces woul dfind it an excuse to flood into Korea to help the North Korean Communists.

Lie refused to comment on whether a "no-surrender" policy should be a condition to restore peace in Korea. He would not comment on whether he favored use of the atom bomb. "There has been too much partisan propaganda on the issue," he said.

To statements that it may take three to six months to end the Korean conflict, he answered: "I am not a military expert. I can only express the hope that it won't take that long."

A reporter asked what kind of a governmnet should be established in Korea; should it be the South Korean republic?

"It should be a government established after free elections, like the kind we know in my part of the world," Lie answered. "The North Koreans refused to take part in the election before."

Quick replies from both sides in the fighting heartened him that there would be a curb on atrocities, Lie said. Now he hoped that international Red Cross observers would be permitted in the North to see that the pledge was carried out.

Joseph Clark, a Daily Worker reporter, asked "why wasn't the appeal sent to General MacArthur, rather than the South Koreans?"

Lie answered that General MacArthur knew about it even before the appeal was sent.

"Anyway, don't you know that the American Army always observes the Geneva (anti-atrocity) conventions?" Lie added.

Lie said he has no official information on moves of India's Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru to mediate the Korean conflict.

1000 Colombians Offer To Enlist for Korea

Pact Deputies Meeting Called For July 25

The first meeting of the new North Atlantic Council of Deputies will open July 25 in London, with the fighting in Korea likely to figure in the talks.

The State Department, announcing yesterday that Secretary of State Acheson has set the date, said the meeting is expected to be largely for purposes of organization.

However, the state of European defense has taken on a new urgency because of the world tension arising from the Korean crisis.

Hence the deputies group—created at the recent foreign ministers meeting in London to give continuity to the North Atlantic treaty organization—seemed certain to try to get down to actual work swiftly.

A major question is whether this country's limited arms production will be able to supply enough weapons to meet pressing needs in Korean and a the same time carry out the rearming of Western Europe.

The United States will be represented at the London meeting by Charles M. Spofford, who was confirmed Thursday by the Senate as Deputy U. S. Representative on the North Atlantic Council. He is expected to be accompanied by William Galloway, and possibly other State Department officials concerned with European affairs.

Spofford has been consulting for the past two weeks with Acheson and other officials of the State and Defense Departments working on the American arms aid program.

Reporters were told that at the London meeting Spofford will try to determine what staff and other facilities are needed once the council is organized on a permanent basis.

Acheson issued his call for the meeting as chairman of the full North Atlantic Council. Press officer Lincoln White said there is no plan for Acheson himself to attend the deputies' meeting.

U. S. Offers Terms To End Korean War

By Ferdinand Kuhn
Post Reporter

The United States laid down yesterday what a State Department spokesman called its "rock-bottom" terms for ending the Korean war.

The terms were for the Communist invaders to stop fighting and get back to their own territory in North Korea. These, said Press Officer Lincoln White, were "the minimum and irreducible conditions for a solution of the present Korean crisis."

His statement made it clear that the United States would not consider a "deal" with Russia or anyone else for a settlement that would fall short of the Security Council resolution of June 25.

On that occasion, the Security Council, by a unanimous vote, called for (1) a cease-fire, (2) a withdrawal of the North Koreans to the 38th parallel, and (3) the restoration of peace and security in the area.

In the light of Thursday's appeal from Prime Minister Nehru of India to Secretary Acheson, and another to Premier Stalin, a reporter asked White whether the United States would consider dealing directly with the Soviet Union.

U. N. the Proper Forum

"Secretary Acheson and other officials have said many times," he answered, "that the United States will have no part of bilateral negotiations with Russia which are of vital concern to other governments. The United Nations is the proper forum for negotiations on Korea."

Although the text of Nehru's note was not published, American and Indian informants said it did not contain any proposal for a "deal."

Nehru's note to Acheson simply expressed his deep anxiety over the Korean fighting, his fear that it might spread into another world war, and his belief that all countries must do their utmost to "localize" it.

In spite of reports to the contrary, Nehru did not offer to "mediate" the Korean war. He did say in a press conference at New Delhi on July 7 that India can offer her good offices for mediation only if requested to do so by the parties concerned."

India A Party Concerned

But the "parties concerned" have not requested it, and in the meantime India herself is one of the "parties concerned" in view of her support of the Security Council resolutions of June 25 and June 27.

Nehru's ambassadors in all the major capitals, including Moscow and Peking, have been busy trying to promote restraint on all sides, and presumably will continue their efforts.

But the feeling here yesterday was that nothing would come of it as long as Communist troops were advancing so successfully in Korea. In these circumstances the Soviet Government probably would not agree to any appeal, from Nehru or anyone else, even if it wanted to prevent the Korean war from spreading.

The talk of a "deal" springs from Nehru's persistent belief that Communist China must be seated quickly in the United Nations, so as to end the Soviet boycott of U. N. bodies. The Indian leader said on July 7 that the admission of Communist China and the return of the Soviet Union were "necessary conditions . . . to bring the Korean conflict to a prompt and peaceful conclusion."

U. N. Position on China

At the State Department yesterday White reaffirmed the long-standing American position on Communist membership in the U. N. He said the United States opposed seating the Chinese Communists, but would not use it veto to prevent a majority of the Security Council from doing so.

Two more votes are needed in the Security Council to provide a majority; they will have to come from France, Egypt or Ecuador, the only three members which have not yet taken a firm stand one way or the other.

The way is open, as far as the United States is concerned, for India and the other nations favoring Communist China's membership to try to round up the necessary majority.

But American officials made it plain yesterday that they did not want any part of a "deal" to bring Communist China in until the North Korean Communists had obeyed the U. N. orders and gone back to their own territory.

Hospital Closings Sent 500 Medics to Front

Secretary of Defense Johnson said yesterday the closing of five military hospitals last spring made available 500 medical officers who were sent to the Far East when the Korean war started.

For Physicals

Call to Go To 210 1-As On Monday

Monday morning's mail will bring notices to 210 Washington 1-As to report for pre-induction physical examinations.

The first group of 70 will report to the Army Recruiting Station, 403 Tenth st. nw., on July 24. The second group of 70 on July 26; the third group of 70 on July 28.

The draftees will be greeted at the recruiting station by a representative of the District Selective Service, turned over to Army officers, and transported by bus to a nearby Army installation for the physical examination.

Altogether, the District must produce 101 men fit for Army service as its quota under the recent Army call for 20,000 selectees.

In nearby Maryland, similar notices have been sent out by the draft boards in Hyattsville and LaPlata.

Prices Rising; Control Issue

put in price or wage controls, allocate scarce materials or order the conversion of industry to war production.

He said there is no shortage of food in sight, no excuse for hoarding, no prospect of rationing.

Housewives got nothing but bad news in the Bureau of Labor Statistics weekly report on wholesale commodity prices. Virtually everything was headed upward, with retail prices trailing the wholesale boosts by a few days.

BLS said prices went up on the average 1.8 per cent in the seven days ending last Tuesday. The wholesale index stood at 161.8, which means 61.8 per cent higher than the 1926 average. A year ago it was 154. The peak was 170.3 in August, 1948.

Corn, hogs, cotton and cocoa beans set new post-1948 highs.

Majority Leader Lucas (D., Ill.), told the Senate that President Truman at the proper time will make a full report to Congress and the Nation on the Korean crisis.

"The only question is one of timing," he said.

Lucas hit hard at suggestions by Senators Wherry (R., Nebr.) and Hickenlooper (R., Iowa) that Congress should get a full accounting of where all the 50 billion dollars of defense funds, voted since 1947, has gone.

Hickenlooper said he raised the question because all reports, both press and from officials, indicated the United States was unable to place an adequate force in Korea to stop what had been called "this alleged bandit raid."

Lucas said such an inquiry now would tie up all of the Army, Air Force, Navy and Marine leaders who are busy "getting out of this mess in Korea."

He agreed with Wherry that the Administration and Secretary of State Acheson had changed the policy in Korea, but noted that "conditions there had changed" and even Wherry had changed some of his votes and attitudes.

Senators Capehart (R., Ind.) and Connally (D., Tex.) got into a peppery row after Capehart asked why countries which have received U. S. aid are not offering troops to fight alongside American GIs in Korea. Specifically, he mentioned Britain and France.

"Is this a one-way street?" Capehart demanded.

Connally, the sharp-tongued chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, told Capehart:

"Of course, we welcome all the aid we can get. But if other nations don't help, I am not in favor of throwing up our hands and surrendering, are you?"

"Certainly not," Capehart retorted, "but I am in favor of getting something in return for the billions and billions we have spent on foreign aid."

Connally, his long white hair bobbing as he pranced about, asked Capehart scornfully:

"Why don't you go to Korea and tell General MacArthur, 'You don't know a damn thing about this. Let me show you how.'"

Hotly, Capehart accused Connally of "putting on a vaudeville act," and declared:

"He evidently doesn't know the answers. His only answer is to act a clown."

Army Devises Plan to Reduce Doctor Deficit

The Army, which needs doctors almost bad enough to draft them, is working out a new plan to attract young District physicians to military service.

If it works, one of the plan originators said, the same system will be tried everywhere in the United States.

The system, already broached to medical leaders here, would provide a return practice guarantee, and perhaps a share of the income in the interim, explained Col. Harold W. Glattly, Second Army surgeon, at Fort Meade, Md.

There are still lots of medico-legal problems to be worked out, added Colonel Glattly.

Essentially, it was explained, the plan provides that "senior" physicians, those most exempt from future military service, would take over the practices of the young doctors, particularly those who received their medical training at Government expense during World War II.

Perhaps one departing doctor's practice would be split up and absorbed by three "senior" physicians "for the duration." The papients would be kept on a separate ledger by the "senior" doctor, docor on his return to civilian and returned to their original status.

During the young doctor's military service, if such a plan is approved, he might receive a "cut" on the business the "senior" doctors do on his patients.

The proposed plan is voluntary all the way through, and requires the support of the District Medical Society before it could be adopted, Colonel Glattly stressed.

If it goes over in the District, he said, it will be presented to medical societies throughout the country, particularly in the larger cities.

Atom Power Plant for Subs Slated for Start Next Month

By The Associated Press

Construction work will begin next month on the first experimental atomic power plant for U. S. submarines, Senator Brien McMahon announced yesterday.

McMahon, a Connecticut Democrat who heads the Congressional Atomic Energy Committee, declared:

"Tremendous improvement in submarine performance is in the offering."

This dry-land model of the nuclear engine that scientists hope will give American submarines greatly increased speed and range is to be built at Arco, Idaho. The Argonne National Laboratories and the Westinghouse Corporation are cooperating on the project under the direction of the Atomic Energy Commission.

The cost has been estimated at 25 million dollars.

Research and development work preliminary to actual construction has been under way three years. Arco is the site of the AEC testing station for reactors (atomic engines).

A second experimental atomic engine, incorporating a different system of design, is to be built at West Milton, N. Y. Work on that power plant, also intended primarily for submarines, has been assigned to General Electric's Knolls atomic power laboratory, Schenectady, N. Y.

At Arco and West Milton, the idea is the same: to use the heat of atomic fission to produce steam, which it is intended to shoot through conventional steam turbines. These in turn would drive submarine propellers.

But, as McMahon noted in a statement: "With equal ease this steam could be used to drive electric generators for the generation of commercial power."

McMahon said he will accompany the Atomic Energy Commissioners and high naval officers on a trip to the New London, Conn., submarine base Tuesday to discuss progress of the proposed underwater atomic drive. The group also will look over a hull for an atomic-powered submarine being built by the Electric Boat Co., at nearby Groton.

Russian Assails U. S. Atom-Science Approach

London, July 14 (AP).—A Soviet scientist used the fourth world power conference today as a forum to condemn the atom bomb and the American approach to atomic science.

The Russian, Prof. V. A. Golubtsov, asserted that in the American view, "atomic weapon manufacture is a prerequisite to provision of atomic energy for peace." He said this attitude is leading the world's scientists "into roads which are wrong."

The 50-nation conference is being held for discussions on the harnessing of atomic power for peaceful purposes.

Golubtsov's denunciations followed the presentation of an American paper on nuclear energy for power production by Ward Davidson, research engineer of the Consolidated Edison Co. of New York.

As his remarks were translated for English-speaking delegates, a hush fell over the conference.

Golubtsov said he got an impression from the Davidson paper that production of atomic power would be feasible only if there were available for use waste materials resulting from the manufacture of atomic weapons.

Davidson made only a passing reference to atomic weapons. It came as he was considering the cost of producing atomic power. It will be excessive, he said, unless a portion of the cost might be charged off to some additional operation, such as the making of atomic weapons.

Ernest Mercier of France, chairman of the atomic energy session, came quickly to Davidson's defense. Davidson, he said, had not maintained that atomic energy could only be a sub-product of military use."

Navy Urges Doctors And Nurses to Serve

The Navy appealed yesterday to doctors, dentists and nurses in the inactive Naval Reserve to volunteer immediately for extended tours of active duty.

Rear Adm. Clifford A. Swanson, Navy Surgeon General, said medical and dental officers in the ranks of commander and below and nurses in the ranks of lieutenant and below will be accepted. Applications should be made to the Chief of Navy Personnel, Navy Department, Washington.

Swanson explained that there is a shortage because of the authorized increase in Navy manpower.

27 Newly-Made Servicemen Are Sworn In

The armed forces enlistment drive gained momentum here yesterday as 27 men took the oath.

Eleven of the group enlisted in the Army, eight in the Marine Corps, three in the Air Force, three in the Coast Guard, and two in the Navy.

The eight youths sworn in at the Marine Recruiting Station, 1400 Pennsylvania ave. nw., boarded a train last night for Parris Island, S. C., and 10 weeks of boot training. A recruiting sergeant guessed most would be assigned in six months to outfits preparing for combat.

Only two of the new Marines were over 20. The present probability is that they wouldn't have been drafted for some time. They had jobs. Why did they rush to sign up?

Corps Family Tradition

Some couldn't think of a good reason right off, but for four of them the corps has been a family tradition.

Such was the case of William H. Weigand, jr., 19, of Quantico, Va., who is the son, step-son, nephew and cousin of Marines. And of Austin P. Frost, jr., 19, of 3103 Windom rd., Mt. Rainier, Md., whose father left for Parris Island 25 years ago Thursday. Frost had been doing window display work and said he joined up to "stay out of the Army."

George E. Waters, 23, who came here from Providence, R. I., three months ago to work with a project estimating firm, had two Marine brothers in the last war. William E. Dilsaver, 18, construction worker from Garrisonville, Va., is the son of World War I Marine.

John F. Cornwell, 18, had the most tangible reason for signing up. He has been working here in an insurance office, but he owns a farm in Brocton, Ill., that he doesn't want "blown full of holes."

Ex-Marine Reenlists

The local Marine recruiting station yesterday also announced the first enlistment of a former Marine for one year's duty in the reserves.

He was PFC Thomas R. Radcliffe, 23, of Quantico. Radcliffe served one year at the end of war in the paymaster's department. He will be sent to Camp LeJeune, N. C., Marine officials said.

The two men sworn into the Navy were Earl Mosher, 24, of 1617 Fairlawn ave. se., and Charles W. Torpey, jr., 25, of Route 1, Landover, Md. The local Navy recruiting office also had 13 new enlistment applicants yesterday.

The three new U. S. Coast Guard enlistees sworn in yesterday were John Lippard, 18, of 5946 N. 10th rd., Arlington; James Brown, 19, of 946 26th st. nw., and Minter Cluff, jr., 18, of 1616 Swan st. nw.

The Coast Guard said that about 14 men applied for enlistment yesterday with "about six good prospects" among them.

The 11 who enlisted in the Army yesterday were: George W. Plummer, jr., of 1128 8th st. n.e.; David N. Johnson, 17, of 1838 8th st. n.w.; Melvin B. Calloway, 24, of Route I, Rockville, Md.; Hubert Carter, 19, of 526 10th st. n.e.; Francis A. Leonard, 18, of 255 V st. n.w.; James J. Connor, 24, John Roberts Homes, Alexandria; Natham C. Ray, 19, of 1637 Vermont ave. n.w.; Ernest Ray, 21, of 1412 Belmont st. n.w.; Oddie G. Chisholm, 21, of 204 16th st. ne.; James W. Steward, jr., 21, of 633 Anacostia ave. n.e., and William R. Beatty, 21, of 405 Smithson st. s.w.

Local men enlisting in the Air Force were: Richard A. Vandergrift, 21, of 5078 Sherrier Place nw.; Joseph T. Arnaud, 22, of 121 Fairmont st., Falls Church, Va., and Hilton G. Witherall, jr., 19, of 4523 Eads Place ne.

As for the service reserves, the Navy yesterday reported it had applications from 16 members of the enlisted reserves for active duty, and from 14 officers. Since the call for reservists went out last Saturday, the office said, 88 enlisted reservists and 90 reserve officers had applied.

The Army said about 50 enlisted reservists had inquired about or applied for active service since Saturday.

Billions More Will Be Sought In Congress for Defense Uses

have insisted it should be at least seven divisions. One of the "mobile reserve" units—the Second Infantry Division—already has been alerted for departure to the Far East, and the tentative Pentagon plans are understood to provide for sending other units overseas.

All Need Trained Reservists

The Army — and the Air Force and Navy to even a greater extent — also need large numbers of trained reservists to build units to full strength, fill vacancies in scarce specialities and help handle the manifold tasks required in a partial mobilization.

There was word last night that one obstacle in the procurement of Air Force Reserve officers by voluntary means will be removed. Both Army and Air reserve officers were given a one-grade promotion when separated at the end of the war. Under present regulations if they come back in uniform with their own consent it is at their last active rank, while if they wait to be ordered in, they'll receive the higher rank.

This regulation is in the process of being changed, Air Force circles learned, while the Army is expected to follow suit.

The Navy gave no such "separation promotions" and have had less trouble getting volunteers. During the four day period, July 10 through 13, it was announced, 1,492 Reserve officers asked for active duty. The response among enlisted reservists was not as great, the announcement indicated. While the number of applicants was not given, the total men accepted was 197 during the four day period. About 2,100 recruits were enrolled during the same time—a 50 percent increase over the like period in June.

No figures on recruiting or volunteers from the reserve have been given by the other armed forces.

In another move to get officers for the expanding Fleet, the Navy announced in Newport, R. I. that the General Line School there had suspended activities. Some 500 officers scheduled to begin classes there July 24, will be given other jobs.

Meanwhile, an Army spokesman said that there is "no Dunkirk in sight" in Korea, but indicated the outnumbered American troops fighting there may be on the defensive for weeks.

He said "there is no doubt in the world but that we are going to hold these people" and urged that the American people "give us time." Eventually, when enough troops and supplies are landed in Korea "we'll take the ball and start going up the field," the official said.

600 Reds Attack Town In Burma; Beaten Off

Rangoon, Burma, July 14 (AP).—About 600 Communists attacked the road town of Lewe, 234 miles north of Rangoon, last night but were repelled with eight killed in an all-night fight with government forces, the army said today. Two government soldiers and two civilians were killed in the battle.

IMPORTANT NOTICE!
CAMERA OWNERS and the Korean War!
Photography is America's No. 1 hobby—and her finest, too! Many camera fans are concerned if the Korean War situation will result in a shortage of cameras or film; and if the present situation will force them to limit their favorite pastime of taking pictures or recording daily events in snapshots. The Brenner Photo Company suggests to continue to buy your photographic equipment and supplies in normal quantity and not to create an artificial shortage by unnecessary hoarding of cameras, film, or equipment. As on previous occasions, should—unfortunately—rationing become necessary, every customer in Brenner's files or mailing list will be given the utmost consideration and will take part in our liberal and reliable rationing system. Our time payment plan (6 to 18 months) has not been changed for the time being.
Take advantage of the summer season and vacation time and get the camera, movie camera, photo accessory, or color film you need and want. Our catalog is free, please ask for it.

Funds For Truth

President Truman's request for 89 million dollars more for the foreign information and education program is an effective answer to the demands that have been stirring in Congress for an American campaign of truth. The additional money asked, though considerable in comparison with the size of the current program, is modest in light of the need. Over large parts of the world ceaseless Communist propaganda has forced this country on the defensive ideologically. It is only too bad that it has taken the Korean conflict to sharpen awareness in the Administration and Congress of the tremendous stakes involved in the battle for men's minds.

The 89-million-dollar request is in no way a boondoggle. The State Department originally requested more than this figure—in the neighborhood of 93 million dollars—for the program in fiscal 1951. This, however, was whittled down by the Bureau of the Budget to 36 million—approximately the same amount the program had for operations in fiscal 1950. This 36 million dollars in turn is in the process of further trimming by Congress.

Of the 89 million, 41 million would be for nonrecurring capital expenditures, to be used in the same fashion as a supplemental 11 million voted for 1950. It would permit improvement of radio facilities with a strengthened signal to combat Russian jamming. Another seven million would enable foreign broadcast activities to be housed in the same building in New York. The remaining 41 million dollars would be used to expand and refine the quality of other aspects of the present program—libraries, films, exchange of visitors and various other means of personal contact. Significantly, some of the money would be available for research into more effective media of getting America's story across.

One of the most encouraging developments in the information program is to be seen in the fact that Assistant Secretary of State Barrett already has had talks in London, Paris and Rome to the end of establishing a common set of objectives for the Western propaganda effort. British-American cooperation already exists in the massing of radio transmitters. Thus positive steps are being taken toward a united free-world effort in information.

At the same time a danger exists that in focusing our attention on so-called critical areas, we may neglect our friends elsewhere. This is an especially important consideration in Latin America, where small frictions can loom large even between firm friends. Communist propaganda is at work everywhere, and it must be countered everywhere. Nor is it wise to assume that Voice of America broadcasts do the whole job. Some of the most effective work is done by informal contacts, particularly in the large areas of the world where radios are a rarity.

These, however, are details incidental to the major job. The pity is that the Senate has persisted in the illusion that the effort can be made cheaply. The Appropriations Committee has sliced nearly four million dollars from the original 36 million request (which the House cut by two million), and the full Senate has turned down a measure to restore the cut. It is almost incredible, in the light of the lessons of the last few years, that legislators still fall for this sort of self-defeating economy. Patently the program's evangelizers still need to do a lot of work if this vital element of defense is to receive its due.

Military Information

No one can doubt the need for withholding the type of military information that might be of advantage to the Communist enemy in Korea. The uniform code of security regulations issued to the armed forces by Secretary Johnson is reasonable in this respect, as is the plea for "voluntary censorship" of important information made by General MacArthur. This is not censorship in the real sense; it is merely a tightening of security at the source and an appeal for awareness as to the type of data about troops, equipment and ship sailings that might injure the American cause. We are confident that the press and radio, as well as people generally, will respond to the request so long as it is based upon legitimate demands of military security.

Obviously most of the security will have to be within the armed forces themselves. It is perfectly proper for the military to be on guard against release of advance information on movements, unit designations and strength, sailing times, destinations and the like. At the same time, there is not much point in withholding information about events that have already happened—especially so long as Russian consuls, not to mention Communists and fellow travelers, are free to observe and report what they see. The only way military security can work in this type of conflict is for the armed forces to police themselves—in other words, to observe the rules laid down by Byron Price when he left the Office of Censorship in 1945.

At the same time, there is one caveat: voluntary cooperation will hold only so long as the military does not abuse it to cover up mistakes, interfere with criticism or suppress information of no security value which properly belongs to the public. Security in this respect is a two-way street.

Revival Of Japan

One direct consequence of the fighting in Korea should be to make the American people think more seriously about Japan. President Truman's action placing the Seventh Fleet between China and Formosa and the resistance to aggression in Korea are long steps toward the formulation of a Far Eastern policy. But the center of such a policy necessarily involves the future of Japan. The present approach to this problem seems to be hesitant and short-sighted. We are told that the United States will ask Japan for long-range military rights as part of a peace settlement to be negotiated as soon as possible. The major emphasis seems to be upon military footholds in the Japanese Islands. Important though Japanese bases may be, they are necessarily only one aspect of the much larger problem of the future relations between Japan and the United States.

To talk only about American bases in Japan seems to imply that hereafter the defense of Japan will be the sole responsibility of the United States. The folly of such a policy is readily apparent. It would throw an unmanageable burden upon the American people. Korea points up the difficulties we should encounter. Soviet Russia is following a policy of arming her satellites to the teeth for aggressive assaults upon the free world while preserving her own military power. How absurd it would be for the United States to attempt to deal with many such forays, even under direction of the United Nations, solely with its own forces! We can help free countries to defend themselves, but we cannot take upon ourselves the burden of holding back the Communist hordes everywhere while keeping a potentially powerful country like Japan weak and unarmed.

Probably more important is the fact that our present policy of paternalism in Japan is likely to turn the sympathies of the Japanese against us. To be sure, the Japanese are now in a pacifistic mood. Because of the object lesson in Korea, they are likely to grant the United States the bases it is seeking with little resistance. That is the natural reaction of a defenseless people in an emergency. But in the long run the Japanese would be less than human if they did not rebel against the type of overlordship that is implied in the indefinite occupation of their country, and that is what a deal on bases (standing alone) would seem to entail. It is unmistakably plain that, as Japan regains her strength, bases on the islands will be useless unless we also have the good will and cooperation of the Japanese people. To our way of thinking, therefore, the problem is not simply one of fortifying Japan but of rehabilitating the Japaneses as a stabilizing factor in the Far East.

Throughout the war years and the years immediately following there was hope that China might take Japan's place as a chief stabilizing factor in the Far East. That hope has been blasted. To be sure, India has become a strong stabilizing influence in the larger area of Asia. But the hope for restoration of trade and a balance of power that will make for peace in the western Pacific now rests largely upon Japan. There is danger, to be sure, that a rehabilitated and rearmed Japan might produce a new crop of militarists who would aspire to new conquests, but that risk seems to be remote in comparison to the Communist menace now on the march behind formidable Russian tanks.

Before the Korean invasion began we pointed out that the task of the peacemakers in Japan was to restore the balance of power that had been destroyed by the war. This means allowing Japan to restore its financial and commercial relations with its old customers in Asia. It means development of a representative government that does not lean upon American military power. It means also allowing the Japanese to regain the means of defending themselves. While Japanese forces are again being developed this country must maintain sufficient strength in the islands to hold them, and of course, this means bases. But we should not let the Japanese suppose that we intend to defend them forever without effort on their part. Along with such rehabilitation should go a long-rang policy of getting Japan back into the family of nations as an adjunct to the free world.

It would be naive to deny that this course involves a calculated risk. We can never be absolutely sure that the Japanese, if restored to the status of an independent power capable of defending themselves, will choose a live-and-let-live policy. But that is true of any people. The best we can do is to encourage the free way of life, to work unselfishly with the United Nations to resist aggression, to counteract lying Communist propaganda and to keep our own skirts clear of imperialism. This newspaper has faith that such a policy will succeed in Japan, as it appears to be succeeding in various other parts of the world. One thing certain is that we cannot coerce the Japanese into being a freedom-loving and peaceful people. Another is that we cannot assume, over a long period, the responsibility of defending peoples capable of providing their own defense, without risking explosions instead of the stability that we seek. These facts alone demand reconsideration of the Japanese problem from the political and economic viewpoints while the present military problems are being worked out.

United Nations At Bay

There seems to be no ground for the fears expressed in some quarters that Prime Minister Nehru of India is trying to mediate the Korean controversy in its present stage. Rather his efforts appear to be directed toward localizing the conflict and preventing the outbreak of world-wide war. The value of these efforts should not be minimized, for Nehru's influence looms large in Asia. When the aggression of the North Koreans has been put down, he can be of the greatest service in working out a peaceful settlement.

It must be clear to everyone, however, that until that time comes no mediation of the dispute is possible. The United Nations could not comprise with lawless and brutal aggression without undermining its own standing in the confidence of the world. The Russian-armed invaders have made a direct assault on the peace organization as well as upon South Korea. To that challenge there can be only one answer—the complete liquidation of the aggressive movement. In this 52 nations in all parts of the world are in agreement. The negotiations which must follow successful police action against the aggressors will doubtless be concerned with the future status of Korea and possibly the settlement of other problems that are menacing the peace in the Far East.

Meanwhile the urgent problem is to arrest the drive of the North Korean forces involved in this insane challenge to the free world. It cannot be too strongly urged, as Trygve Lie, U. N. Secretary General, pointed out yesterday, that this is the responsibility of the entire United Nations. The United States has assumed the largest share of the burden, and will continue to do so. For the sake of unity in fact as well as in name, however, other countries should do their utmost to supplement the American effort. The forces fighting in Korea are not U. N. forces, but they ought to represent a cross-section of U. N. membership so as to leave no question in any minds as to what is at stake. Especially the small countries that are expecting protection against any future aggression against themselves ought to make their power as well as their voices felt in Korea. Several countries have already sent military aid. British, Australian and New Zealand naval and air units got into the fight shortly after it began. Norway has offered shipping, and some other countries, food and medicine. Prime Minister Liaquat Ali Khan of Pakistan has pledged the aid of his country "in all ways within its means."

Nothing would so effectively demonstrate the united spirit of the 52 cooperating nations of the U. N. as ground force units from many lands, especially Asiatic countries other than Nationalist China. The British feel that they have special obligations in Hongkong and Malaya and the French have committed a large number of troops in Indo-China. But no national problem is as important as making the United Nations' antiaggression policy a success. And that will require not only the amassing of sufficient strength to repel the invaders but also an effective demonstration of international unity in terms of military force.

Action On Milk

We have some sympathy with the District Commissioners in their indecision over milk sanitation regulations. Their postponement of action on liberalizing the code to permit chemical sterilization on dairy farms is not exactly courageous and looks like an effort to straddle the fence; nonetheless, it is understandable in view of the confusing statements and the tremendous pressures from both sides. But the matter cannot be allowed to rest here. Testimony has shown pretty clearly, in our opinion, that chemical sterilization is just as good as the present steam process and would in no way affect the quality of milk—indeed, representatives of the Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers Association, which constitutes the opposition, have virtually conceded as much.

Representative A. L. Miller now has a bill in Congress to modernize the milk code. In this connection the House District Committee is likely to be less susceptible to pressures than are the Commissioners, despite the strenuous efforts of Representative Howard Smith on behalf of the present restriction which accrues to the benefit of the producer monopoly. We hope that the District Committee—and Congress—will resolve the Commissioners' doubts by passing a new law which will permit full use of chemical sterilization in making high grade milk available to the population from the widest number of approved sources.

MAD MOONLIGHT

Night . . . meadow marshland . . .
And I
Seeking to capture
The rapture of light
Trailing its laces
Over the faces
Of wild currant bushes,
Of mallow, and grasses,
And rushes that gather
Close-huddled together
As if for protection
From moonlight, from madness;
Their feet in the water,
Their heads lying cool
In the moon pool.
Bending and swaying,
Deep, deep they go down . . .
I follow . . . I drown
In a bubble of light
Too fragile for holding.
How white . . . white!

Atlantic Union Now

I am sure Marquis Childs, Clarence Streit and your editorial writer were not in cahoots in your issue of July 7, but never have I seen such a follow-through on an idea on two facing pages.

Mr. Childs ("Korea as a U. N. Chore") declared that "the free world today must stand together with all possible unity if it is to save itself." Your editorial ("War of Words") called upon free nations to unite their propaganda resources in behalf of the free way of life.

And Mr. Streit brought the theme to its logical conclusion by suggesting how the free countries could unite—by federal union.

Shame on us that the Senate of Canada and not that of the United States—the country that invented the system of federal union—should pass the Atlantic Union resolution while our Senate keeps it buried in committee.

Colombian President

It comes as something of a shock to learn from the Columbian Ambassador Eduardo Zuleta-Angel that the president-elect (letter published July 10), of his country, Dr. Laureano Gomez, is a friend of the United States. As evidence of this feeling, Dr. Zuleta-Angel produces a statement from the Columbian chief executive praising the United States stand in Korea.

May I suggest that the Ambassador refresh his memory as to Dr. Gomez's undying friendship for the United States by perusing through the pages of the president's Bogota newspaper, El Siglo, from 1940 through 1945?

Dr. Zuleta-Angel will not have to be a propaganda analyst, I'm certain, to detect that not only was a large number of news dispatches straight from the Goebbels office, but also that the editorial opinions, presumably those of his illustrious president, were violently pro-Axis and anti-United States. Nor would he find it difficult to see how Senor Gomez was attempting to propagandize for the Spanish Falange, one of the chief Axis mediums used to disparage the United States and the democracy which it represents.

There is no good reason why diplomatic envoys should be permitted to misinform the American people as to the nature of their governments and leaders, and in this respect the editors of The Washington Post have done a meritorious service in exposing Dr. Gomez for what he is.

Peace Appeal

The letter of K. White Sonner printed in your issue of July 10, really arouses a feeling of pity for him, or anyone so blind as to think that any movement instigated by the Soviet could be for the good of any nation but themselves. "World Peace Appeal" coming from the Communists, what irony!

Yes, perhaps "so-called" peace—in other words, not an actual over-all shooting war, because they may not be fully prepared for that, just yet. But their lying, spying, stirring up trouble in all countries, trying to keep nations at loggerheads internally and internationally, does that seem of peaceful intent?

Does the overrunning of country after country, and eliminating all opposition to the Soviet rule, look like they desire peace?

I am the wife of a veteran of two wars and mother of a combat veteran of World War II. No one wishes or prays for peace more than myself. But we can have it, if we can, only by being militarily prepared.

Taft's Stand

Dr. Mattingly in his letter of July 6, attempts to belittle Senator Taft's wisdom with respect to our foreign policy in the Far East by pointing to Taft's isolationism in World War II. The good doctor seems to ignore the fact that millions of 1940 isolationists, including Senators Taft and Vandenberg, learned their lesson well. The one important exception seems to be Dean Acheson.

An American Secretary of State who, in the year 1950, has not learned, as almost all other Americans have, the bitter lesson of appeasement, should resign. And Dr. Mattingly, who probably perceived before the rest of us the danger of appeasement, should be in the forefront with Taft, a latter-day convert from isolationism, seeking a Secretary of State who does not blow hot and cold on one of the most tremendously important truths which should govern the course of this Nation in world affairs.

"Trigger Happy"

The July 12 Homer Bigart account of American action in Korea ("Iron Monsters Out of the Fog") is one of the most gripping news reports I have ever seen. Its two outstanding lessons are the danger of being "trigger happy" and the indirectly related fact of our tank inadequacy in Korea.

From the news report I quote "a lone American tank . . . too lightly armored to risk a duel with . . . 60-ton . . . monsters." At long last, "our light tank" managed to knock out and capture an enemy monster by a "surprise shot at blank range.' Had that daring shot failed, the crew of our little tank would probably be dead.

The dangers of being "trigger happy" on the home front (as in the case of some of our superpatriots) are less obvious. But, indirectly, that frame of mind is among the causes of our tank deficiency in Korea.

"Experts" who are "trigger happy" as to modern developments in military equipment, are constantly arguing that known types are "outmoded' by something new. Heavy tanks, and surface marine craft, have been under specially heavy disparagement by such "experts."

Despite the volubility of the latter, every form of equipment has its uses. In a final crisis, possession of even a club or a stone may be crucial.

Thirty-Eighth Parallel

Speaking of the 38th parallel in Korea, Drew Pearson in your July 7 paper points out that this line was drawn by General MacArthur in August. 1945, to keep Russian troops from overrunning all of Korea at that time.

At the Conference of Foreign Ministers held in Moscow on December 16-26, 1945 it was decided by Great Britain, Soviet Union and the United States that Korea should be put under a provisional democratic Korean government and put under a joint trusteeship of Great Britain, China, the Soviet Union and the United States for a period of up to five years to prepare the country for independence.

The United States and the Soviet Union failed to reach an agreement in May, 1946, for the establishment of a provisional native government as outlined by the Moscow Conference. On October 16, 1946, Maj. Gen. A. L. Lerch, United States military governor (below the 38th parallel) announced creation of an interim legislative assembly to give the Koreans control of their government. This assembly met November 3, 1946. A People's Republic had meanwhile been established even prior to the Moscow Conference, i.e., on September 6, 1945, by the Socialist and Communist parties. This was now reorganized by the Russians into the Korean Peoples Interim Committee.

The joint commission established by the Moscow Conference failed to agree on which Korean parties should be consulted in setting up a government. The USSR refused to consult with parties opposing the establishment of a trusteeship as provided in the Moscow agreement. The differences appeared to have been settled on May, 1947, but when the joint commission resumed negotiations, Soviet representatives objected to parties opposed to trusteeship.

On August 28, 1947, the U. S. proposed a four power meeting in Washington to consider the question, but the USSR rejected the proposal and it was then referred to the U. N. General Assembly. On September 27, 1947, the USSR proposed evacuation forces but the U. S. maintained that this should only follow establishment of a national government. In November the U. N. General Assembly created a commission to hold Korean elections and aid in establishing a government.

When the U. N. Temporary Commission arrived in Korea in January, 1948, permission for it to visit North Korea was refused. An election in South Korea took place May 10, 1948, 80 percent (8,000,000) of the eligible voters in that area participating. On May 31 the new assembly met and elected Syngman Rhee chairman and adopted a constitution for the Republic of Korea. On July 20, Rhee was elected President under this constitution.

Meanwhile in February, 1948, a constitution for a Peoples Democratic Republic of Korea with jurisdiction over all Korea was presented to the Russian dominated North Korea Peoples Committee. It was adopted July 10, 1948, and ratified by the Supreme People's Assembly chosen in typical single-slate "elections" on September 2, 1948. The U. N. Assembly appealed to both Soviet and U. S. governments to withdraw their troops from Korea. Soviet troops were reported withdrawn December 25, 1948, and U. S. troops in mid-1949.

This is all history. What does not appear on the surface, however, is the attitude of our State Department.

While Roosevelt and Churchill cannot be blamed for the Thirty-eighth Parallel division, the "too little, too lates" who less than a month before the invasion, were prating about the Korean situation being more secure and promising than ever before (see ECA testimony before congressional committees), are largely to blame for the present debacle. There, and the pinchpennies like Representatives, are the one whose hands are today stained with blood of our American boys in Korea.

Traditional Civil Defense

By Malvina Lindsay

Women's Minor Role

MANY WOMEN leaders are afraid the role of their sex in civil defense, should a national emergency arise, would parallel that of the wife suddenly confronted by a bankrupt husband with a frantic plea to save the day by cutting down on the grocery bill.

There is growing feminine dissatisfaction with the way women are being left out of the top planning in civil defense. It is feared a last minute "Rally Around, Girls!" would find half of the Nation's population unprepared by training or understanding to rally effectively.

Women leaders are being told to some degree what is going on. They've been called to the Pentagon and given elementary lectures on the civil defense set-up. One speaker even explained the ins and outs of congressional legislation to a group long active in public affairs.

But there's been little consultation on policy or planning with qualified women of professional or executive skill. No women are on important policy boards for what is called the "mobilization of human resources."

SOME WOMEN object to what they call the "substitution approach" to this mobilization. This regards women mainly in the role of substitutes for men's jobs. Many women feel their contribution as individuals should be considered. To regard them merely as stand-ins for men, they say, will depress their morale and initiative, deprive them of economic security in postwar adjustments, perhaps deprive the Nation of what special contributions they might make. A Nation-wide inventory of talent and skills should be made, they say, and used regardless of sex.

For example, women are not used to any extent in espionage work in this country though some other countries have found them effective at this. Many women have outstanding ability as doctors, scientists, administrators, skilled factory workers. But to make the most of them in such pursuits they would need to be put in the position of standing on their own, not merely filling in for men.

One of women's biggest services in time of crisis might be intangible—the allaying of panic, the countering of enemy propaganda, the upholding of morale. But preparation for this is necessary—especially if the enemy is set to confuse at a critical moment.

Criticism of the lagging preparation of women for civil defense broke out at the recent convention of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs. Miss Margaret A. Hickey, a former president of the organization, pointed out that the last war had been under way nine months before the women's policy committee, which she headed, was set up. The federation is calling a Washington conference of leaders of women's organizations to seek full participation of women in civil defense planning and in economic and military mobilization.

IN REPLY to earlier criticism, the manpower division of the National Security Resources Board pointed out that it was treating women as men in its planning, hence was developing no special program for them. To that the women reply that the "substitution approach," which figures basically on where men will fit in the defense picture, is a form of segregation. And if womanpower is being treated as manpower, how does it happen, they ask, that no womanpower is on the policy boards?

At one information session for women, a clew to some defense thinking was given by an officer who said it was generally understood women couldn't take the discipline men took in the armed forces or in jobs—that they couldn't stand to have their ears knocked down. This was vigorously denied by women leaders in the armed forces and in civilian life. Women under fire or in danger zones, it was insisted, are as disciplined as men.

Those experienced in leadership say the secret of getting production from a woman is to sell her on the fact she is needed and to give her responsibility—a formula to which men likewise respond. But just passing down a plan or giving orders won't produce, by magic, organization, skill, discipline, morale.

Another national emergency would find the role of American women very different from that in the last war, when only 275,000 women were in the armed forces, and grocery queues were a major irritation. Hence women should now be assuming some of the partnership with men that atomic defense demands.

Dognaping

The recent case of the stealing of Michael, the pet dog of the Runnel family of Alexandria, perhaps will wake up the authorities to the vicious racket that is going on in the District and elsewhere. How many other animals have this fiend and others like him stolen and sold to laboratories, medical schools, hospitals and the like to be used as experimental animals? They receive from $5 to $15 for a dog and from $3 to $5 for a cat—quite a racket and quite a price to receive for stolen goods!

Midsummer Capital

By Marquis Childs

Korea And Washington

HERE AT the halfway point of this fantastic century are some quick snapshots of the Nation's Capital. If it were not for the dark shadow of the news a continent and an ocean away, it would all look so normal.

Childs

Outside the office window on F st. the big chartered buses are lined up in double ranks. The tourist parties come out of their hotels to find their places.

The women are wearing bright summer dresses and those hats with flowers. They are members of glee clubs from Indiana who have come to Washington to take part in the Capital's sesquicentennial celebration. Their high voices come up from the street like the twittering of birds as they settle down in the big buses. And, meanwhile, the traffic dams up back of this formidable blockade. Out of the soggy gray sky drops of rain are squeezed as though from a sponge.

THE RECEPTIONIST at the VIP entrance to the Pentagon has a bright, efficient look as she gives the visitor directions. There was a time when there was no receptionist at all inside that walnut-paneled enclosure and you found your way unaided through the Pentagon's endless turnings. This may have marked the almost unobserved interval between wars.

The receptionist writes the room number on a printed chart of the building. On her desk are two vases of summer flowers, blue and white hydrangeas and larkspur. You wonder how soon will come the symbols of "security," badges and escorts for visitors.

The Pentagon generates its own atmosphere and the trouble 7000 miles away has not yet altered it. It is cool, quiet, subdued, uncluttered and uncrowded. You have a feeling that this is almost another world, a long way from the hot, noisy streets of Washington.

IN THE big office with the windows that look out toward the city across the Potomac is a big desk. On the broad mahogany expanse of the top are only a few papers, like neat islands. The man behind the desk has a weary look, reflecting long hours of work, worry and pressure.

He is one of the men responsible for getting troops and guns asd tanks and planes to that remote peninsula called Korea that juts out of the heartland of Asia. That peninsula where things are going badly. Not so much in what he says as in the way he says it is the sense of almost insuperable difficulties that have not yet been mastered but must somehow be mastered.

On an easel before the desk is a large map of the Korean Peninsula. In big letters are the names that have become so painfully familiar in the past three weeks—Inchon, Pusan, Pyongyang. Names that almost no American had ever heard of before June 24. The red arrows inked in show the enemy's progress

At the bottom is the designation, "top secret." Just at a glance I would guess that in recording developments of the Korean war it would be somewhat behind the news map published in the papers that same morning.

The city across the river looks from this perspective incredibly small and far off as though you were looking at it through the wrong end of a telescope. The dome of the Capitol is a compact cloud on the serene horizon.

UNDER that dome the tourists move ceaselessly back and forth, herded in groups by guides or wandering from corridor to corridor. In the plaza outside the closely parked cars bear license plates from almost every State in the Union.

They file in and out of the Senate gallery. The spectacle does not hold them long. The appropriation bill is up, the guide explains in a whisper. The guide puts more spirit into her account of the painter who decorated the corridors on the first floor with all the birds and flowers of America.

THE HOTEL dining room is darkish and cool and the music makes a polite background. Although the years of World War II this dining room was an integral part of what was happening in Washington. You could hardly get a table unless you were well known or generous with tips or both.

But today it's only half filled. This is the midsummer lull. So many people are away, in Europe and in cooler places. So normal for Washington in the summer with Congress about to adjourn.

At the next table two men are arguing. It has a familiar sound. ". . . I'm just telling you what he told me. He said they weren't ready to talk about plant expansion. . . ."

So normal! And yet each and every one of us here and all over the country must have a feeling of how thin this surface is and of how overwhelming are the forces that seem once again to have caught us up.

Area Naval Reservists Home After Cruise . . .

Bob Burchette—The Washington Post

WELL TRAINED—The USS Robert F. Keller docked at the Naval Gun Factory yesterday returning 120 Naval Reservists and six members of the Marine Corps Reserve after a 30-day training cruise to Lisbon, Portugal. Robert H. Belt, 20, of 1720 Varnum st. nw. waves a greeting as he comes ashore

By Jean Reiff
Post Reporter

Sun-browned and tired but well-trained, 120 Naval and 6 Marine Reservists from the Washington area landed at the Naval Gun Factory yesterday after a month's training cruise to Europe.

To many, the trip aboard ship was old hat. They had served in the Navy in other years and were just brushing up on old training. But to others, just youngsters who recently joined the reserves, the sea-gong trip was a new experience.

Not as new, however, as was the entire set-up to The Washington Post reporter—strictly a landlubber and a female one at that—sent down to interview them when they got back.

The reporter learned in rapid-fire order that one never, never refers to a ship such as the USS Robert F. Keller, a 306-foot, 1275-ton destroyer escort, on which the cruise was made, as a boat. Some 120 grinning Naval Reservists said so.

The only thing that can be called a boat is a floating craft that can be picked up and placed on another floating craft, and that destroyer was too big.

The ship has no left side, it's known as the port side. Nor is there a right side; it's the starboard side. There is no up; it's topside, and down is below. It has no front; that's the bow. No back either; that's the stern, and anything to the rear of anything else is aft.

When a ship's officer yells: "Lay up to the third deck," he definitely does not mean stretch out flat on the deck. He means, and we quote: "Get the hell up on that deck but quick."

After we straightened out the lingo, it was learned:

The trip was the first Naval Reserve training cruise from Washington to a European port. The destroyer left Washington June 17, arriving in Lisbon, Portugal, June 29 after a short stop at Bermuda.

With a good many snorts and chuckles, the Reservists explained they spent their three days ashore there "just sightseeing." One of the nice things about Lisbon was the cheapness of food and wine, they said. A complete steak dinner was only 65 cents.

Wages in U. S. At New Peak; Dividends Up

By the United Press

Wage and salary payments reached a new peak in May while publicly reported cash dividend payments by corporations jumped 12 percent over the same month a year ago, the Government reported yesterday.

The Commerce Department said wage and salary payments were at an average rate of of $139,200,000,000 a year, or $1,100,000,000 higher than in April. Most of the increase went to workers in the durable goods industries.

Part of the increase was due to the end of the prolonged Chrysler automobile strike.

Total personal income in May was at an annual rate of $212,200,000,000, compared with $209,700,000,000 in April. The figures do not include dividend payments to veterans on their national service life insurance.

The Department said publicly reported corporation dividends in May totaled 210 million dollars, bringing the total for the past three months to $1,512,000,000. This is 9 percent above the similar period a year ago.

Railroad dividends showed a 12 percent decline in the three-month period, but this was more than offset by moderate increases in other general categories.

Personal income estimates include wage and salaries, net income from proprietorships and partnerships, dividends, interest and rents received by landlords.

The department said about 95 percent of the $2,800,000,000 in GI insurance dividends had been paid out by the end of May.

Home Purchases Decline Despite Record Building

Although 1949 set a record in new-home construction starts, purchases of houses fell below earlier postwar years, the Federal Reserve Board reported yesterday.

Only 1,600,000 houses were bought last year, compared with more than 2,000,000 in each of the previous postwar years, the board said.

The aggregate of prices for houses actually bought was less than that of automobile purchases—by a margin of $11,200,000,000 to $15,100,000,000.

The decline in house purchases came despite some lowering of prices as a result of reduced building costs and more "economy" models. The average price dropped to $7040 from $9000 in 1948.

The board said the chief explanations for declining purchase here that turnover of existing houses dropped to one million units last year from 1,600,000 in 1948, and many houses were started too late in 1949 to be ready for sale before 1950.

Plans to buy houses this year were "at least as numerous" in 1950—before the Korean outbreak—as they were a year ago, the board observed, adding that the same was true for autos and major household appliances.

3 Ohioans Refuse to Answer Whether They're Communists

Three Ohioans refused yesterday to tell the House Un-American Activities Committee whether they are or ever were Communists and ran into an immediate threat of contempt citations.

They were David H. Levison and Frank Hashmall of Cincinnati and Talmadge Raley of Lockland, near Cincinnati.

Levison and Raley had been identified by witnesses as having been Communist Party members. A committee official read from the Daily Worker, Communist Party newspaper, of April 1, 1948, reference to Hashmall as executive secretary of the party in Franklin County, Ohio.

When they were excused after refusing to answer all questions bearing on communism, Representative Walter (D., Pa.) told reporters:

" I think they should be cited (for contempt of Congress)."

Representatives Velde (R., ILL.) and Kearney (R., N.Y.) said they agreed with Walter. But Chairman Wood (D., Ga.) refused to say what his position was. He added that it was a matter to me discussed by the committee behind closed doors.

Hashmall showed up with David Rein, a Washington attorney, and a statement. Hashmall was not allowed to read his statement. He was, however, allowed to file it for the record.

The statement said "these phony hearings heap hysteria upon war hysteria." And were "set up by Taft, Bricker (Ohio Senators) and their reactionary industrial friends to handcuff labor and suppress the peoples' tremendous desire for peace."

Eastland Cites Danger Of Sabotage in War

Sen. James O. Eastland (D., Miss.) warned yesterday that the Nation faces "widespread sabotage if we get into war" and urged early Senate action on the Mundt-Ferguson Communist-control bill.

Eastland, a member of the Senate Judiciary Committee which approved the controversial measure some weeks ago, said the FBI and other law enforcement agencies need "machinery to put Communists and other traitors under lock and key."

The measure would require Communists and front groups to register with the Justice Department. It also would deny passports and Federal jobs to Communists. The House passed similar legislation during the 80th Congress but it was pigeon-holed in the Senate.

Youths Seized As Larcenists

they also admitted they were narcotics addicts, and said they had used proceeds from their thefts to buy heroin from a man named "Jake," who operated near Hawkins's 7th st. restaurant.

Lieut. H. H. Carper, head of the narcotics squad said that the youths were part of a gang of 15 youths who are dope addicts. He said the youths became dope users by hanging out around 7th and 9th sts. with such addicts. He said some members of the gang already had been sent away.

Lieutenant Carper said that Freeman told him he had spent three months at the Lexington hospital, but had not been cured. He said Freeman said he used between five and six heroin capsules a day.

The arrest came after Second Precinct Pvts. Owen W. Davis and James D. Williams reported.

The arrests came after Second Precinct scout car men reported a quantity of stolen goods at the restaurant at 1106 7th st. nw. Police said Hawkins showed them eight watches, two electric saws and two electric sanders, valued at a total of $650, which he said the youths had brought him. Police said Hawkins was "very cooperative" in helping them round up the gang.

Sergeant Talbot said that the youths told him they worked in threes on their "cases," and that not all were involved in all the larcenies.

He said they told him that two youths would go into a store, and while one would get the attention of the proprietor, the second would steal something, which he would hand to a third boy, standing outside as a lookout.

15 Larceny Cases Cited

Although the youths are only charged for larcenies totaling $650, police said yesterday that they are responsible for at least 15 larceny cases within the past two months, totaling $3000 worth of jewelry and hardware.

Sergeant Talbot said the young men told him when they first became heroin users, they had "hocked" their own possessions to buy the powder.

They described "Jake," who sold it to them, as a white man who later was sent to the Federal hospital for addicts at Lexington, Ky.

One youth told detectives he became a dope addict when he smoked a reefer given him by a girl friend. He said when he went back for more reefers, he was given heroin and "got a bang out of it."

Lieutenant Carper said that he had known about the youthful gang, but that he did not know any one named "Jake." He said his men had been trying to get in touch with the boys to see if they could be trapped into selling heroin to police.

Sargeant Talbot and Det. Sergt. Eugene H. Sisson, both general assignment squad men, worked the case from headquarters.

Parents Seek Aid

Lieut. Carper said he had been called by the mother of one of the youths Thursday, who pleaded with him to lock up her son for addiction. He said he told her that the District has no law against addiction but assured her that the boys were under surveillance.

Lieutenant Carper said that when the youths could no longer make their purchases from "Jake," they had gotten one of the 7th st. youths who knew a heroin source to buy for them. He said heroin comes in $1 capsules. The capsules were sold to the youths for $1.50.

Commissioner Lawrence said parents of three of the youths had asked his help in freeing the boys of the narcotics habit.

Commissioner Lawrence has recommended hospitalization for all five youths.

Accokeek Man Found Shot Dead

A 35-year-old Accokeek, Md., man who disappeared late Thursday after predicting "another Accokeek shooting" was found dead in the woods near his home last night. He had been shot through the head with a .12-gauge shotgun.

The man, Benjamin Franklin Berry, a trucker, was dicharged from a job with a local contractor Thursday.

Dr. James I. Boyd issued a certificate of suicide.

The body was discovered by members of the Accokeek Fire Department about a mile from the home in which Berry boarded. Mrs. Elsie Day, Berry's landlady, reported him missing Thursday after she saw him read a newspaper account of the self-shooting Wednesday of Hewie D. McClenny.

"They'll be reading about another Accokeek shooting tomorrow," Mrs. Day said Berry told her before he left home.

Mrs. Day said she noticed a shotgun and some shells were missing from the back porch of her home. A shotgun was found near his body last night.

McClenny escaped serious injury after shooting himself through the chest Wednesday with a .22 rifle, police said.

Leopold Action Blocked By Belgian Socialists

Brussels, July 14 (U.P.).—Belgian Socialists today forced a suspension of the joint session of Parliament called to return King Leopold III from exile when they broke out into a thundering chorus of the "Marseillaise," the French national anthem.

The suspension came when Catholic Senator Joseph Pholien charged that the French army tried to cover up its defeats in May, 1940, by putting the blame on the Belgians. French-speaking Walloon parliamentarians, perhaps recalling that this was French Bastille Day, broke into the French national anthem and the Catholic presiding offier sounded the alarm bell.

District Man Absolved in Tavern Death

Timothy Barrett, 57, of 2356 24th st. ne., yesterday was absolved of blame in the death of Louis J. Cain 10 days after an altercation in a Silver Hill tavern.

Trial Magistrate Arthur P. Owens held in Marlboro Police Court that there was insufficient evidence to hold Barrett for the grand jury.

Witnesses testified that the 54-year-old Cain struck Barrett twice in the face before the latter returned a blow. Cain's head hit the floor as he fell, they said.

The altercation followed an argument over a shuffleboard game played June 25 in Strick's Tavern, Branch ave. and Naylor rd., they said.

Cain, who lived at 2724 Minnesota ave. se., died July 5 in Casualty Hospital from head injuries.

Barrett, an employe of the Andrews Air Force Base postoffice, voluntarily appeared in court. He had not previously been charged.

Five persons present during the melee were arrested and charged with disorderly conduct. Officers of the trade organization said they were not members. Those charged were:

John F. Rybikowski, 50, Carl Gold, 55, and James Puluso, 50, all of Baltimore; William H. Phillips, 52, who told police he lived at 1318 11th St. nw., and Elmer W. Resecker, 52, whose address was listed by police as 530 3d st. nw.

They were released after posting $7.50 collateral each, and a hearing was set for 9:30 a. m., July 27, in Rockville Police Court.

Rep. Sasscer to Speak At Beltsville Exercises

Representative Lansdale G. Sasscer (D., Md.) will be the principal speaker at exercises at 2 p. m. today dedicating the Beltsville Volunteer Department's new engine house.

Following ceremonies at the $30,000 fire house, the Beltsville department will lead a parade of visiting equipment through the community.

'Freeze' Fixed For Personnel Of D. C. Guard

Fort Miles, Del., July 14 (Spl.).—Brig. Gen. William H. Abendroth, commanding general of the District of Columbia National Guard, formally announced the "freezing" of District Guard personnel today.

The order, which had been expected, stated that the Guard will no longer discharge enlisted men or accept the resignation of officers unless there are unusual circumstances.

Lieut. John Bolton, Guard public relations officer, said the approximate strength of the District Guard now is 2200 officers and men and that this figure will be built up through selective recruitment until the full authorized strength of 2600 is reached.

More than 1200 officers and enlisted men of the District Guard are attending summer camp here.

An inspection group flew from here to Indiantown Gap Military Reservation, Pa., today to check on the 321 officers and men of two District Guard units—the 171st Military Police Battalion and the 715th Transportation Truck Company—who are taking summer training there.

Making the staff inspection were Col. Ross Taggart, medical officer of the District Guard; Maj. Paul K. Bailey, assistant chief of staff of G-4; Capt. S. G. Cook, assistant adjutant general, and Lieutenant Bolton.

Two Million Collected by D. C. for Md.

Baltimore, July 14 (AP).—The District of Columbia is doing its share in collecting sales taxes for Maryland.

About 800 Washington stores have taken in nearly $2,000,000 for Maryland since its sales tax went into effect three years ago. J. Millard Tawes, state comptroller, reported today.

This represents about three percent of the income realized by Maryland through the sales tax.

Washington stores collect the two percent tax on sales for goods to be delivered in Maryland. The District has a sales tax of its own, too.

Washington collections for Maryland amounted to $892,188 during the fiscal year ended June 30, Tawes reported. The total for 1949 was $716,347 and $328,509 from December, 1947, through June 30, 1948, when separate accounting was started.

Maryland's total sales tax collections amounted to $28,402,467 for the past fiscal year, Tawes announced. That was $900,000 above the estimate by the state's budget makers.

However, the state's income tax receipts totalling $29,138,000 were more than $1,300,000 below the budget estimate.

The 1950 sales taxes were $400,000 more than the previous year.

been under discussion for days by Republican members of the Appropriations Committee and economy-minded Democrats. An earlier version gave the President authority to call off the economies if he "finds and directs, in writing, that the expenditure or obligation thereof is necessary in the interest of civilian or military activities required for the National defense."

This so-called "savings clause" was omitted from the draft finally offered.

Administration laders opposed to the slash discussed a possible point of order against it on the grounds it is legislation on an appropriation bill, banned by the rules. Parliamentarians pointed out, however, that the House had "opened the door" by an economy rider of its own, and the point of order would probably be overruled.

Besides Byrd, the Democrats who lined up with 30 Republicans for the amendment were Hoey (N. C.), Holland (Fla.), McClellan (Ark.), and Robertson (Va.).

Wolfson Tells of Gift

Washington. He said he and his associates have $7 or $8 millions in assets in Florida and have paid $7 million in income taxes. He told of his interest, now sold, in Monogram Pictures, for which he received only half a million in notes and even a larger amount in cash.

In reply to a question by Chairman Kefauver (D., Tenn.), Wolfson said he had had no dealings with any New Yorkers in the transaction.

In discussing the campaign contribution, the curly haired young businesman said he had only vague ideas of Johnston's business connections. He said he knew nothing of a law, since repealed, limiting contributions to $5000 for individuals or another .law prohibiting any contributions by those connected with race tracks.

He said he had been at Warren Finance Committee meetings with Johnston, but hadn't otherwise talked to him about the big contribution. He said he did have an understanding that he, Johnston and Griffin "would carry" the campaign cost.

Most of the rest of the committee's long day session was consumed in a sparring match with the sheriff of Dade County, picturesque Jimmy Sullivan. Because the committee was running so far behind schedule a night session was ordered to try and catch up in order to finish here Saturday.

Payoffs Reported

Sullivan sat by as one former deputy sheriff told the committee he had been offered a cut of gambling payoffs by another Sullivan lieutenant. And he heard another former deputy swear that one bookie joint was paying off the sheriff's office at the rate of $100 a month in summer and twice that in winter.

Sullivan denied any payoffs when he took the stand. But he had a tougher time when Committee Counsel Rudolph Halley started to delve into his personal finances.

It appeared from records produced that Sullivan's assets skyrocketed shortly after, in 1944, he became sheriff of this populous and frequently wide-open county. At present, the place is closed down, as far as gambling is concerned, at least until the committee gets out of town.

Sullivan in 1944 stated in a loan application that his net worth was around $2500 or $3000, Halley brought out. By the end of 1948 he was worth around $70,000.

Sullivan declared that in the period from 1944-50 his income from salary was $51,343, from real estate deals $30,469, and from other sources $12,124, for a total of $93,937. This, he said, showed a net-worth increase of $40,000 in the period, which he said was reasonable.

Halley brought out also that the Bureau of Internal Revenue now is after Sullivan for failure to pay enough taxes in recent years. Kefauver then read a batch of figures to show that Sullivan's original tax returns for 1943 through 1948 were some $50,000 less than a set of amended returns recently filed for that period.

Explains "Mistakes"

Sullivan explained this was due to "mistakes" and "inadequacies" of an accountant. He produced a recent check purporting to be part payment for money he had paid the accountant, but which the accountant had failed to send Uncle Sam.

He amused the packed courthouse audience by saying he had decided to include in the amended returns some $5000 in campaign contributions "left over" from his 1944 race and another $5000 from 1948.

Asked by Halley if he just stuck the money in his pocket, the sheriff, wiping his perspiring face, said "sure."

The biggest laugh of the day came when he told Kefauver that in keeping large amounts of cash around his house he kept the money "rolled up in an old blanket on the shelf." Then he quickly added that at one time he had $12,000 in cash in a fishing box.

Race News Wire Stopped In 28 E. St. Louis Places

St. Louis, July 14 (U.P.).—Western Union racing news tickers were stilled in 28 East St. Louis handbooks today by orders of Illinois Gov. Adlai Stevenson and local authorities in St. Clair and Madison Counties.

Harry Vermillion, Western Union superintendent here, said facilities of the Pioneer News Service, which serves St. Louis area bookies with race results, were shut off in Illinois late yesterday.

The notices informed Western Union the race wires were being used for illegal purposes, making discontinuance mandatory under Federal Communication Commission regulations because the notices came from "proper authority."

Pioneer News, is the St. Louis outlet for Continental Press service which has been under investigation by the U. S. Senate Crime Investigating Committee. The firm is headed by William Brown and William Molasky, the latter a major stockholder in Western Union.

Slot Machines Become Illegal in California

San Francisco, July 14 (AP).—Possession of slot machines becomes illegal in California at midnight tonight.

Most are being shipped to Nevada, where they are legal. They were replaced with pinball machines, legal in California.

In a last-day rush by operators to dispose of slot machines, one San Franciscan unloaded 50 on a city dump.

The Legislature totally outlawed the slots. Previously, it was necessary to prove they were being used for gambling.

Adventists Elect Officers at Parley

San Francisco, July 14 (AP).—Seventh-Day Adventists today chose a Canadian and a South American as vice presidents.

Elected at the forty-sixth quadriennial world conference were H. L. Rudy, formerly president of the Canadian Union Conference, Oshawa, Ontario, Canada, and R. R. Figuhr of Buenos Aires.

Three vice presidents from Washington, D. C., were reelected: L. K. Dickson, A. V. Olson and W. B. Ochs.

The conference previously had elected William K. Branson, of Hongkong, as president.

E. D. Dick, Washington, D. C., was reelected secretary. C. L. Torrey, formerly president of the Southern California Conference, Los Angeles, was elected treasurer. E. J. Johanson, Washington, D. C., former assistant treasurer, was elected statistical secretary.

English is gradually becoming regarded as the language of the International Seventh Day Adventist movement, a church spokesman said today.

Leroy E. Froom, secretary of the Adventists, Ministerial Association, made that report to the 46th world conference of the church.

A steadily rising number of such workers are learning English so they may read the church's books and periodicals published in English, he added.

A report on the church's colored department was readied by George N. Peters, Department Secretary, for presentation later today.

Vice President Dickson told seven thousand church members in a civic auditorium address today there is need for a "highly revival of spiritual life and power" on a scale of the middle ages Protestant reformation.

These were high lights gleaned from new reports:

North Ameircan colored department—membership growing at rate of more than 1000 a year; last year totalled 25,041 who contributed $4,828,246. Today the world conference voted to establish a national field secretaryship for colored division.

Central European Division: Now confined to territory of Germany; 55 war-destroyed churches reconstructed or rebuilt in past four years.

South American Division: The 39 Adventist elementary schools have 16,719 students enrolled; 12 academies 1628 students.

Medical Department: New hospitals and sanitariums are under construction in Puerto Rico, lower Amazon, South Africa, northern Rhodesia, Uganda, Baghdad and Karachi.

Schnabel Tells of Fear In Europe

There is a tremendous sense of frustration and fear in Europe today, the Rev. George E. Schnabel minister of Albright Memorial Church said this week after returning from an extended tour in Germany, France, England, Belgium and Switzerland.

Schnabel

"Almost everybody I talked to over there felt that a war was due."

Mr. Schnabel covered over 4000 miles of Germany and was in Berlin on May 28 for the tremendous Eastern zone youth rally.

In the West German Republic, he talked with President Frederick Huess for over an hour, and brought back this message:

"Tell Americans to have confidence in the future of Germany," President Huess told Mr. Schnabel.

Mr. Schnabel will return to the pulpit at Albright Memorial Church, 4th and Rittenhouse sts. nw., at 10:30 a. m. service on Sunday. His subject will be "The Appeal to God."

Couple Celebrates Anniversary

WED 66 YEARS—Doctors Daniel H., 88, and Lauretta Kress, 87, formerly physicians at the Washington Sanitarium, now retired, celebrated their sixty-sixth wedding anniversary on the opening day of the Seventh-day Adventist Conference in San Francisco. Elder and Mrs. F. M. Wilcox (at left) extend their congratulations at a reception given in honor of the couple

Dr. Hastings To Give Talks At Conference

A series of vesper talks on "Christianity and Today's Problems," by the Rev. Dr. J. Warren Hastings, pastor of National City Church, 14th and Thomas Circle nw., will be heard next week by the annual Adult Conference of the Disciples of Christ Churches at Bethany Beach, Del.

Fifty men and women from the Washington area are registered to attend the second week of the conference, Sunday through Saturday, July 22. The youth meetings will en dtoday.

"Recreation and study will be combined to prepare the group for leadership in local churches," the Rev. Wilbur Hogevoll, chairman of the Adult Committee on Christian Education for the Capitol area," announced.

The Rev. Dr. J. Lloyd Black of Ninth Street Christian Church is president of the Adult Conference.

Baptists to Go To Cleveland For Congress

Baptists from all over the world will assemble in the huge Cleveland public auditorium for the Eighth Baptist World Congress, July 22-27.

More than 100 Washingtonians will be among the 20,000 delegates from 52 nations, representing 16 million Baptists in churches throughout the world.

A roll-call of nations, a pagaent portraying the struggle for religious freedom "The Light Through Liberty," with a cast of 1000, and a chorus of 5000 voices will be highlights of the program.

President Truman is expected to speak at the Saturday night mass meeting, but because of the present crisis his plans must remain indefinite.

Among the visitors from Washington will be: the Rev. Dr. Arnold T. Ohrn, First Baptist Church, general secretary of the Baptist World Alliance; the Rev. Dr. M. C. Stith, executive secretary of the D. C. Baptist Convention; the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. E. B. Willingham, National Baptist Memorial Church; the Rev. Dr. Edward H. Pruden, First Baptist Church, and the Rev. Dr. W. B. Hurlburt, Brookland Church.

The chorus of Calvary Baptist Church, 8th and H sts. nw., will be the only church choir group presenting a program of hymns and church music. Under the direction of Clyde J. Holt, a one-half hour program of Palestrina, Bach, Mendelssohn and Negro spiritual selections will be heard on Monday, July 24.

Religious leaders addressing the delegates include: Dr. C. Oscar Johnson of St. Louis, president of the Baptist World Alliance; Dr. Johannes Norgaard, president of the Danish Theological Seminary and vice president of the Alliance; the Rev. Dr. M. E. Aubrey of London, England, president of the Baptist Union of Great Britain and Ireland, and Dr. Benjamin Mays, president of Moorehouse College, Atlanta, Ga.

Dr. W. F. Henricks To Be at Cathedral

Rev. Dr. W. F. Henricks of Mohawk, N. Y., is scheduled to speak at the 11 a. m. service Sunday at the Washington Cathedral.

Holy Communion at both 7:30 a. m. and 9:30 a. m. will be celebrated in Bethlehem Chapel for the remainder of the summer.

The Rev. A. E. Taylor, rector of St. David's Episcopal Church, 5150 Macomb st. nw., wil conduct an evensong service at 4 p. m.

Youth Groups to Picnic

The youth groups of three churches have scheduled a picnic and Vesper Service at Great Falls from 4 p. m. to 8:30 p. m. Sunday. The Western Presbyterian Church, Concordia Lutheran and Union Methodist churches are cooperating. The Rev. Dr. John C. Millian, newly appointed superintendent of the West-Washington District of the Methodist Church, will be guest speaker at 7:30 p. m.

'Christmas in July' Services Planned at Calvary Baptist

Christmas comes early at the Calvary Baptist Church, 8th and H sts. nw.

On Sunday at the 9 a. m. and 11:15 a. m. services, the Rev. Dr. Clarence W. Cranford will officiate at the annual "Christmas in July" observance.

A chorus of carolling and anthems of "glad tidings" will replace the usual church hymns.

Celebrating the Yuletide in the heat of summer originally started when Dr. Cranford was a pastor in Pennsylvania during the war years. Christmas gifts for missionaries overseas had to be wrapped and ready my mid-July, and a special colection of food and clothing was taken up to fill the boxes.

In 1942, when Dr. Cranford came to Calvary he brought the idea with him. The offerings received one year were used to have a Haitian teacher on the job at a Baptist mission by Christmas. One year the collection furnished a room at the George Washington University Hospital.

Last July a dollar was asked of each communicant to be used for general missionary work of the denomination.

This year the annual donations will be used to finance a mission in the outlying area of Washington. Part will go to meet the expenses of sending foreign missionaries now at the congress in Cleveland to the Baptist World Aliance Travelcade and Fellowship Conference, July 29 to August 1.

"I wasn't going to have it this year," Dr. Cranford said, "but the people seem to like the idea."

Dr. L. H. Evans To Speak at Services Here

The pastor of the Nation's largest Presbyterian Church with a membership of 5000, the Rev. Dr. Louis H. Evans of Hollywood, Calif., will be guest speaker at 9 and 11 a. m. Sunday services, the National Presbyterian Church announced yesterday.

Dr. Evans

Dr. Evans is widely known for his interest in youth activities. Being in the film capital, he is also an enthusiast for good religious films, and is West Coast chairman of the Protestant Film Commission. He is also president of the California Temperance Federation.

His address to the congregation at Connecticut ave. and N st. nw. is entitled "And They Ran."

Calvary Methodist Plans Bach Program

In commemoration of the 200th anniversary of the death of Johann S. Bach, a special program has been planned at the Calvary Methodist Church, 1459-63 Columbia rd. nw., at 8:15 p. m., Sunday.

Temple Gunn, organist, will speak on the life and works of Bach and William Watkins, organist of New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, will play six of Bach's organ works. At the 8:45 a. m. and 11 a. m. services, the Rev. Orris G. Robinson, pastor, will preach on "The Road Ahead."

Mormons Will Mark 1847 Arrival in Utah

A "Pioneer Day" celebration, commemorating the Mormons' arrival in Salt Lake Valley on July 24, 1847, will be held at the Bethesda-Chevy Chase Recreation Center next Saturday at 2 p. m.

Members of the Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter Day Saints and the Utah State Society will attend, the organizations have announced.

By Catholics

Mt. Carmel Day To Be Observed

Roman Catholics will observe the feast of Our Lady of Mount Carmel at churches throughout the city Sunday.

The Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle will celebrate Pontifical Mass at the Discalced Carmelite Monastery, 2131 Lincoln rd. ne. It will be offered in commemoration of the 700th anniversary of the giving of the Brown Scapular of Our Lady of Mount Carmel by the Blessed Virgin to St. Simon Stock, an English saint.

According to tradition, the Mother of Christ promised special protection and grace of happy death to all who would wear the Brown Scapular, reciting special prayers and performing good works.

The Rev. Ferrer Smith, O.P., of Dominican College, Catholic University, will preach.

On the Catholic University grounds, a procession of priests, nuns, seminarians and laymen will file in procession around the campus at 10:30 a. m. as a statue of Our Lady of Mount Carmel is carried aloft. A solemn high mass in the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception will be celebrated at 11 a. m.

The Most Rev. Hilary M. Doswald, O. Carm., former prior general of the Carmelite Order, will act as celebrant. The Revs. Nevin Hayes and Campion Doyle, O. Carms., of Chicago, will be deacon and subdeacon. The professor of history at St. John's Abbey in Collegeville, Minnesota, the Rev. Dr. Godfrey Dickman, O.S.B., will deliver the sermon.

Scout Troops to Get Charter at Church

Newly organized Boy Scout Troop No. 622 will be presented with an official charter at the First Presbyterian Church of Arlington, on Sunday at 11 a. m., the Rev. George H. Yount, pastor, announced yesterday.

The troop of 12 is under the leadership of Scoutmaster Ray Evans, jr., of 617 N. Abingdon st. N., Arlington, Va.

C. D. Beaschler Gets Louisiana Music Post

Charles Dana Beaschler will leave Washington today to become minister of music at the First Presbyterian Church at Baton Rouge, La.

Beaschler

After 11 years as music director of New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, his achievements include both wide civic and church work.

At the invitation of the late Dr. Peter Marshall he came to Washington in 1939. Within three months he organized a choir of 100 voices and presented "The Messiah."

"I've always tried to bring church music up to the same level as concert music," he reflected yesterday. This he accomplished in a series, "The Great Music of the Church," drawing from Bach, Palestrina, Verdi and Handel Mr. Beaschler's choirs have sung with the National Symphony, at the National Art Gallery concerts, and with the Army Air Bands.

Fifty transcriptions of religious music which he and his groups recorded for Navy Chaplains are heard at religious services on every ship in the United States.

In 1948 he studied under Serge Koussevitsky, Boston Symphony conducter, at the Berkshire Music Center in Massachusetts. Previously, he attended conservatories of music in Toledo, Cincinnati and Ithaca, and did postgraduate work at Princeton in 1935. He started playing the piano at 9, conducted a symphony and chorus at 18, besides learning violin and organ.

Mr. Beaschler has accepted an appointment to a larger church, 3000 in the congregation, and will immediately start organizing a new choir group.

Catholic Church In Silver Spring Plans New Edifice

St. Michael's Roman Catholic Church on Wayne ave. between Cedar and Fenton sts., Silver Spring, has announced plans for a new church building.

Although the sketches have not yet been drawn, the Rev. Joseph J. Deppe, pastor, said the building will probably be brick colonial, subject to approval by the archdiocese.

Estimated cost of building is $300,000, with $85,000 added for furnishings. A seating capacity of around 700 is anticipated.

The reason for building now, Father Deppe said, is the overcrowded condition of the present church which seats only 450.

'Heins Day' Set In Arlington

Sunday will be "Conrad Heins Day" at the Arlington Methodist Church.

The Rev. Mr. Heins will arrive home with his family for a "year's furlough" before returning again to serve as missionaries in India.

A reception for the Heins family in Fellowship Hall will be held at 8 p. m. Sunday, the Arlington Church Board announced yesterday. Friends and parishioners are invited.

Mr. Heins will speak of his experiences in India at the 9:30 and 11 a. m. services. The Rev. Harry Wardell Backhus, minister, will conduct both services.

Church Council Votes White-Negro Mission To Help Solve South African Race Problem

Toronto, Ontario, July 14 (AP).—The World Council of Churches voted unanimously today to send a delegation of whites and Negroes to South Africa to help seek a solution of the race problem there.

The policy-making central committee of the council, the largest international body of Protestant and Orthodox faiths, agreed to the action after prolonged debate at its annual meeting on the University of Toronto campus.

How the Dutch Reformed Church in South Africa would react to inclusion of Negroes was uncertain. South African and some European delegates sought to sidestep the issue.

In spearheading the move for inclusion of Negroes, Dr. Benjamin E. Mays, Negro president of Morehouse College, Atlanta, Ga., declared:

"The Dutch Reformed Church's support of segregation (in South Africa) is a gross misinterpretation of scripture and theology. They are doing nothing but laying the foundation of communism in South Africa."

Mays, a representative of the National Baptist Convention, said he wished to speak for 8,000,000 Bantus in South Africa "who never have a chance to speak for themselves." He declared the 2,000,000 Europeans in South Africa represent "a mighty minority imposing its will."

At least in the United States the racial situation isn't geting worse," he said, while in South Africa, he declared, it is deteriorating rapidly.

Dr. D. J. Marais, a representative of the Dutch Reformed Church in the Transvaal, expressed disagreement. He said he had explained at a closed session earlier this week why a white delegation should be sent to South Africa.

Dr. J. Earl Moreland of Ashland, Va., president of Randolph Macon College and a delegate of the Methodist Church, indorsed Mays' views.

Annecy People to Give Bell to Independence

The people of Independence, Mo., President Truman's home town, are to get a Liberty Bell reproduction as a gift from the people of Annecy-le-Vieux, Haute Savoi, France.

Secretary of the Treasury Snyder made the announcement yesterday after receiving a cablegram from Annecy, where 53 Liberty Bell reproductions were cast for display in the United States during the May 15-July 4 independence savings bond drive.

The bell will be delivered in September, Snyder said.

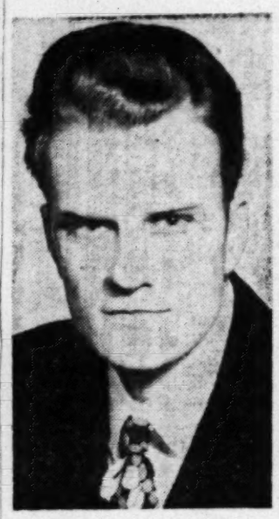
Evangelist Prays With Mr. Truman



EVANGELIST GRAHAM

eyes and wide armspread of the good evangelist.

"I came to Washington just to see the President," he said. Next he returns to his home town to address a crowd of 10,000, and then he goes to Portland, Oreg., "to begin a campaign" against sin in that city.

Graham said he launches his "campaigns" at the request of local clergymen, business and civic groups, and officials.

These meetings are no emotional orgies, Graham said firmly. "Nobody says hallelujah. I'm appealing to a higher type of social strata. There's no showmanship—just a simple service."

Graham dresses up his scripture in good, twentieth century idiom, and takes a dim view of sin.

In the President's study, he said he told Mr. Truman that the "sins of the country could bring about the destruction of this country."

Once Rebellious

Graham's explanation of how he "came to Jesus Christ" is simple. The son of strict Presbyterian parents (his father ran a dairy farm) "I was rebellious about religion." He milked cows and played first base for a semi-pro team.

Then, aged 17, he attended a Baptist revival meeting and despite himself, "I came to God." There was no emotion mixed with the feeling—"It was a simple assent of mind and heart to Christ."

His first revival meeting came several years later in Florida, and he's been an evangelist ever since. His largest estimated crowd: 50,000 in Boston, Mass., last April.

Rector Quits Grace Church For New Post

The Rev. Francis M. Hamilton has resigned as rector of Grace Episcopal Church in Silver Spring to accept a parish at Immanuel Episcopal Church, New Castle, Del.

Mr. Hamilton

The Rev. Mr. Hamilton said he had accepted the new charge because of an increase both in r esponsibilities and opportunities there. He will conduct services at Grace Episcopal Church here for the last time on Sunday—and will assume his new duties in New Castle September 1.

The minister said the vestry of the Silver Spring church has not yet selected his successor.

Mr. Hamilton, who is 46, is married and has a 15-year-old daughter, Eva Frances, who is a student at the National Cathedral School for Girls.

A native of Corpus Christi, Tex., he was educated privately for the ministry following college and a successful business career.

Among his charges have been that of rector of the combined parish of Sequin and San Marcos, curate and director of Christian education of the Church of the Good Shepherd in Corpus Christi, all in South Texas, and rector of St. Mark's-on-the-Hill, Pikesville, Md.

He came to the Silver Spring church in 1946.

The New Castle Church is in a parish in existence since 1689. The town was the site of the landing of William Penn and is largely a residential community, Mr. Hamilton said.

Scates Gets Preaching Mission Job

Malcolm Scates, 136 Jefferson st. nw., has accepted the chairmanship of the committee on clubs for the Greater Washington Preaching Mission to be held October 29 through November 3.

Thirty-one Christian leaders will speak that week to clubs and professional groups in 19 areas of the city, the Washington Federation of Churches has announced.

Other members of the club committee include: Walter M. Bird, Mrs. Lewis M. Firey, Walter V. Lund, William F. Dismer, jr., George A. Watson, the Rev. C. Randolph Mengers, George V. Whitton, L. T. Goodman, Joseph E. Beard, Smith H. Purdum, James Warren, the Rev. George M. Anderson, R. I. Hite, Grace R. Lovell, the Rev. Dr. C. T. Murray, the Rev. Robert L. Whittenburg, Clara Chism and Frank Kimmell.

8 Arms Barges Blow Up, Start British Port Fire

Gosport, England, July 14 (AP).—Eight ammunition loading barges exploded tonight and started a raging harbor fire near a munitions depot at this English Channel port.

The blasts scattered live ammunition for at least three miles. Only seven persons were reported to have been injured, none seriously.

A British Admiralty spokesman declined to speculate on the cause of the explosions. No one was known to have been on the 50-foot barges. An unconfirmed report by the navy said a loading gang had been at work on the first barge that caught fire but got off just in time.

One of the explosions tore down a 100-foot section of a warehouse and ammunition depot. With the fires out, police and navy men still were searching the debris for possible victims late tonight.

A. J. Moore, Named Head of Reciprocity Club

A. Jasper Moore has been named president of the Reciprocity Club of Washington, it was announced yesterday.

Moore is vice president and manager of the sales department at Shannon & Luchs.

Other officers named were Lloyd J. Ankeny, of Trew Motor Co., vice president; Julian Scott, of the First Federal Building and Loan Association, treasurer; Werner M. Schoenfelder, of W. M. Schoenfelder, Inc., corresponding secretary; and Charles W. Hacknew, of the Minnesota Mutual Life Insurance Co., recording secretary.

Rewiring of Schools Hits Snag; Bids High

A project to rewire Armstrong, Dunbar and Cardozo (formerly Central) High schools from direct to alternating electric current has hit a snag because the onl ybid on the contract was higher than funds available.

Victor T. Givotovsky, chief of the structural division in the Municipal Architect's office, said specifications are being rewritten to cut costs and will be advertised shortly for bids. He said it was hoped that the change over could be completed this summer, but that the work can be finished up while school is in session.

Catholic U. Sued By Injured Student

A 21-year-old architectural student sued Catholic University for $15,000 yesterday for injuries he said he suffered when hit on the head by a falling light globe.

Leon A. Ransom, jr., 1233 Irving st. nw., alleged that the globe smashed on his head as he was walking through the University drafting room on January 12.

Navy Doctor Finishes Hitch Aiding Lepers in South Sea

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

A Washington-trained Navy doctor returned here yesterday, fresh from two years of doctoring the lepers of some 120 Pacific islands.

He is Lieut. (j.g.) Jack William Millar, graduate of George Washington University Medical School, who interned at the Naval Medical Center, Bethesda, Md.

Meeting the press with a hearty handshake, he stressed that the unwholesome disease is the "least infectious" of all diseases, and grossly maligned by many religions.

No one has yet refused to take his hand, but many of his old friends have looked at him askance, he said with a smile.

"They needn't though," he added, "I wouldn't know how to infect myself with leprosy even if I wanted to. A number of medical volunteers have tried it in the interest of the science, and all have failed."

Volunteered for Duty

Dr. Millar, who volunteered for duty when he knew about leprosy came from a one-hour lecture on the subject during his GWU days said he's learned a lot about it since.

For instance, he said, not only Christians, but followers of most religions, have long regarded leprosy as a punishment for "sins of the fathers." It isn't so, nor is it so, as some Chinese believe, that leprosy is a venereal disease.

The doctors aren't sure just how one does get the disease, he said, but do believe that it comes from skin contacts of perhaps years, and is often transmitted to children by their leprous mothers. In the Navy-operated leprosarium on Tinian Island, where he served, the babies of lepers are saved from the disease by immediate isolation from their mothers. In leper colonies where this is not practiced, he said, up to 40 percent of the babies become diseased.

First to Serve

Dr. Millar was the first doctor to serve the Tinian Leprosarium, operated by the Navy for the Trust Territory. The territory comprises some 5000 islands, of which some 120 are populated. The total population, he said, runs about 53,000.

The movie version of people discovering the horrible fact that they have incurred the disease (by not feeling the flame of a burning candle) is basically a good one, Dr. Millar said. Most of his troubles came from unfelt burns.

His patients, he explained, would burn their fingers on cigarettes they were holding, or burn themselves severely on hot pans, because the disease made them insensitive to the heat.

One of the first things he did after he got to the leprosarium, he said, was to order all the hot water turned off. Too many patients were reporting for treatment for scalded hands and backs because they kept under the water till it "felt warm to them."

. . . worked among lepers

For their disease, he administered two sulfon drugs, Promin and Diazone, which are given either orally or injected into the veins. The drugs, he said, act against the disease in long-range treatment, and may "arrest" leprosy in some 18 months. Leprosy, like cancer, is never claimed to be cured.

Eventually, he said, many of the patients may be permitted to return to their homes. More probably, he said, they won't want to go. Life on their share of Tinian Island is heaven to them compared to the life they led as outcasts of their own people.

Dr. Millar has been reassigned to duty at the Harvard University School of Public Health, where he hopes to get a Doctor of Public Health degree. For his thesis, he plans to write about—

Leprosy.

Ring to Sell Arlington Apt. Development

The 665-unit Arlington Village Apartments are to be sold to the New England Mutual Life Insurance Co. of Boston, Gustave Ring, president of Arlington Village, Inc., said yesterday.

The transaction should be completed by July 27, when the Boston insurance company will take over operation of the 13-year-old apartment development, he said.

The insurance company arranged to acquire the property from the stockholders of Arlington Village, Inc., at a price of a little under five million dollars, according to Ring.

He said he understood the Boston company plans to handle the development as a long-term investment. Frank S. Phillips, Washington realtor, who has been handling the purchase for the company, said he could not comment on whether rents will be affected, since he is serving only as the real estate broker in the transaction.

Ring, who is also president of Colonial Village, Inc., said that apartment development is not involved in the transaction and is not up for sale.

Va. Law School Rejects Negro Applicant

Charlottesville, Va., July 14 (AP).—A Negro graduate law student's application for admission was turned down by the University of Virginia today in the face of a plain warning from the attorney general its decision wouldn't stand up in the Federal courts.

The University Board of Visitors voted in a closed session to reject the application of Gregory Swanson, a graduate of Howard University in Washington, who is now practicing law at Martinsville, Va.

Barron Black of Norfolk, rector of the board, announced the decision of the group in a terse formal statement.

The board rejected the application, he said, because the applicant is a colored man and the Virginia constitution and laws of the State prohibit the teaching of white and colored in the same schools.

However, there was a sharp variance between the board's interpretation of the law and the opinion that Attorney General J. Lindsay Almond, jr., provided at the request of University President Colgate W. Darden, jr.

The board had this opinion before it at the three-hour meeting which went on in a climate of sharp awareness that recent United States Supreme Court decisions have forced both Oklahoma and Texas to admit Negro students to institutions of higher learning.

But aside from the Supreme Court rulings which he saw as almost certainly indicating what would happen in Virginia if Swanson contests the issue, Almond had this to say: There is "grave doubt" to him whether Virginia law on school segregation would apply to graduate schools such as those here at the University of Virginia.

Almond noted that section 140 of the State constitution says "white and colored children shall not be taught in the same school." This reference to "children" follows sections relating to education and public instruction and not to institutions of professional and graduate education.

He conceded that certain Virginia statutes substitute the word "persons" for "children." But here again he said the lawmakers were speaking about the public free schools and not State-supported institutions of higher learning.

Gas, Electric Use Here Sets 6-Month Peak

By S. Oliver Goodman

Two Washington utilities yesterday reported record sales for June and the first six months this year.

Washington Gas Light Co's output last month totaled 10,178,797 therms, an increase of 12.45 percent over the 9,051,469 in the same 1949 month. Sales for the first six months aggregated 112,296,893 therms, an upsurge of 23 percent over the 91,280,631 a year ago.

Potomac Electric Power Co. reported June sales of 178,355,006 kilowatt hours, a gain of 6.29 percent over the same month last year. Six-month output was 1,073,122,761 kilowatt hours, up 5.66 percent.

Colder weather this year and increased number of meters in service helped the gas company.

Pepco likewise was benefitted by a larger number of customers; also increased use of electrical energy per household.

Both utilities have engaged in extensive expansion programs, running into many millions of dollars, especially in the suburban areas.

STORE SALES: Washington department store sales in week ended July 8 dipped 2 percent under the like 1949 period, the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond reported. This compared with a gain of 1 percent for the Fifth District and a 7 percent increase throughout the Nation..

NEW MANAGER: William J. Link has become manager of The Prudential Insurance Co.'s district office in the Rock Creek Park section. He succeeds Samuel G. Keery, who retired after 39 years service with the firm. A luncheon at the Statler introduced Link to his staff of 42 agents who service more than $52 million insurance. Link came to Washington after 25 years in Prudential's home office in Newark. For the past year he has been directing district office operations in the southeast part of the country.

NEW RECORDS: United Air Lines reported it broke all its own records for passengers and cargo in the first half of the year. More than one million passengers flown was an increase of 7½ percent over the January-June, 1949, the company said, while the estimated 650 million revenue passenger miles was a rise of 3½ percent.

WHO'S WHO TODAY: F. E. Byers, former Pittsburgh zone manager, has been named assistant manager of Chevrolet's eastern region with headquarters in Washington. He succeeds L. H. Averill, who has been promoted to manager of the Detroit central office . . . Cecil MacCoy has been named assistant vice president of the New York Stock Exchange and will direct the market's public relations . . . Roy C. McGuiness of Washington ranked first among production leaders of the Home Life Insurance, New York, in the first six months . . . Dr. L. P. Seyb has been appointed research manager for Diamond Alkali Co.

HUGHES' DEAL: Examiner Edward T. Stodola recommended the Civil Aeronautics Board approve a deal under which Howard Hughes increased his holding of Trans World Airline common stock to 73 percent. The board approved control of TWA by Hughes, millionaire manufacturer, motion picture producer and aviator, some years ago when Hughes Tool Co. acquired about 46 percent. The increase to 73 percent resulted from a ten million dollar loan in January, 1947, which was convertible to common stock at $10 a share.

RAIL HEARING: The Southern Railway contended yesterday it would be financially harmed if the Atlantic Coast Line (ACL) Railroad is permitted to acquire the bankrupt Florida East Coast (FEC) Railroad. Sidney S. Alderman, chief counsel for Southern, told the Interstate Commerce Commission that his road has a substantial interchange of traffic with East Coast. Should Atlantic win control of FEC, Alderman said, the probable result would be that a large proportion of the present interchange woud be diverted, thereby "depriving Southern of substantial revenues which it now enjoys."

EARNING: Sunray Oil Corp. reported net income of $7,690,000 or $1.33 a share for the six months ended June 30, compared with $4,976,000 or 80 cents a share in same 1949 period. Other earnings statements:

Family Friend Held As Detroit Strangler

Sampson Mrs. Stanley

Detroit, July 14 (U.P.).—A "good friend of the family" today admitted that he strangled an attractive housewife with his own belt because she put private detectives on the trail of him and another woman.

Police said Sam (Buddy) Sampson, 42-year-old neighborhood grocer, admitted he killed Mrs. Vivian Stanley, 37, whose body, clad only in a nightgown and short coat, was found in a weed-choked lot near her home.

Police said the husky grocer changed his story of innocence after three lie detector tests showed "he wasn't telling us the truth." Sampson had maintained he was spending the night with another woman.

According to his revised story, police said Sampson was driving with the other woman when they noticed they were being followed by an automobile. Sampson said they stopped the auto, talked to the men in it and discovered they were detectives hired by Mrs. Stanley.

Police quoted Sampson as saying he let the other woman out at her home and went to call on Mrs. Stanley. Her husband was fishing in Canada. She agreed to go driving with him, Sampson said. She left her daughter, Lucy, 7, with a neighbor.

"We got into a big argument over the private eyes she put on me," Sampson said. "And then she slapped me and hit me with her purse.

"I hit her with my hand, driving her head back against the door. Then I put her head into a pillow to muffle her screams with one hand and took off my leather belt with the other. I put the belt around her neck and tightened it . . ."

Earlier, Sampson told police he was present when the slaying was committed, but "another man" did it.

Mrs. Stanley's husband, Crawford, returned from a fishing trip with his 14-year-old son today and said he knew of no reason why Sampson should kill his wife.

"Why, he used to bring his children over to our house," Stanley said. "I considered him a good friend of the family."

2 Detectives Slain Seeking Holdup Clew

Chicago, July 14 (AP).—Two detectives sent to question a man about a robbery were shot down by a hail of gunfire in a West Side home today. T hey died a short time later.

Several hours later, police seized Bernie Davis, 28, three miles from the scene of the shooting. He was held without charge.

The slain officers, Edward T. Crowley, 41, and Donald E. McCormick, 41, had sought to question the man about a loan office robbery at Weirton, W. Va.

Detective Patrick Driscoll said a man believed to be Davis jumped from a window after the shooting and commandeered a car, which was recovered later.

Police held Davis' wife, Dolores, 18, without charge for questioning.

Crowley, brother of Superior Court Judge Wilbert F. Crowley, and McCormick, went to the address with Driscoll, who remained outside in the car.

A few minutes elapsed, Driscoll said, then a fusillade of shots echoed from the building. He rushed inside to find his fellow officers slumped on the stairway between the first and second floors. They died soon after reaching a hospital.

Crowley had been wounded in the mouth, stomach and thigh.

Hair Strands Are Clew In Slaying of Girl, 3

Louisville, Ky., July 14 (U.P.).—Police today sought to identify the slayer of a 3-year-old girl by strands of hair she apparently tore from the killer's head.

The beaten body of Joyce Joan Shouse was found yesterday under a truck-loading platform after a six-day search. Coroner George F. Dwyer said the decomposed state of the body prevented police from verifying their earlier belief that the child had been burned.

Oklahoma City police released a 47-year-old man who had been questioned in connection with the case. The man said he left Louisville July 6, the day before Joyce disappeared.

She was last seen alive Friday at 11:30 p. m. when she toddled out of a skidrow saloon where her mother, Mrs. Florine Shouse and a man were drinking beer. The child's mother was charged with drunkenness, disorderly conduct and contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

Sergt. York Recovered

Pall Mall, Tenn., July 14 (U.P.).—Sergt. Alvin C. York, the Nation's outstanding soldier in World War I, apparently had recovered today from a recent attack of virus pneumonia and a heart ailment. He walked around the grounds of his residence here.

One on the Aisle—

Yes, Yes, Yvette Is Booming Still

By Richard L. Coe

YVETTE, that well-whittled female tenor, headlines the new Capitol stage bill which, though it may lack the namey pull of last week's, seems to me an excellent variety hour.

It's also got more entertainment value than "Sierra," a slow-moving though unusual story of the Inevitable West, with Audie Murphy, Burl Ives and Wanda Hendrix, on the Technicolor screen.

The blonde architecture and fruity low notes of Yvette have now been kicking around about a full decade and the girl certainly can sell a song. I was covering radio when the big chain drug up this lass from Louisiana, as I recall it, and they beat the drums loud. She's been on and off the air, but usually working, and I'd say she's learned a lot.

Aided by cagey use of the mike, Miss Yvette's tones are more rugged than many a tenor, a fact she doesn't seem prone to hide, since she slips in a moment of Caruso singing Pagliacci. In a gown of various crimsons which embraces her more from discipline than the laws of gravity, she strikes poses of gladiatorial expanse that would give ideas to the bulgers of "Strength and Health" magazine.

This week she's singing "I Wish I Were in Love Again," "La Vie en Rose" (in, as she tells you, English AND French) and "You're Much Older Than I." She hurls them across the plate with such unwavering accuracy that I suggest the Boston Red Sox look her up as a Ted Williams replacement.

Another favorite act of mine is on the bill, the Evans Family, brother, sister, father and mother. This energetic foursome always strikes me as the ideal of vaudeville families, tapping till their legs must ache, making room for father and mother and seeming to embody the reason why they keep on making those backstage Technicolor musicals at Twentieth Century-Fox. I had the feeling son and mother were a bit anxious about dad and I hope he's feeling okay.

Also "Sierra"

The comedy act also provides a welcome relief from the accepted norm; we get two guys instead of the usual "I-Wuz-Walking-over-from-the-hotel" single. These are Benton and Mann and they have an easy punch.

Opening act is good, too, the Ruddells, who bounce up and down on the tarpaulin with enviable skill and good humor. In the midst of things Sam Jack Kaufman leads his band in their "even year" version of the "Poet and Peasant" overture. It's been rearranged since '48 and gosh knows what it will be like in '52.

"Sierra" shows you Audie Murphy as the son of Dean Jagger, who's been hiding out in the Utah mountains since son was a child because the law thinks Dean's a murderer. They earn their feed, hidden away in the hills, by taming wild horses which Burl Ives sells for them. Wanda Hendrix wandas into their retreat, bringing Audie unwillingly up against the outer world. He gets thrown in jail, but you're not surprised that later, rather than sooner, he clears pop's name and his own. Ives sings some of his folk songs pleasantly, but it's not a lively entertainment.

THE LITTLE has embarked on another of its double summer bills, this time two musicals: "The Wizard of Oz," wherein Judy Garland scored her first big triumph, and "The Unfinished Dance," Metro's version of that prewar French dance film, "Ballerina;" in the West Coast version were Margaret O'Brien, Cyrd Charisse and Karen Booth.

THE MOUNTAIN Theater of Braddock Heights calls to suggest seeing Managing Director James Decker's "Harvey," at the hillside spot on Route 40 between Middletown and Frederick . . . Like the late Brock Pemberton, Decker just couldn't keep his mind on mere management when a chance came along to play Elwood P. Dowd . . . Reservations at The Smoke Shop, Frederick 2323.

GEORGE ADE'S classic comedy, "The College Widow," opened a week's run last night at Catholic University's campus theater . . . Bill Gold's enjoyment of the Warner's "sneak preview," "Union Station" is cheerful, but whatzhemean about Hollywood movies bein' so bum; I've seen at least 10 good ones this year, so, Bill, guess I'll have to write you a column about 'em in a week or so . . . The Apex bills Academy Award shorts winner "Van Gogh" Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

A YOUTHFUL Netherlander will be conducting the National Symphony at the Watergate Sunday night, Jurriaan Andriessen, 25 . . . The musical background he wrote for a documentary film on the Berkshire's Tanglewood became the basis for the ballet's "Jones Beach" and he's also done scores for "Hamlet" and "Morning Becomes Electra" . . . It will be Netherlands night at the Sesqui Symphony, with Fania Chapiro, a Netherlands pianist, who remarks she's never seen a movie.

THE FLYING WALLENDAS also are on the Cole Bros. Circus bill, closing the first half . . . All of Hopalong Cassidy's publicity has obscured some of the spotlight from other notables in the aggregation, but Con Colleano, the Wallendas and the Hanneford family are top-notchers of the big top world . . . There are two more performances today, 2:30 and 8:30 and one tomorrow, 2:30; no night performance Sunday.

"SIERRA." Universal-International release produced by Michel Kraike. Screen play by Edna Anhalt from a novel by Stuart Hardy. Photographed in Technicolor by Russell Metty. Music by Walter Schart. Songs by Burl Ives. Directed by Alfred E. Green.

Postlude

Swarthout Is Standout At Watergate Concert

By Paul Hume

The Belgian government and Gladys Swarthout combined to make last night's Watergate one of the summer's outstanding programs.

Fernand Quinet, director of the Conservatory of Lieges and conductor of the Lieges Orchestra, directed a distinguished group of works by Belgian Cesar Franck, and French Rabaud and Berlioz. Miss Swarthout, looking her most alluring, sang French opera arias and folk songs and American ballads.

Since yesterday was also Bastille Day, it was a three-way celebration of the most appropriate nature. Quinet led the National Symphony through the symphony of Farnck, who was born in Lieges where the conductor now lives and works.

He gave the familiar music with breath of feeling but kept it moving. It never succumbed to the pitfalls that can make it seem tedious. Even so, the middle movement seemed a bit drawn out at times. The finale was well paced, though its opening can be more headlong without undue haste.

Quinet seemed to have the understanding of the players throughout the symphony. Their tone was easy and warm, and the strings sounded sensitive and lifelike.

Rabaud's haunting Nocturnal Procession was a pleasant and delicately played novelty on the orchestra's programs.

Miss Swarthout brought back arias she introduced here last summer. Charlottte's passionate Letter Scene from Massenet's Werther is a hard piece to put over out of context. When taken with the noisier efforts of several airplanes, it fails to make its point.

The planes were at their worst last night. Four within a minute of one another interrupted the first movement of the Franck; the same number of planes almost as close together, spoiled much of the Rahaud. Two were not landing, but taking off. It seemed unnecessary that on such a windless an evening they had to fly directly over the barge.

In the Avergne songs, Miss Swarthout did some of her most beautiful singing. These songs are irresistible in their eloquent simplicity—the orchestration by Canteloube is sheer magic.

Poulenc's song about love, and some pretty bits of sentiment brought encores; these were the Carmen Habanera, and I Wonder as I Wander. The latter was changed from its usual harp accompaniment to orchestral background. The change was agreeable, but the final chord is a mistake.

Monsieur Quinet won himself increasing tributes from the audience as he progressed in his program. These were well deserved. We have real occasion to appreciate the generous cooperation of the Belgian Embassy in bringing over so fine a musical ambassador for our city's Sesquicentennial.

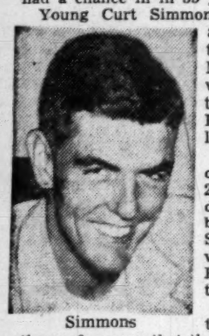
Simmons Goes to Guard Camp

Phils Lose Good Left Arm 2 Weeks

Philadelphia, July 14 (AP).—The pennant-driving Philadelphia Phillies ae going to lost their good left arm, come July 29. And it will happen right in the middle of the first flag scrap they've had a chance in in 35 years.

Young Curt Simmons, the $65,000 bonus southpaw pitching ace, leaves the team on the twenty-ninth of this month for a 14-day encampment with the National Guard at Indiantown Gap, Pa. It wouldn't be any exaggeration to say that the Phillies—currently leading the National League by two games—conceivably could lose the pennant while he's gone.



Simmons

There isn't a manager in the senior circuit who can afford to lose a potential 20-game winner in the heat of a hetic flag drive. No one is more aware of this ABC of baseball than Phillies' Skipper Eddie Sawyer. Frankly, he was as much concerned with this problem as he was the current Phillies' invasion of the West before the team left here last week.

Simmons already has won 11 games. And the way he's been winning makes it a better than safe wager that the 21-year-old Egypt, Pa., youth will win one or two before the fateful twenty-ninth rolls around.

In his last two starts, Curt turned back the best, beating the Cards, 3-2, and the Dodgers, 7-2.

During the period Curt is a soldier, the Phillies must play 17 games at home, against every team in the league with the exception of the Boston Braves. They take on the Cubs three times; Cincinnati in four games; Pittsburgh three times; St. Louis, their chief contention for the nennant at the moment for first place, in five games; Brooklyn twice and the New York Giants three times.

It is doubtful whether Simmons can be available for any of these games, especially with the current war situation.

Curt made the same trip the past two years, and in each case was lost to his team for two weeks.

A club spokesman indicated the Phillies would not ask any special favors for Simmons.

"It wouldn't be fair," he said. "It would be bad for Curt and the Phillies."

The case of Simmons is ironical. The Phillies have invested a lot of money in the development of the youngster. Their pennant hopes rest to a large degree on his performance this season. After three years of promise, Simmons finally is making good in 1950.

Of course, there is always the chance that one of Sawyer's other pitchers may come around and pick up the slack left when Simmons goes camping. Lefty Ken Heintzelman, a 17-game winner last year, has won only one game so far this season. Heintzelman has pitched good ball but played in more than his share of hard luck.

Sawyer looks at the 35-year-old Heintzelman and tries to tell himself that every cloud has a silver lining. Maybe, Heintzelman will be quick silver for Professor Eddie.

Lemon First To Win 13th As He Whips Yankees, 5-1

New York, July 14 (AP).—Bob Lemon became the first major league pitcher to win 13 games this season as he pitched the Cleveland Indians to a brilliant 5-1, three-hit victory over the New York Yankees tonight.

Lemon helped his own cause by banging a three-run homer in the eighth inning.

Lemon, who fanned eight, lost his shutout in the ninth inning when Johnny Mize homered.

The victory moved Cleveland to within half a game of the second-place Yanks.

Lemon drove the ball into the right field stands in the eighth after Joe Gordon had been hit by a pitched ball and Jim Hegan had walked. It was the third homer of the season for the Cleveland ace and the 18th off southpaw Tommy Byrne.

Browns' 3 Homers Earn Split With A's

Philadelphia, July 14 (AP).—Home runs by Roy Sievers, Owen Friend and Don Lenhardt carried the St. Louis Browns to a 5-2 victory and an even break with the Philadelphia Athletics in tonight's doubleheader.

The A's won the opener 3-2 when Clarence Marshall walked Sam Chapman with the bases loaded in the ninth.

Marrero Given Little Support on His 7-Hitter

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Freddie Hutchinson, fast-working Detroit right hander, made short work of the Nats last night. He used the direct method of shutting them out. The score was 2-0, and it took up only an hour and 43 minutes of everybody's time.

The Tigers' victory, their seventh in seven appearances at Griffith Stadium this season, was achieved in the presence of 13,394 fans and one dignitary, Cuba's Ambassador, Luis Machado.

Senor Machado, according to an unconfirmed report, was ready at the finish to break off relations with the Nats. He saw them abandon Senor Chico Marrero without hitting support while the little Cuban was bravely trying to keep them in the ball game.

So baffled were the Nats by Hutchinson's slow curve-balling, they mustered only six hits all evening, and could nudge only one of their members to third base.

Little Marrero gave up only seven hits to the Tigers before he was withdrawn for a pinch-hitter in the eighth, and one of the runs he permitted was a cheapish, unearned tally that stemmed from Mickey Vernon's error. The Tigers got their eighth hit off Mickey Harris in the ninth.

Hutchinson, himself, contributed a vital two-bagger to the Tigers' attack in the fifth inning when he doubled to left field with one out. He held up at third on Lipon's single to right, and scored while Gerry Priddy was grounding out.

That run gave him the comfort of a 2-0 lead. Back in the second inning they scored off Marrero after Vernon dropped a slightly-wide throw from Dente on Evers' grounder. Groth singled Evers to third, and he scored while Kolloway was hitting into a doubleplay.

Otherwise Chico held 'em scoreless, pitching himself out of trouble in the third after a single, a steal and a wild throw put Lipon on third with one out. He walked Priddy, but got rid of Kell on a pop up and Wertz on a fly to left.

The Nats were fluffing scoring chances early in the game. Stewart singled with one out in the second and when Hutchinson threw wild to second on Michaels' grounder, both runners were safe. But a Priddy-to-Lipon-to-Holloway double play on Dente's grounder cut the Nats down.

Again in the fifth, a double play saved Hutchinson's hide. Michaels lead off with a safe tap past the pitcher and Dente immediately moved him to third with a single to right center. But in this crisis, Evans rifled a line drive to Priddy, and Dente was doubled off first.

The Nats gave one more gasp before defeat enveloped 'em. With two on in the ninth, Vernon doubled into the right field corner, but Hutchinson found a friend in Priddy who went far to his right for a one-hand play on Stewart's grounder to close out the game.

IN SHORT, Bob Kuzava, his pitching hand still swollen from the effects of a line drive in batting practice will nevertheless start against the Tigers in this afternoons' game . . . Art Houtteman will be trying to chalk up win No. 12 . . . Eddie Yost laid down a near-perfect bunt in the sixth inning last night but George Kell was very much unsurprised, and threw him out by a half dozen feet . . . When Marrero got the Tigers out in the seventh it was with the help of sensational running catches by Stewart and Coan on long drives by Holloway and Lipon . . . Kell went hitless for the night chiefly because Dente scrambled far to his right to cheat him off a hit in the eighth.

Middlecoff And Mangrum Shoot 62-61

By Fritz Howell

Toledo, Ohio, July 14 (AP).—Former National Open Champions Cary Middlecoff and Lloyd Mangrum were the hot-shots today in the thirteenth Inverness $15,000 four-ball matches.

The two sharpshooters ripped 19 strokes off par for today's two-match 36-hole route to climb from last place in the eight-team standings to a second-place tie, just a point back of the leaders.

Drawling Dutch Harrison and Porky Oliver clung to the top spot, although their point total was shaved as they were held even by Chick Harbert and Bob Hamilton, the latter a former PGA king, and handed a one-down loss by last-placers Jimmy Demaret and Jack Burke.

At the end of three of the seven best-ball matches, Harrison and Oliver paced the pack with plus three under the Inverness system

Right on their heels, with plus two, were the Mangrum-Middlecoff and Sam Snead-Jim Farrier twosomes, while surprising Freddie Haas, jr., and Fred Hawkins were at plus 1. All the others were in the minus column.

SECOND ROUND RESULTS

Fred Haas-Fred Hawkins (66) one up over Henry Ransom-Skip Alexander (67).
Chick Harbert-Bob Hamilton (67) even with Dutch Harrison-Porky Oliver (66).
Sam Snead-Jim Ferrier (64) two up over Clayton Heafner-Johnny Palmer (66).
Lloyd Mangrum-Cary Middlecoff (62) four up over Jimmy Demaret-Jack Burke (66).

The standings: Harrison-Oliver, plus 4; Snead-Farrier, plus 2; Haas-Hawkins, plus 1; Hamilton-Harbert, plus 1; Mangrum-Middlecoff, even; Heafner-Palmer, minus 1; Ransom-Alexander, minus 2; Demaret-Burke minus 5.

THIRD ROUND RESULTS

Demaret-Burke (64) one up over Harrison-Oliver (65).
Snead-Farrier (65) even with Ransom-Alexander (66).
Haas-Hawkins (66) even with Heafner-Palmer (66).
Mangrum-Middlecoff (61) two up over Harbert-Hamilton (64).

The standings: Harrison-Oliver plus 3, Snead-Ferrier plus 2, Mangrum-Middlecoff plus 2, Haas-Hawkins plus 1, Heafner-Palmer minus 1, Harbert-Hamilton minus 1, Ransom-Alexander minus 2, Demaret-Burke minus 4.

SATURDAY'S SCHEDULE

Morning round: Harbert-Hamilton vs. Haas-Hawkins; Mangrum-Middlecoff vs. Heafner-Palmer; Harrison-Oliver vs. Ransom-Alexander; Demaret-Burke vs. Snead-Ferrier.
Afternoon round: Harrison-Oliver vs. Heafner-Palmer; Mangrum-Middlecoff vs. Ransom-Alexander; Demaret-Burke vs. Haas-Hawkins; Harbert-Hamilton vs. Snead-Ferrier.

Bosox 11-Run Third Beats Chisox, 13-1

Boston, July 14 (AP).—The Boston Red Sox, this time without Ted Williams, came up with their second 11-run inning of the season today while overwhelming the Chicago White Sox, 13-1.

It gave Righthander Ellis Kinder, who turned in a five-hitter, his thirteenth straight triumph over the White Sox, who now have lost all but three of their last 30 Fenway Park starts.

The Bosox, who registered 11 times in one frame against the Philadelphia Athletics here on April 30, duplicated that terrific batting splurge in weird fashion in the third inning against luckless flingers Ken Holcombe and Luis Aloma.

While trying to start a double play at the plate with the bases filled and none out, Hank Majeski hit Dom DiMaggio on the shoulder and he and Johnny Pesky scored.

Then Holcombe tried to make a force play at third base with Majeski playing in close but two more runners scored as the ball headed for the Chicago dugout. A Bobby Doerr single added another pair of runs.

After Birdie Tebbetts lashed a two-run homer, his seventh of the season, Aloma took over. Before he could retire the side Pesky drew a pass, Clyde Vollmer reached base on a fielder's choice and both romped in when Junior Stephens poled his twentieth four-bagger into the left field screen.

That mighty blow enabled Stephens to take over the Major League runs-batted-in honors with an 87 total.

Williams Kept On Active List

Boston, July 14 (AP).—General Manager Joe Cronin tonight appeared confident that Ted Williams, the Boston Red Sox slugger injured in Tuesday's all-star game, would be able to resume play within the next two months.

Although advised by Dr. Ralph McCarthy that at least 10 more days would be needed to determine just how long Williams' splintered left elbow would incapacitate him, Cronin refused to put his $125,000-salaried star on the American League's inactive list.

"If we did that, Ted would have to remain idle for 60 days," Cronin explained. "We have hopes he will be back in action sooner than that."

The latest hospital report on Williams indicated he was experiencing some pain, as was expected by his surgeons, but had begun to recuperate from his 75-minute operation.

Under the major leagues contractural regulations Williams' hospital and surgical expenses are the obligation of the Red Sox, despite the fact he was injured in All-Star game competition.

Striking Athletes Paid Off

Waterbury Has Franchise But No Players After Revolt

Waterbury, Conn., July 14 (AP).—Waterbury had a Colonial League baseball franchise tonight, but no active players, after President Joseph Lombard paid off his 12 striking athletes.

Lombard cancelled the fine of $100 he levied against each player yesterday when they refused to board a bus for Kingston, N. Y., where they were scheduled to play last night and tonight.

Lombard was quoted as saying he cancelled the fines because he feared some of the players would be stranded here.

They also objected in riding in the club bus whch they called unsafe. Six of the players, who were unidentified, also claimed that the club had failed to keep a promise of a pay increase if the players still were on the club roster

League President John A. Scalzi, jr., said he had called a league they claimed they were told they meeting for Sunday afternoon in Stamford. Asked if Lombard's action meant the six-team league would shrink to five teams, he said he didn't know.

"If we have to," he said, "we (the league) can operate with five teams or even four."

In addition to Waterbury, the league includes Bristol, Torrington, and Bridgeport, all in Connecticut and Kingston and Poughkeepsie, New York.

Palica Blanks Cubs for Bums, 1-0, on Five Hits

Chicago, July 14 (AP).—Erv Palica, 22-year-old righthanded pitcher of the Brooklyn Dodgers, shut out Chicago on five hits today for a 1 to 0 triumph. Not a Cub runner reached second until the ninth frame when Andy Pafko doubled.

It was only the second start for the youngster after 22 relief appearances.

Bob Rush was the hard-luck loser. The Dodger's lone run came in the seventh when Billy Cox walked, moved to third on Gene Hermanski's single and scored when Phil Cavarretta grabbed Duke Snider's bounder and elected to try for a double play instead of throwing to the plate.

It was the first time since June 11 that a Dodger pitcher went into the ninth inning with a one-run lead and held it.

Cincinnati, July 14 (AP).—A home run and a double by Del Crandall, driving in four runs, sparked the Boston Braves to a 6-to-4 victory over the Cincinnati Reds today.

Bob Hogue, however, shared heavily in the honors, relieving Warren Spahn in the eighth after two Reds had scored, and with men on second and third and only one out.

He forced Pinch Hitter Grady Hatton to pop out and Virgil Stallcup to fly out. Spahn got credit for the victory—his 10th against as many losses.

The game, which broke the Reds' longest winning streak in two years—five games—was witnessed by 3032 paid fans.

$78 Shot Wins At Baltimore

Baltimore, Md., July 14—A crowd of 7500 tonight welcomed racing to Baltimore Raceway.

The feature race, the $2000 Cockeysville Purse, a trot, resulted in an upset, when the highest priced horse in the race, Beautiful Scamp, owned by Hunter M. Bennett, of West, W. Va., and driven by E. C. Bowen, led from start to finish to furnish a tremendous payoff of $78.20, $24.80, $4.80.

Howerton Bats Across 3 Runs; Musial Hurt

St. Louis, July 14 (AP).—The St. Louis Cardinals cut Philadelphia's National League lead to one game by beating the Phillies' Robin Roberts, 4-2, tonight with big Bill Howerton driving in three runs on three hits, including a homer.

The victory may have proved costly to the Redbirds, however. Stan Musial left the game with a wrenched knee and Pitcher Harry Brecheen was retired with a sore throwing arm.

Granny Hamner hit a home run for Philadelphia in the third with a man on, giving the Phils a lead which was tied by the Cardinals in the fourth.

Howerton broke up the 2-2 tie in the sixth inning with a rocketing home run against the light tower in the right centerfield pavilion.

AT CHARLES TOWN

DEAR FOLKS:

Ty Shea, racing secretary at various Eastern ovals, was a visitor yesterday while doing missionary work for the Bel Air track. He was accompanied by Henry Carroll and Eddie Dennison, who serve under him as officials. C. Wilson Ford of the Daily Racing Form crew, goes to his home in Baltimore following the close of this meeting. The mutuel play and attendance here has shown a steady increase since the close of Delaware Park, proving Charles Town can run against the trots rather than stiffer mile track competition. George Rose, timer and identifier here, leaves for Wheeling next week where it will serve as placing judge and clerk of scales. Roger Perry, of the local press box crew, plans to vacation before returning to Washington and Lee in the fall. Apprentice Doyle Gardner is back in action after his fall last week. Raymond Arduini, of Washington is showing excellent saddle form this meeting. See you on the rail—BILL.

Challenge By Marbacka Beaten Off

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charlestown, W. Va., July 14.—Mrs. C. M. Greer, jr., Heaven Hill finally found her true form as the 5-year-old mare who won her first race of the season in the Baltimore purse, the headliner here this afternoon.

Ridden smartly by the veteran Sammy Palumbo, the daughter of Tin Tagel defeated Marbacka, the 6-to-5 favorite, by a neck at the wire after a furious stretch battle. Seven lengths back came M. Stanfield's Top Raider. Heaven Hill, who last season accounted for ten purses in 26 outings, was slightly overlooked in the betting. She returned $15.40 for $2.

Palumbo, who was blocked soon after the start, found his way through the pack slowly and smoothly, went to the front at the top of the homestretch. He then drove with all his might to stave off the late challenge of Marbecka, who stole through on the inside rounding the stretch turn.

Tyenty-one fans who coupled W. C. Ensor's Twinkler and J. E. Hughes' Dashing Count in the daily double received $514.40. However, they were given plenty of anxious moments in the second race when Jockey Woody Herman, astride R. P. Sherwin's Pesta, the favorite, lodged a claim of foul against Jockey Raymond Arduini, who had the leg up on Dashing Count.

The stewards after a short deliberation refused to take any action, and the original placing stood. Dashing Count, making his racing debut, paid off at $68.40, while the return on Twinkler, which won the opening event, was $41.80 with Apprentice Jose Pelaez up.

Raymond Haight Calls Butler 'Cap Today

Raymond Haight, son of Walter Haight, racing editor of The Washington Post, will call the Butler Handicap, $50,000 Empire City feature, today over a national radio hook-up for the Columbia Broadcasting System.

Play Today

Mrs. Bower, Mrs. Glick in Title Match

Baltimore, July 14 (AP).—Mrs. A. B. Bower of Washington and Mrs. Maurice Glick of Baltimore shot their way today in the finals of the Maryland women's golf tournament.

They will play for the title tomorrow (10 a. m.) at the Suburban Club.

Mrs. Glick of Woodholme ousted the defending champion, Miss Ann Downey of the Baltimore Country Club, 3 and 2. Mrs. Bower, former Kentucky State champion and now playing out of Washington's Manor Club, had even an easier time in beating Mrs. C. E. Richards of Country Club of Maryland, 5 and 4.

Ferris, D. C. Team Maintain Lead

Dayton, Ohio, July 14 (AP).—Capt. Don Ferris of the Air Materiel Command Headquarters, Washington, D. C., and his team kept their lead at the three-quarter mark of the AMC golf tournament today.

Captain Ferris added a one over par 73 to his previous rounds of 69—76 for a 54-hole total of 218. S/Sergt. James Zontek of McClellan Air Forces Base, Sacramento, Calif., has a 225 total for second. Three are tied for third, S/Sergt. Harley Long of Wright-Patterson Air Force Base; Capt. J. M. Anderson, defending champion of Wright-Patterson Base, and Maj. Bernard McKown of Washington.

Jim Faces Clark Today In Semifinal

By Gordon Beard

Jim Brink, second-seeded player from Seattle, Wash., defeated fifth-seeded Arnold Saul, San Diego, Calif., 6—4, 6—1, to advance to the semifinals of the Middle Atlantic tennis championships at the Kenwood Golf and Country Club yesterday.

Brink, winner of the first set Thursday before rain halted the match, jumped into a 4-0 lead in yesterday's set. The only survivor of the four top-seeded men, Brink will pit Brink against Straight Clark, Pasadena, Calif., in today's semifinals.

A full schedule of doubles matches yesterday advanced the men's and women's fields to the semifinals and the mixed doubles to the quarterfinals. Cochell and Hugh Stewart, seeded first in the men's division, earned their top ranking by playing and winning four matches, with the loss of only 13 games.

The University of Southern California teammates walloped Ned Chapman, Lutherville, Md. and Dave Barton, Baltimore, 6—0, 6—1, in the opening round, and the Washington team of Dick Covington and John Palfrey, 6—0, 6—0, in the second.

A few minutes later Cochell and Stewart faced Col. Ramsey Potts of the Army Air Forces in Washington and Col. C. L. Burwell of Arlington and came off the court 6—3, 6—4 winners. The final victory was over Washington' veteran Barney Welsh and Hugh Lynch of Bethesda, 6—2, 6—3.

The only top-seeded team to lose was the fourth-seeded Clark-Ricardo Balbiers combine, which was eliminated by Jim Thackara, Washington, and Gil Hunt, Alexandria, 6—1, 6—3.

Gallagher, Brownell Gain Semifinals at Columbia

The medalist team of Walter Gallagher and Bob Brownell of Chevy Chase advanced to the semifinals of the Columbia Country Club anual member-guest tournament yesterday by defeating W. C. Lent and Mike Jankowski of Prince Georges, 2 and 1.

Page Cornwell and John Barr of Chevy Chase shot the best golf of the day. They chalked up a best-ball 66, four under par, as they defeated J. T. Bowie and P. S. Bowie of Chevy Chase, 4 and 3.

The dark horse team of the tournament, Donald West and Maj. B. K. Yount of Army Navy, downed Richard Mahar and John Jankowski of Prince Georges, 4 and 3. West and Young tied for the medal in the qualifying round Wednesday with a best-ball 66 but lost out to Gallagher and Brownell in the medal playoff Thursday.

In the other quarter-final match yesterday E. J. Hackey and Robert Morris of Prince Georges downed Earl Skinker and Jerry Hart of Bethesda, 1 up.

Semifinals are slated for today and the championship match will be played Sunday.

Rogers Beaten For Junior Title; Leith Boys Champ

Charles Atherton, Charleston, W. Va., yesterday won the Middle Atlantic junior tennis title, defeating Ted Rogers, Washington, 6-1, 6-4, 7-5, at Columbia Country Club.

The boys' title was won by lanky Malcolm Leith, Washington, who defeated his smaller opponent, Don Dell, Washington, 6-1, 8-6.

The junior championship match was Atherton's most of the way. Only in the third set did Rogers offer any threat. Then he rallied to build up a 4-0 score before he weakened and Atherton easily cleaned up.

Subcommittee Indorses 'Little Wagner Act' to Cover Federal Workers

A bill to open the door to collective bargaining in the Federal Government was indorsed yesterday by a subcommittee of the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee.

The same group recommended a similar measure a year ago, but the full committee rejected it. Chairman Murray of the full committee, hasn't set a date to consider the newest version of the bill which is commonly referred to as a "little Wagner Act" for Government workers.

The bill would require Federal officials to confer with employe leaders on "matters of policy" regarding working conditions, granting of leave, promotions, demotions, rates of pay, lay-offs, appeals, grievances and in-service training among other employe problems.

Furthermore, the officials would have to recognize the rights of employe leaders to solicit members and to collect dues outside of their working hours, and to carry on other such activities without being intimidated. The five-man subcommittee rejected an amendment offered by Representative Rhodes (D., Pa.) to fire officials who refused to negotiate with employe unions.

The Administration agrees to the principle of the Rhodes bill but it's opposed to legislation on the subject of employer-employe relations. It informed the committee that such matters should be dealt with through presidential orders.

Another provision of the bill would give Federal officials the power to summarily suspend any employe for cause, up to two days, pending the filing of written charges against him. The Administration is seeking authority to suspend up to 30 days.

Move Seen to Speed Shorter Police Week

A new Congressional move to speed the arrival of the five-day week for Washington policemen was forecast yesterday by Representative Joe B. Bates (D., Ky.).

Bates said the House subcommittee on District appropriations on Monday will hear testimony about the estimated million-dollar fund needed to hire the 300 additional police for the shortened work week. They now work a six-day week.

Bates pointed out that the bill to authorize the five-day week still is pending in the Senate. The House has approved it. Until it becomes law, funds could not be approved for the additional men. But, Bates explained, the Monday hearing would permit quicker final action on funds if the enabling bill is enacted.

He said the District appropriations group also will consider a requested $290,000 District civilian defense fund and $100,000 for continuing the District child day-care center program for which enabling legislation is also pending.

In the Senate, Chairman Matthew M. Neely (D., W. Va.), called a meeting of the District Committee for 2 p.m. Monday. The House approved bill to create a District Civilian Defense office is among the bills to be considered.

Senator Herbert R. O'Conor (D., Md.), is also slated to appear before the District Committee and ask that it reverse its earlier decision tabling a bill for Public Utilities Commission limitation of the number of taxicabs in Washington.

D. C. Blood Bank Helps Save Life Of W. Va. Woman

One quart of hard-to-get blood, rushed from the District Red Cross Blood Bank, is credited with helping save the life of a Welch, W. Va., patient.

The donor blood, two pints of Type O, Rh negative, were flown to the mining community to help sustain Mrs. Lewis Hanson, of Welch. She needed large amounts for complications following stillbirth of her child two weeks ago.

The appeal was forwarded here after doctors there used up all 21 pints of the uncommon blood obtained from town donors. About one out of 20 persons has the special type blood, it was estimated.

Pills Reduce Deedy to Tears; Tummy Aches

Charles Del Vecchio—The Washington Post

SISTER DID IT—Mae Denise, year-old daughter of Police Pvt. and Mrs. Miles J. Richey, is in the news again. Yesterday older sister Mary, 4, climbed onto a chair, took a bottle of reducing pills from the top of an ice box and then proceeded to feed Mae Denise—known in the family as Deedy. Mrs. Richey found the children and rushed Deedy to Providence Hospital. Deedy first broke into the news July 12, 1949 when her father assisted at her birth because a doctor could not be reached. The Richeys live at 220 O st. sw.; have two other daughters, Charlotte, 6, and Frances, 3

Builder Says Vandals Delay Bradley School

$500 Damage Is Laid To Youths; Project Weeks Behind Schedule

Juvenile vandals have caused construction of the Bradley Elementary School addition in Bethesda to lag several weeks behind schedule, the contractor on the job said yesterday.

Charging "delinquent parents" with responsibility for about $500 damage since January from smashed glass and equipment was Everett A. R. Searl, who is also building a Consolidated School for Negroes in Rockville.

He said there has not been "a single iota of trouble" at Rockville.

But at the Bethesda site, Searl said youthful vandals have smashed glass blocks, broken water pipes, ripped electrical conduits from the walls, smeared tar on the interior and thrown rocks at windows.

The parttime watchman on the job has been stoned on several occasions by youthful vandals.

Lieut. Paul Watkins of the Bethesda station of the county police, also said the police are doing what they can to keep vandalism down. Cars patrol the section several times daily and nightly, he said, but the children run away as they approach.

Beautiful Baby Contest Today

A baby beauty contest will begin at 1 p. m. today at the I. O. O. F. Temple, 419 Seventh st. nw., under sponsorship of the Disabled American Veterans.

The DAV said nearly 600 baby entrants from the Greater Washington area had been received to date, with those from Hyattsville judged at 1 p. m., those from Bethesda at 1:40 p. m., and from Washington at 2:15 p. m.

The most beautiful boy and girl from each age class will receive ribbons and are then eligible to compete for the titles of "Miss and Master" Washington, Hyattsville, and Bethesda on July 30 at the Jewish Community Center auditorium, 1529 16th st. nw.

Government Official Accuses Ex-Convict Shot by Policeman

A former convict was in critical condition last night at Emergency Hospital, a policeman's bullet hole in his chest.

Police said Ralph B. Mullis, 31, of 1523 I st. nw., was shot early yesterday after attempting to run down Pvt. Romeo F. Garza of the First Precinct with an automobile.

The shooting, police said, brought to light the robbery and attempted extortion of a Government official by Mullis earlier.

The official, Harold Dotterer, 58, director of service operations for the Federal Security Agency, told police Mullis robbed him of $19 Thursday night and then threatened him unless he met him with $500 the next day. Dotterer, who has been an official of a number of Government agencies, is married, has two children and three grandchildren and lives at 306 Elm st., Chevy Chase, Md.

Mullis, who has a criminal record dating back to 1935, according to police, telephoned Dotterer about three weeks ago and said a friend had advised him to look up Dotterer because he might help him find a job.

Advanced Loan

Dotterer told police he advanced a $5 loan to Mullis, whom he knew as "Sollet," and made attempts to locate a job for the man.

Recently, the official said, Mullis had called him several times and asserted he wanted to meet Dotterer to repay the loan.

Dotterer, a Government employe for 36 years, said he finally agreed to meet the man Thursday night. Mullis, he said, told him he wanted to buy him a drink and suggested they go to a cafe at 13th and I sts. nw.

After one beer they left the cafe and Mullis, according to Dotterer, moved into the driver's seat of Dotterer's car and announced: "I'm taking over now. I just got out of Leavenworth and I wouldn't hesitate to kill you. I have a couple of friends following me, so don't try to get out of the car."

At 16th and I sts. nw., Mullis forced him to hand over his wallet containing $19, Dotterer said, and then complained, "I need more than this. Why, I promised each of those two guys a hundred bucks apiece."

Dotterer said Mullis ordered him to meet him the following day

with $500, declaring he would keep the car until then as security.

"What if I tell the police?" Dotterer asked.

"Go ahead," the FSA official quoted Mullis. "I'll tell them you committed an unnatural sex act with me—and they'll believe me before they believe you."

Dotterer said he was so anxious to get free that he promised to meet Mullis the next day.

Several hours later, at 12:40 a.m. yesterday, Private Garza saw an auto containing three men weaving through an alley behind the Times-Herald building, between 13th and 14th sts. nw., and order the driver to stop.

When he found Mullis had no drivers' license, Garza stepped to the front of the car to take down the license number. Mullis stepped on the gas and the car lurched forward. Garza jumped safely aside.

The three men jumped out when the car struck a parked auto near I st. As the trio started to run, Garza dropped Mullis with a shot that penetrated his arm and then his chest.

Mullis was under police guard at the hospital, charged with robbery, assault with a dangerous weapon and driving without a license.

Col. Rice Extols France In Bastille Day Talk

Col. Heber H. Rice, a member of the general counsel staff of the General Accounting Office, yesterday delivered a commemorative address on Bastille Day over Station WOOK.

Colonel Rice, a veteran of both world wars, extolled the spirit of France in the destruction of the Bastille, and its subsequent participation in the Prussian Wars and World Wars I and II.

West Virginia Auditor Dies In Plunge From Hotel Here

Clinton Goode, 53, of Charleston, W. Va., plunged to his death yesterday from the sixth floor of the Blackstone Hotel at 1016 17th st. nw.

Goode's body was seen hurtling through a tree near the curb of the street at 2:20 p.m. He was pronounced dead at the scene by Dr. Dorothy Holzworth of Emergency Hospital.

Homicide squad detectives said they found no note in Goode's room. He had registered at the Blackstone on July 12 as W. D. Ort or New York City. Identification was made by a Social Security card found on the body.

Mary Etta Quarles of 904 K st. se., a maid at the Blackstone, said she went into Goode's room at about noon to clean. She said he was partially dressed then and had seemed nervous. He had asked her to hurry with cleaning so he could finish dressing.

Officials of the West Virginia Water Service Co. in Charleston said yesterday that Goode had been in their employ as an auditor until June 30. He had left Charleston to go with a New York firm of auditors, Arthur L. Anderson Co., they said.

Hotel officials said that Goode had eaten breakfast in his room and later had ordered a soft drink. Police said the screen on the sixth floor window from which Goode fell was raised when they entered the room.

Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald said the death certificate would be withheld pending further investigation.

Davis Seeks $20,000 for Crime Probe

Added Appropriation For District Study To Be Discussed At Monday Hearing

An open House hearing has been set for 9:30 a. m. Monday on the proposal of Representative James C. Davis (D., Ga.,) to spend $20,000 more on the House District crime investigation.

The hearing, called by Chairman Thomas B. Stanley (D., Va.) of the House Accounts subcommittee, is a sequel to a series of tense incidents which so far have blocked the House from granting the funds.

The five-member Davis committee spent $10,000 on preliminary investigations and on hearings which reached their climax on the row between Police Chief Robert J. Barrett and Police Capt. Anthony Richitt last March and on other activities later.

When Davis first asked the subcommittee for the funds to continue the crime inquiry, he was heard in an executive session. Representative Wayne L. Hays (D., Ohio) subcommittee member, angrily protested that he wanted to quiz Davis in open session about the latter's opposition to Washington home rule.

Later Hays blocked the Davis request in the House and forced it back to committee, a move that led to the calling of Monday's hearing.

Davis, months ago, tossed the sensational Barrett-Richitt controversy back to the District government to settle, and it was finally done with a handshake between Barrett and Richitt.

But there are other projects to work on, Davis said. One is the completion of an inquiry started into operations of the District Coroner's office. Another is the working out of a legislative program to tighten up law enforcement in the District. There are still others, Davis said, but he declined to discuss them before the hearing.

Davis said he expects other members of his investigating subcommittee to attend the Monday hearing. He said the investigating unit's counsel, Hyman I. Fischbach, is also to be there.

Trade Board Tops Goal Of $110,000

The Board of Trade's Greater National Capital Committee has reached its $110,000 subscription goal in record time and "with some dollars to spare," Campaign Chairman Clark G. Diamond announced yesterday.

The campaign went over the top in two months' time but will continue "until all those business firms who have a stake in the convention and tourist business brought to Washington through the efforts of the Greater National Capital Committee have had a chance to subscribe," Diamond said.

Success of the campaign is due to "the high regard of the business community for the Greater National Capital Committee's activity and the splendid work and cooperation of our division chairmen," Diamond added.

Seven division chairmen have reported 100 percent of their goal reached. They are: Richard A. Norris, Banks; William H. Dyer, Building and Loan Associations; Edgar Balshaw, Grocers; Samuel H. Kauffmann, Newspapers; Walter Nordlinger, Men's Retail Stores; William J. McManus, Utilities; and Philip M. Talbott, Department Stores.

James E. Colliflower is chairman of the committee.

State Expert Scores Falls Church 'Annex'

Va. Commission Head Says Transfer to Fairfax Not Necessary

By William H. Smith
Post Reporter

Acquisition of 10.75 square miles of Fairfax County by Falls Church is "neither expedient nor necessary," a Virginia annexation expert testified in the county Circuit Court yesterday.

The witness, Edward K. Mattern, Roanoke civil engineer, recently was named by Governor John S. Battle to a special commission to study Virginia's annexation laws with a view to possible revision. His testimony conflicted with that of Harland Bartholomew, a St. Louis planning consultant, who previously had testified that the Falls Church annexation was both expedient and necessary.

Without elaborating on his statement, Mattern said he believed the proposed annexation would not be "to the best interest of anyone." He said he believed previous testimony in the suit had "forcibly brought out the inexpediency of annexation."

Earlier, Mattern contended a proposed Falls Church budget for the annexation zone had omitted items of expenditure which probably would amount to "$400,000 to $500,000." He said he referred principally to the necessity of building about 12 miles of streets which are laid out in the annexable area, but have not been incorporated into the State's secondary road system.

Mattern also disputed a suggestion by Falls Church witnesses that the county and city could operate jointly Sanitary District No. 1 in the event the annexation suit succeeds. He said joint operation of the district, part of which is in the annexable zones, entails too many administrative and operational difficulties to make it feasible.

County plans for installation of sewerage facilities in the sanitary district were outlined during the morning court session by James J Corbalis, county sanitary engineer. Residents of the area voted a 3 million dollar bond issue last August to finance the improvements.

Should Falls Church acquire the land it seeks, Corbalis said, the city would have to dispose of its sewerage through a disposal plant which will be built by the county with part of the sanitary district bond funds.

The suit, under way for four weeks, will be resumed Tuesday at 10:30 a. m.

Lawyer Gets $50 Fine in Wife-Beating

Municipal Court Judge Thomas D. Quinn fined a lawyer $50 for wife-beating yesterday, and gave him a tongue-lashing to boot.

He found Charles F. Hailer, 3320 7th st. ne., guilty of assaulting his wife, Alma, in their home on July 9.

"Your five sons must be proud of you," Judge Quinn told the lawyer, "coming home drunk like this all the time. I tried to get you medical attention to stop you drinking. But if you keep this up, you won't need medical attention. You'll need an undertaker.

Mrs. Hailer, who collapsed in the hallway after the trial, testified that her husband struck her with his fist, kicked at her, and threw a glass of water at her. Hailer denied her charges.

Hailer was sentenced to serve 60 days in jail or pay the $50 fine. He told Judge Quinn he only had $25. Quinn repeated his sentence and added. "If you come back in here, there won't be any fine."

Hailer was found not guilty on charges of threatening his wife.

18th Polio Case Recorded Here

The District's 18th poliomyelitis case of the year—a five-month-old boy of the 800 block of 18th st. ne.—was recorded yesterday by the District Health Department. At this time last year five District cases had been reported.

Health officials said the baby has nearly recovered from a non-paralytic case, so mild that it was not diagnosed until nearly three weeks after he was admitted to Gallinger Hospital June 23.

Dr. Carl G. Dauer, director of the Bureau of Preventable Diseases, said it was uncommon for the disease to strike an infant, but that four-months-old polio victims have been recorded here.

Meanwhile, the addition of two more polio cases, reported yesterday, brought tiny Wythe County's unofficial polio victim total in the current outbreak to 20 with three deaths, and two more cases were reported elsewhere in the region.

Foxhall Road Paving Low Bid Received

The District Highway Department yesterday received a low bid of $98,922—13 percent less than estimated—on a contract to widen and repave a quarter mile of Foxhall rd. nw., between Reservoir rd. and Whitehaven pkwy.

Curtin & Johnson, Inc., 1125 Brentwood rd. nw., was low bidder for the job which involves doubling the street's width to 44 feet and paving with concrete. Highway Director J. N. Robertson said if the bid is approved work should start in August and be completed in four months.

D.C. Man Dies In Crash of Maryland U. Students' Car

J. E. Hillock Killed As He, 4 Others Are Tossed Out When Auto Hits Abutment

Elkton, Md., July 20 (AP).—Five University of Maryland summer students were thrown out of a car and one of them killed today when it plowed into a concrete abutment.

John E. Hillock, 26, of 3625 16th st. nw., Washington, lost his life in the accident at the intersection of Routes 40 and 272. A member of the Phi Delta Theta fraternity, he had completed his junior year at the university.

One of the other students, Michael J. Muth, 24, of 2407 Roseland ave., Baltimore, was hurt critically. He is in Union Memorial Hospital here with a brain concussion.

The driver, Jeremiah A. Thuma, 24, of 2704 St. Paul st., Baltimore, was the only occupant not hurt.

Theodore J. Cybulary of Philadelphia suffered laceration of the scalp and multiple cuts, and William M. Hubbell, 20, of Garden City, Long Island, injured his right shoulder.

State police said the students were heading for Ocean City, Md., when the car went through the intersection into the abutment and a pole supporting a traffic light.

Thuma, who told Maryland State Police he lives at the Kappa Alpha house at College Park, is being held on $1000 bond on a technical charge of manslaughter, State police said.

90-Mile Speed Nets Clerk 30-Day Term

Herman R. Braxton, 32, a grocery clerk, of 625 Morton st. nw., lost an appeal in Maryland yesterday against a 30-day jail sentence for speeding 90 miles an hour on Baltimore blvd.

"Fines are not sufficient to control speeding," declared Judge James Clark in Howard County Circuit Court as he affirmed the jail sentence previously imposed on Braxton by Magistrate J. Edward Haslup of Savage, Md.

"If it takes jail sentences in Howard County to cut speeding, I will give them," said Judge Clark. "It might not always be 30 days, however."

Braxton was arrested July 3. State Trooper Noble Collison testified he chased Braxton five miles at speeds exceeding 90 miles an hour.

Trial magistrates and jurists throughout Maryland generally are cracking down on speeders and other traffic law violators in an attempt to reduce accidents.

Painter Is Hurt, Chauffeur Arrested in Hit-Run Case

Howell R. Bauldin, 42, 3511 13th st. nw., a painter, was in Garfield Hospital yesterday with fractures of both legs following a hit-and-run accident in front of his home Thursday at 11 p. m.

Bauldin was crossing the street to his home a few steps behind his wife when he was hit and knocked to the curb by a 1950 Cadillac, police said.

Owner of the auto was listed as George Wasserman, 3134 Ellicott st. nw., owner of George's Radio Co., 816 F st. nw.

Wasserman told police his chauffeur, Earl S. Spikes, 30, 1210 T st. nw., was driver of the vehicle.

Spikes was arrested yesterday on a warrant. He was charged by the Accident Investigation Unit with leaving after colliding and released on $500 bond.

Fearless Forecaster Finds St. Swithin's Day Fair—Maybe

"St. Swithin's day if thou dost rain
For forty days it will remain;
St. Swithin's day if thou be fair,
For forty days 'twill rain nae mair."

And if we can believe the good Bishop of Winchester "twill rain nae mair" until August 25.

For the U. S. Weather Bureau forecast is fair for St. Swithin's Day today, with a high in the lower eighties.

The weatherman, with none of St. Swithin's temerity, ventured only five days in the future yesterday to predict a continuation of more or less what we've been having.

For Washington, Maryland and Virginia, it will be about two degrees cooler than the average normal temperature from now until next Wednesday. For Washington, this average is around 87.

From southern Virginia up through the Middle Atlantic States to eastern New York, the two-degree-below-average will hold.

Sunday, for the resorters, will be a bit warmer and Wednesday a bit cooler. The whole area can expect scattered showers Tuesday and Wednesday, with rainfall from a half an inch to an inch for the period.

Yesterday's high was 82 at 3:35 p. m.

Heart Attack Fatal To B. W. Huffington

B. Walter Huffington, 41, 1739 N st. nw., director of station relations for the National Association of Broadcasters here, died Thursday of a heart attack in Salem, N. C.

Mr. Huffington was on a tour of the Southeast for the NAB. The attack came while he was in a car driven by his wife. Their only child, Betty Anne, 16, also was in the auto.

Mr. Huffington was born in Norfolk, Va. He attended school there and studied journalism in New York City. His first radio work was with Station WTAR in Norfolk in 1937. He then worked on radio stations in Raleigh, N. C., and Petersburg, Va.

From 1943 to 1945 he was radio director of the regional Office of War Information for Virginia, North Carolina and South Carolina.

He was national radio director of the American Red Cross here from September, 1946, to May, 1948. He directed the department of station relations at the time of his death. Previously he had been general manager of Station WSAP in Portsmouth, Va.

Besides his wife and daughter, Mr. Huffington is survived by his mother, Mrs. B. W. Huffington.

Funeral services will be held in Portsmouth, today.

50 Years Practice

R. M. Thomas Rites Today, D. C. Lawyer

Private funeral services for Richard Maley Thomas, retired Washington attorney, who died early yesterday at the Naval Medical Center, Bethesda, of leukemia, will be held this afternoon, followed by cremation.

Mr. Thomas, who lived at 7019 Georgia ave. nw., died the day following his 72d bithday. He had practiced law here nearly 50 years prior to his retirement several years ago.

He was a native of Hillsboro, Mo., and the son of the late John L. Thomas, Assistant Attorney General in the Cleveland Administration.

Mr. Thomas came to Washington in 1900, after attending Randolph-Macon Militry Academy. Following his graduation in 1902 from the National Law School, he practiced law with his father until the latter's death some 30 years ago.

He maintained law offices in the Columbian Building, and later the Victor Building. During the early 1920s he served as attorney for the Commercial Investment Trust, New York City. He also served with the First Air-Postal Service; and for a time was attorney for Traymore Aerial Tours, going on many of the flying tours when aviation was in an early stage of development.

During the Spanish-American War, Mr. Thomas served with the Sixth Missouri Volunteer Infantry Regiment, and during World War I in the Army Transport Service.

Besides the District and United States Supreme Court bars, he was a member of the Baronial Order of Runsymede and a past master of St. John's Lodge No. 11 of Masons.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Anna T. Thomas; a daughter, Mrs. Ludwell Lincoln, of Waco, Texas, and two grandchildren, Ludwell Lincoln, jr., and Mary Viola Lincoln, of Waco. A sister, Mrs. F. O. Hamel, of Beverley Hill, Calif., also survives.

Pacific Unit Chief Rear Adm. Fischler Dies;

San Diego, Calif., July 14 (U.P.).—Rear Admiral Peter Kalsch Fischler, 55, commander of the amphibious forces of the Pacific Fleet, died at Naval Hospital here today.

Fischler had been confined to the hospital for six weeks.

He was a veteran of both World Wars, serving as Commander of Battleship Division Five during 1943 and as Commander of the Battle Cruiser Alaska in 1944.

Fischler was ordered here in 1947 as commander of the Amphibious training command and was promoted to Commander of the Pacific Fleet Amphibious Force in January, 1950.

He was a native of Wellsboro, Pa., and is survived by his wife, the former Rachel E. Moore, also of Wellsboro, and three daughters, Mrs. Louis Frances Dieffenbacher, Mrs. Betty Jane Mattox, and Patricia Ann Fischler.

Funeral arrangements were to be announced later.

Mrs. Bowen Is eDad; Sons Known in Boxing

Funeral services will be held at 11:30 a. m. Monday for Mrs. Mary Catherine Bowen, 80, of 14 4th st. ne., mother of the District's "Boxing Bowens."

Mrs. Bowen

After services at Chambers Funeral Home, 517 11th st. se., burial will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery. Mrs. Bowen died Thursday at Homeopathic Hospital following a brief illness. She was a native of Wales and had lived in the District for 25 years. Several of her sons boxed professionally here. One, Ray, is now a boxing referee. Another, Andy, who died several months ago, won the most prominence in the ring.

Mrs. Bowen is survived by four other sons, William, George, Edwin and John; a daughter, Mrs. Daisy Lockhard; two brothers, William J. and John J. Hughes; a sister, Mrs. George Ebert, and 12 grandchildren and seven great grandchildren.

Mrs. Lucy Summers, 80, Dies at Her Home

Mrs. Lucy Clagett Summers, 80, of 6606 Cockerille ave., Takoma Park, Md., died yesterday morning at her home.

She was the widow of the late Morry G. Summers. Born in Upper Marlboro, Md., Mrs. Summers was the daughter of the late Mary Clagett Chesley and Daniel Sprigg Chesley.

She is survived by two nieces, Mrs. Austin Main, of the Cockerille ave. address, with whom she made her home, and Mrs. Frank Rodriguez, also of Takoma Park, and a nephew, D. Sprigg Chesley, of Frederick, Md.

Funeral services will be held Sunday at 2:30 p. m. in the Mt. Olivet Cemetery chapel at Frederick, Md., with burial there.

D. C. Jeweler To Be Buried On Sunday

Jacque Heidenheimer, 67, president of E. Heidenheimer, Inc., Jewelers, died Thursday at Georgetown University Hospital following a three-month illness.

Mr. Heidenheimer lived at 1740 Lanier pl. nw. He had been president of the jewelry firm for the last eight years.

He was a lifelong Washington resident. He attended Rockville Academy here. He was a member of the Washington Numismatic Society and the American Numismatic Association as well as the Washington Elks Lodge. Mr. Heidenheimer was a past Great Sachem of the Improved Order of the Red Men here and a member of the Samuel Gompers Masonic Lodge.

He also was a member of the Washington Hebrew Congregation.

He was a bachelor and is survived by several cousins and nephews.

Funeral services will be held at Gawler's Funeral Home, 1756 Pennsylvania ave. nw., Sunday at noon. Burial will be in the Washington Hebrew Congregational Cemetery.

Harold G. McCoy Dies; Ex-Capital Newsman

Philadelphia, July 14 (AP).—Harold G. McCoy, 60, vice president of Lewis & Gilman, Inc., advertising and public relations agency, and a veteran newsman, died last night at his home in suburban Malvern.

A native of Cortland, N. Y., he formerly was on the news staffs of the Watertown Daily Times, Albany Knickerbocker Press, International News Service, New York Herald and Evening Telegram, The Washington Post and during the presidency of Herbert Hoover was on the White House staff of the New York Times.

He joined the firm of N. W. Ayer & Son in 1930, and went with Lewis & Gilman, advertising and public relations agency, when that firm was founded in 1942.

Miss Apple Is Dead; Was Hood Librarian

Frederick, Md., July 14 (AP).—Miss Miriam R. Apple, 56, daughter of a founder and for 36 years librarian at Hood College, died of a cerebral hemorrhage at Frederick Memorial Hospital today.

She was the daughter of the late Dr. Joseph Henry Apple, founder and first president of Hood College. She graduated from the school in 1914 and immediately became college librarian.

Active in many community affairs, she was a past president of the Maryland Librarians Association, the Hood College Alumnae, and the Frederick County Chapter of the American Association of University Women.

Phi Mu Fellowships To Be Continued

Continuation of international fellowships, under which women students from formerly occupied countries are brought to American universities for graduate study, was one of the projects voted at the national convention of Phi Mu sorority, held in Spring Lake, N. J.

Another national project which will be continued is toy carts in children's wards of hospitals.

Attending the convention from this section were Miss Joan Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George G. Taylor of Kensington, Md., delegate from the Phi Mu chapter at Middlebury College, Middlebury, Vt., and Miss Florence Chandler of Arlington, Va., delegate from the Phi Mu chapter at the University of New Hampshire.

Summer Cooler

Iced Coffee Fills the Bill For Summer

The real coffee drinker is no fair weather friend. In heat waves or cold spells, he relies on his favorite beverage for refreshment. If there are coffee fans in your family, give them their summer coolers the way they like them best. And to give them an extra fillip, try some of these iced coffee suggestions.

Do-Ahead Iced Coffee

Make hot coffee, regular strength, using 2 tablespoons coffee to each ¾ cup water. Cool in glass or china container for not more than 3 hours, or, if tightly covered, chill in refrigerator. Serve in tall glasses with ice, adding sugar, or white corn syrup, and cream to taste.

Coffee Eggnog

Combine 1 beaten egg, 1 tablespoon sugar or honey, dash salt, ½ cup cold milk, ½ cup chilled strong coffee; top with whipped cream. Makes 1 tall glass.

Iced Mocha

Combine ¾ cup chilled strong coffee, 2 tablespoons chocolate syrup, 2 tablespoons whipped cream or vanilla ice cream. Top with whipped cream. Makes 1 tall glass.

Jiffy Cafe Au Lait

In a tall glass, dissolve 1 teaspoon instant, or soluble coffee in 2 tablespoon hot water. Fill glass with cold milk. Add 1 ice cube, and top with whipped cream.

Cinnamon Whipped Cream

To ½ cup heavy cream, add 1 teaspoon sugar and ½ teaspoon cinnamon. Beat until stiff. Use to top iced coffee.

Angostura Cubes for Iced Coffee

Combine 1 teaspoon Angostura bitters and 3 cups cold water. Pour into ice-cube tray, and freeze. Use to chill warm, double strength coffee. Enough cubes for 6 tall glasses.

Sorority Installs Honorary Member

Mrs. John M. Safer was installed as a national honorary member of Phi Sigma Sigma Sorority at its twenty-fifth national convention at Bedford Springs, Pa. Mrs. Safer was the fourth national honorary member ever to be installed in Phi Sigma Sigma, and the first to be initiated at a national convention.

Among the members attending from this area were Mrs. David F. Linowes, Southern division adviser; Miss Harriet Schwartz, Washington Alumnae Club; Lorraine Salzberg, Nadia Messing and Joan Gans from George Washington University, and Abby Phillips from the University of Maryland.

The honor was accorded Mrs. Safer because of her work as a patroness of Kappa Chapter at George Washington University for over 25 years.

REFRESHING tomato aspic can be served in many ways. Here it is teamed up with shrimp and cress, avocado and cottage cheese, and asparagus and chicory on three different plates

Tomato Aspic Has Lots of Zip When Made With Spicy Sauce

By Lucia Brown

ASPIC is interesting! It's one jellied dish that has zip and spice when it's made right. And it lends itself to so many combinations and variations.

A recipe for colorful tomato aspic made with tomato sauce and tomato juice has been worked out by Miss Katherine Smith, home economics director for the National Canners Association here. Spiked with onion, this salad is also seasoned the easy way by the sauce.

Serve this aspic often with its many variations—a different salad green, a different mold, or a different food combined with the shimmering, refreshing tomato aspic.

TOMATO ASPIC SALAD

1 tablespoon (1 envelope) unflavored gelatin
¼ cup water
1 cup tomato juice
1 8-ounce can tomato sauce
1 teaspoon grated onion
1 teaspoon sugar

Soften gelatin in water five minutes. Dissolve over boiling water. Add tomato sauce and juice. Mix well. Add onion and sugar. Pour into square shallow pan, individual ring molds, or six individual custard cups. Chill until firm. This makes six servings.

Here are some interesting suggestions from Miss Smith for molding and serving aspic:

Asparagus-Aspic Salad Plate: Cut tomato aspic into six oblong pieces, place on crisp chicory arranged on individual salad plates. Place chilled drained canned asparagus on plate. Serve with mayonnaise, French or Roquefort dressing.

Aspic Ring with Cottage Cheese and Avocado: Turn tomato aspic rings out on lettuce leaves placed on individual salad plates. Fill center of rings with cottage cheese. Arrange slices of avocado on salad plates. Serve with French dressing.

Shrimp Tomato Aspic: Arrange crisp watercress on individual salad plates. Turn out aspic and arrange canned shrimp on salad plate. Serve with French dressing.

Your Figure, Madame

Eat Abundantly, But Shed Pounds

By Ida Jean Kain

MOST overweights are heartily in accord with reducing diets, in theory . . . if not in practice. A choice plan described in the British Medical Journal makes the practice easier. To begin with, the diet starts out with these encouraging words . . . Eat as much as you like of these:

Lean meat, poultry, liver, heart, cooked in any way, but without addition of flour, breadcrumbs or thick sauces. (Note this even allows for frying. Use a minimum of fat.)

Fish, fresh or frozen but not canned in oil—broiled. No thick sauce.

Eggs, boiled or poached only.

Potatoes, boiled, steamed or baked in skins; not fried, French fried or roasted.

Fats Are Restricted

VEGETABLES of all kinds, fresh, canned or frozen, cooked in any way not involving the use of fat.

Salads and tomatoes without oil or mayonnaise.

Fresh fruit of any kind, including bananas. Also water-packed canned fruits. No fruits, canned or frozen, packed with sugar; no dried fruits, dates, figs, or raisins.

Sour pickles, but not sweet pickles.

Salt, pepper, mustard, vinegar, Worcestershire sauce—No other sauces.

Saccharin for sweetening.

Water and carbonated water. No sweet drinks. Tea and coffee (milk only as allowed below).

You may have fresh milk up to half a pint daily. No cream. Dietitian's note: Or a whole pint of skim milk or buttermilk for same calories.

You may have three thin slices of bread per day.

What You Can't Have

YOU MAY have nothing else whatever. Particularly note that this means:

No butter, margarine, fat or oil except for cooking meat, not fish.

No sugar, jam, marmalade, honey, sweets, chocolate, cocoa.

No puddings, ice cream, canned fruits (except water-packed) or nuts.

No bread (except as above); no cake, biscuits, toast, patent reducing breads, cereals or oatmeal.

No barley, rice, macaroni, spaghetti.

Weigh before you begin, and thereafter weekly, on the same scales, in the same clothes, and at the same time of day.

For those who do not want to follow a set diet, this is an excellent diet plan. Follow the rules and you can lose from 15 to 35 pounds in 12 weeks, depending on the total amount of excess. This dietitian would advise that the diet be reinforced with a multiple vitamin concentrate daily to insure sufficient vitamins.

Winter Coats Won't Be Left In the Closet

New York, July 15 (AP).—This winter American women are going to be sitting around in their coats, because they are too beautiful to be hidden in the checkroom.

Phill Mangone, the old master tailor, outdoes even his own distinguished record this season with a collection of coats and suits of such handsome fabrics and skillful cut that visiting fashion editors sat on the edge of their chair at his fall preview and visibly drooled.

Most spectacular of the coats are in bulky imported fabrics, often two-faced, used in dashing greatcoats of loose and ample cut that look as if they were designed to be worn in a blizzard. One such is a dramatic coat of almost circular cut, in an imported double-woven fabric that is gray fleece on the outside, red-and-gray bold plaid inside. The coat is made with the plaid side out on the collar and on the huge buttonback double cuffs.

Mangone also uses the season's pet doormat fabric for a number of greatcoats, and shows a series of town coats in dark woolens completely lined in nutria or mink.

His suits accent the nipped waistline and rounded hip that is typical of the new silhouette.

Winding up the crowded week of fashion previews was the showing of Cecil Chapman, famous for frothy dance dresses for the younger set. This fall Miss Chapman goes all out for billowing skiras of nylon net topped by strapless bodices of taffeta or satin cut as low as the law allows and further spiced by petal effects about the bosom.

For less formal wear she likes short strapless taffeta sheaths in ash blonde, black or white taffeta, draped to dramatize the figure, with cover-up boleros.

Jobe Says...

Strapless Bra Becomes a 'Must'

At first, the wired strapless bra was considered only an adjunct to a bare top evening or sun dress. But since women have found out how comfortable it is to get rid of tight shoulder straps, they are beginning to wear their strapless bras for everything—even when there is no question of straps showing.

So, the makers of brassieres have been constantly striving to perfect their cut and fit and they are now pretty close to perfection.

This is true too in long-line strapless bras for women's sizes, and women are taking to them like ducks to water. For the woman of fuller figure usually has a beautiful neck and shoulders so why shouldn't she show them to best advantage!

Celebrities, Celebrations Blend

By Elizabeth Maguire

WASHINGTON'S debutantes bloom in season, and all the fuss comes at one time. Celebrities, on the other hand bloom unannounced on arrival and departure. And there are some like the Vice President and Mrs. Barkley who bloom all year.

Celebrities and a celebration yesterday broke Washington's mid-July quiet. A national holiday was celebrated, the Barkleys dined out, and Pakistan's finance minister was feted.

Ghulam Mohammed, Finance Minister of Pakistan, arrived in town earlier in the week for the signing of papers admitting Pakistan into membership in the International Monetary Fund and the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development. He was honored yesterday at a luncheon given by Eugene Black, president of the World Bank, at the bank's official dining room.

Reception Held At the Embassy

LATER in the day a reception was held at the Pakistan Embassy by the Ambassador and Mme. Ispahani, from 6 to 8, in celebration of Pakistan's new membership. The Ambassador and his wife were assisted in receiving by Minister Mohammed.

Representatives from the Fund and Bank, the State Department and residential Washington made up the guest list. Members of the Fund invited included Mr. and Mrs. Jean de l'Argentaye, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Beyen, Zaki Bey Saad, Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Southard, Mrs. Mary Southard, Jean C. Godeaux, Mr. and Mrs. Mihailo Kolovic, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Coe.

From the Bank came Mr. and Mrs. Fernando Schwald, Sir Ernest and Lady Rowe-Dutton, Mr. and Mrs. B. K. Nehru, Mr. and Mrs. Esteban Carbo, Dr. and Mrs. Antonin Basch, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. B. Iliff, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ruchinski and Morton Mendek.

State Department Also Represented

TREASURY and State Department guests included the Assistant Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs John S. Graham, Mr. and Mrs. William Parsons and Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Willard Thorp. Norris E. Dodd, chairman of FAO, was also a guest. Chiefs of missions of Near Eastern countries and residential Washington completed the list.

French Salute Bastille Anniversary

FRENCH citizens 'round the world celebrated their national holiday yesterday. It was Bastille Day, the day which saw the fall of the French prison and the start of the French Revolution, July 14, 1789.

In Paris, sidewalk cafes did a booming business and there was dancing in the streets. Here in Washington the day was celebrated at a reception held by the French Ambassador, Henri Bonnet, at the chancery, 2535 Belmont rd. All members of the French colony in Washington were invited.

In other years the reception on Bastille Day has been held at the Embassy. It was moved to the chancery this year because Mme. Bonnet sailed for France last week to spend the remainder of the summer.

Ireland's Envoy Gives Stag Lunch

THE AMBASSADOR of Ireland, John Joseph Hearne, was host Thursday at a stag luncheon at the embassy. Honor guests were Col. Harold E. Kehm, USA, new Military Attache to the United States Embassy in Ireland, and Paul Miller, who is going to Ireland to head the ECA mission there. Other guests were Henry R. Labouisse, Wayne G. Jackson, and F. Garner Ranney of the State Department; Edward Dickenson and Harry Clements of ECA, and Hugh J. McCann and Joseph D. Brennan, counselors of the Irish Embassy.

Miss Brooke Stiefel and Miss Mary Anna Brooke gave a luncheon at the Shoreham Hotel Thursday for Miss Madge Smith of Mount Airy, Upper Marlboro, bride-elect of Thomas Ballard Yewell of Miami Beach, Fla. The wedding is to take place July 22.

Luncheon guests were Mrs. Taylor Yewell of Miami, mother of the bridegroom; Mrs. Edward J. Smith of Upper Marlboro, mother of the bride; Miss Caroline Owings of York, Pa.; Miss Joanne Ryan of New Jersey, and Mrs. Charles Stiefel, Mrs. William Brooke, Mrs. Robert Lee Hall, jr., Mrs. Bowie Hall, Miss Josephine Hall, Miss Frances Smith, Mss Stuart Smith, Miss Leslie Anne Smith and Miss Patricia Summers, all of Upper Marlboro.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris Cafritz entertained last evening at a small dinner for the Vice President and Mrs. Alben Barkley. Guests, numbering 26, were seated on the terrace. The dinner was black tie, with swimming beforehand.

Following the concert at the Watergate last evening the Belgian Ambassador, Baron Robert Silvercruys, gave a supper party at the embassy in honor of Fernand Quinet, guest conductor of the evening and Belgium's most famous composer and conductor. Gladys Swarthout, who sang at concert, was among the supper guests.

NO, SIR! There's nothing like a dip in the ol' swimming hole in the summertime. Mrs. Blake Clark holds on to her little daughter, Nikia, who manages to try a few strokes with the extra aid of waterwings. The "ol' swiming hole" in this case is the Wardman Park pool. The Clarks plan to spend most of the summer in Washington

Oklahoma Will Tee Off With a Big Picnic Today

By Nicha Soure

IT'S picnicking time with the State Societies in the Nation's Capital. Oklahoma will tee off with a picnic today and Massachusetts will follow close at her heels with a picnic on Sunday.

The Oklahomans are going "far" from home for their get-together. They will meet at Saunders Point, Md., 27 miles from Washington on Chesapeake Bay. All the Oklahomans in Washington and nearby Maryland and Virginia are invited to attend the picnic today.

The picnic will be potluck. Miss Lillie Lemon, Metropolitan 2329 is chairman of the food committee.

Don't bother with your car, the society advises. Arrangements are being made with Capital Transit Co. for chartered buses to leave at 2 p. m. Jack Leach, National 3120, extension 843, is in charge of transportation.

After the picnic supper there will be dancing in the club house to McClennan's Famous One-Man Band.

For further information call the president, Miss Maurine Abernathy, at Tuckerman 3600, extension 508.

THE Massachusetts Society of Washington is holding its second picnic this summer on Sunday. They will meet at 1 p. m. at Grove 23, Rock Creek Park.

The program committee, chairmaned by Walter Stevens, has arranged sporting events for the get-together, including volley ball, softball, horseshoes and other attractions for those athletically inclined.

Store Manager Honored . . .

The Washington Post

TRIBUTE—Morris Moss (left), Hecht Co. store manager, accepts a silver service from Charles B. Dulcan, sr., vice president and general manager, during ceremonies marking his twenty-fifth anniversary with the organization. Moss was also presented a testimonial scroll bearing the signatures of over 3000 of his associates

Morris Moss, store manager of The Hecht Co. in Washington, was feted yesterday by associates for his completion of 25 years' service with the department store.

A testimonial scroll, bearing the signatures of more than 3000 associates, was presented to him during a meeting of 200 store executives. He was also given a silver flatware service by the store.

Joining The Hecht Co. in 1925 as secretary to the vice president and general manager, he later became supervisor of adjustments and then assistant store manager in charge of all store services. He was made store manager in 1944.

Moss lives with his wife and three children at 5501 Utah ave. nw. He and Mrs. Moss were guests of honor last night at a dinner-dance, given by store executives at the Shoreham Hotel.

Md. Trooper Killed by Angry Farmer

Hagerstown, Md., July 14 (AP).—A Maryland State trooper was shot and killed today by a former vaudeville strong man who was mad because the city condemned his property to widen a street.

Steve Oris, about 60 and a garden farmer on the edge of town since he retired from the stage, shot Trooper Lauren M. Ridge when the officer tried to arrest him.

Oris then barricaded himself in his concrete-block house and exchanged shots with about 20 city and State policemen for half an hour. Tear gas finally drove him out and three police slugs through his head and neck wounded him critically.

Trooper Ridge drove out to Oris' place alone after two county tax assessors complained that the old gardener had fired at them.

The two assessors, Claude Artz and Kenneth Sinn, said they noticed Oris standing by the road with a deer rifle in his hand when they drove by today. When Artz, who knew Oris, shouted that he had "better put that thing away," Oris fired six bullets through the car window.

The assessors, who were both cut by glass, said they saw Ridge take the rifle from Oris. Then suddenly Oris whipped out a revolver and shot the trooper in the stomach five times.

Ridge, a 28-year-old former Army Air Corps pilot, was rushed to the Washington County Hospital here, where his wife, Alice, is an assistant supervisor.

She was in another part of the building when he was brought in and he died before she got to him. They have an 18-month-old son.

Oris also was taken to Washington County Hospital.

Neighbors said Oris had been in foul humor since a strip of his property was condemned for the widening of Northern avenue.

Society Girl, Howard Grad To Wed Today

New York, July 14 (AP).—Anne Mather, 30-year-old Boston society girl, will be married Saturday to Frank Curle Montero, Urban League fund director, the parents of the bride announced today.

On the marriage license application, Montero gave his age as 40 and his color was listed as "brown." Miss Mather was listed as white.

The New York Daily News said in a copyrighted story that Montero and Miss Mather were brought together by "their common interest in combatting racial discrimination."

The bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Philip R. Mather, came here last night to attend the private ceremony at the Bridgehampton, Long Island, home of Mrs. Charles F. Brush, jr.

The ceremony will be performed by the Rev. James H. Robinson, a Negro pastor. The best man will be Justice Hubert T. Delaney of the New York Domestic Relations Court, also a Negro.

Miss Mather is a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Smith College in 1942 and worked for several years with the Urban League of Greater New York, a social welfare group aiming to improving living conditions of Negroes and Puerto Ricans.

Miss Mather now is attending graduate school at Columbia University, studying economics.

The bride's father has extensive steel and real estate interests. He retired last March as president of the National Health Council. The Mathers moved to Boston 13 years ago from Cleveland.

Montero, born in Brooklyn, is a graduate of Howard University, Washington, D. C., and the Columbia University School of Social Work.

The Monteros will make their home in New York after a wedding trip.

A Dynamo With a Lazy Hum—That's Godfrey

By Jack O'Brian

(Seventh of a Series.)

You won't catch any rings on Arthur Godfrey's merry-go-round, because there's no time to reach for one.

Typical Arthur Godfrey Monday: Up at nine shower, shave, dress, breakfast, amble casually downstairs as if the whole day ahead was as empty as a Molotov promise.

Hop into a cab, to the Columbia Broadcasting System's studio on East 52d st. for his morning radio show starting at 10:15, ending at 11:30. To the Godfrey office in the CBS Building at 485 Madison ave. where photographers wait to take pictures for the advertising agency representing one of his sponsors.

This is no hapless procedure but a normally grim job of posing prettily while perfectly still. Not Godfrey, though.

Sandwiches and coffee are wheeled in and he eats lunch while photographer sets up a tangled mess of equipment, none of which bothers Arthur.

While the flashbulb Rembrandt aims and squints, gauging light and distance, the Redhead munches away, talking to Washington, talking across the street, across the room, across his desk, managing somehow never to get upset as he administers the one-man mint that meant 10 million dollars, a year to CBS, and a smart one million dollars a year to himself.

You'd never know, this Monday noontime, as Godfrey with seeming laziness pulls the telephone strings that turn his solo industry into a profitably excavated gold mine, that at the ends of the phone wires, like delighted puppets, dangle a staff of loyal, admiring underlings.

He picks up the phone and calls Mug Richardson—"My good right arm"—whose office, overseeing all of Godfrey's myriad interests, is across the street in the CBS studio building at 49 E 52d st., high above the basement studio from which Godfrey makes his network radio pitch each morning.

Busy as Bees

As Godfrey jiggles the telephone strings to Mug, she in turn moves wires which keep an even dozen other Godfrey employes bustling away happily in that preserve.

Godfrey's private secretary Phyllis Benson, steers all unnecessary calls away from him so that he isn't bothered. She feeds some to Mug, some to Larry Puck, general manager of the office which handles nothing else but auditions for "Arthur Godfrey's Talent Scouts," his Monday evening TV show.

In that office are Esther Stoll, supervisor of all auditions; Sylvia Davis, accompanist, and three secretaries busy full time opening, answering letters and summoning likely Talent Scouts' prospects.

Dangling elsewhere, are two girls in the CBS mail room opening Godfrey fan missives, and another girl in the Washington CBS office.

Musician at Work

In the CBS music department Godfrey's musical conductor, composer, arranger and good friend, Archie Bleyer, is slaving over the week's musical plans, not nearly as casual a preparation for everyone else as they seem for King Arthur of the Air Waves.

Bleyer's six musicians, familiar to Godfrey's 40 million listeners weekly, by now have taken on separate characters of their own on the various shows.

They bear the brunt of Arthur's cheerful jibes, and they love it, love their jobs, and think Godfrey is the dream boss of all time. The Chordettes, a quartet of feminine barber shop singers, are elsewhere, practicing for the night's telecast. The Mariners, a male quartet, ditto. Same for Janette Davis, the girl singer, and Bill Lawrence, the latest threat to Sinatra and Vic Damone; the latter, incidentally, is a graduate of "Arthur Godfrey's Talent Scouts."

TAKES TIME OUT—Even with his whirling dervish work program Arthur Godfrey finds time to help out on one of his favorite projects, the Institute for the Crippled and Disabled in New York. Here he inspects the silver jewelry made by one of the students

Don't Forget the Pipe

Amid all this well spread, well-paid activity, Godfrey kept up his constant tussle with the telephone. Until a tall young man arrived, obviously a young advertising agency executive. Arthur pointed out, by the cut of his clothes, now virtually a Madison ave. uniform: Brooks Brothers' suit, Brooks' polo shirt with rolling, buttoned-down collar; loosely tied knitted cravat, argyle socks, stout scotch-grain brogues.

"And a pipe," Arthur pointed out.

Off we ambled with the harried young huckster to Twentieth Century Fox Films where Godfrey was to make a movie short. This took a quick hour, virtually a fleeting moment in the everyday schedules of movie men, accustomed as they are to causing a scene to unfold at the rate of a couple of minutes a day—when they're exceptionally speedy. With Godfrey, deceptively like molasses in Nome, they ambled through the celluloid sequence with almost days to spare.

Back into a limousine again to be sped the few blocks to CBS Studio 3 to look in on a dress rehearsal of that night's TV "Talent Scouts."

Everything ship-shape, and since he never rehearses with the guests on the show anyway—it could be said almost as a general rule that Godfrey doesn't rehearse with anyone, any time—he ambled out the stage door, east a few feet to CBS Playhouse 52 where that night he was to appear on "The Parade of Stars," a seasonal one-shot television show for a sponsor who makes hot weather confections.

Speaks at Graduation

That was even more of a walk-through than his most casual rehearsals of regular shows, and for which he was to be paid a sum rumored in the trade as $10,000.

"Why should he bother for less, a man with all that talent," Leo Lindy asked me.

At 4 p. m., Godfrey eased away from the one-shot rehearsal and into the car again, this time to be taken to 400 1st ave. for the graduation exercises at the Institute for the Crippled and Disabled, where he was the principal speaker, and, naturally, a whole show by himself.

Arthur spent more time with the youngsters of the institute than he spent on any one of his Monday projects, and did not even hint at breaking away until the exercises were completely finished.

A great gap in the Godfrey program thereupon loomed — 45 minutes!

Into the car again, across town to Arthur's two-room penthouse atop the Lexington Hotel for a shower, change of clothing from the skin out, and another on-the-run lunch.

Dinner traditionally comes last on Godfrey's agenda. Somehow, he even found time to lie down for 15 minutes, close his eyes and, from some strange filling station, extract another shot of the limitless energy he seems able to extract whenever needed.

The trip back to the studio for his evening telecasts aren't nearly so last-minute now as they used to be. Last Christmas season Godfrey was taking his usual dawdling good time about getting to the show and became entangled in the sort of traffic jam that only descends upon Madison and Fifth aves. at the holiday season.

Nearest he could get to the studio was several blocks away and he arrived at that point 10 minutes after the show had begun. This time Godfrey really hustled. As he sped on foot past the marquee of the theater where his telecast originates, he heard a man say to his companion.

'Is That Arthur?'

"Why, there's Arthur Godfrey!" "You're daffy! Godfrey's inside. That must be his double," the other man said.

The 10 minutes Godfrey missed didn't enrage the sponsor—as nothing seems to, so long as sales figures continue their properly high average—and Arthur thought nothing more of it, except to get a big kick out of the man on the street who believed perhaps he had a double around loose.

The Monday night I hitch-hiked along with Godfrey went by with the speed of a good time. He did the 15-minute one-shot show in what seemed a good time for the 100-yard dash, ambled out and back to his own studio for "Talent Scouts," meandered through that show with all the seeming aplomb of a tired vacationing Southerner, and at 9 p. m. eluded his assorted assistants by easing back into his limousine and driving off to dinner at the Club Room of the Stork Club.

At the Stork, he eased into a seat at Table 50, always occupied by VIPs, whether of the entertainment, political, newspaper, business or social world.

Waiting, were Godfrey's good friend, Morton Downey; another amiable pal, Steve Hannagan, the publicity genius, and Sherman Billingsley, owner of the Stork.

This quartet also runs a perfume concern, Sortilege, of which Billingsley is the biggest single customer, buying an amazing number of bottles of every size for giving-away purposes; the other night I saw him give a 120-ounce bottle—looked like a barrel—to the wife of one of his best customers, a radio producer.

Relaxed for a Moment

That was the only period of the Godfrey Monday wherein it could be said Arthur actually, totally, was relaxed.

About now is a good enough time to disperse one good-natured fallacy about Arthur Godfrey. In his younger days, the Redhead was a fast man with a tankard. But in recent years he simply hasn't been able to combine his talents for radio and TV with two-fisted, serious drinking.

Somehow, because of his almost complete lack of the usual formalities on his shows, the manner in which he says the first amusing thing that pops into his busy red head, and the wonderful pliability of his features, many onlookers have come to think he must be a wee bit woofled on occasion. But—take a first-hand authority on the matter: He's not! Although I can see why some folks think he's a mite tight.

The other Wednesday telecast I watched him start the show after fixing his sock while sitting on a piece of the scenery. As the show started, he finished pulling up the sock, looked impishly through the camera at his many millions of fans, and began the program with some utterly irrelevant remark.

All over the TV landscape his fans already were laughing. I know I was. Normally, and especially on radio, anyone else would have to be slightly fried to ease into a show in that off-hand fashion. But not on a Godfrey show; THAT was virtually a sedate beginning.

Tomorrow: Arthur Godfrey the aviator.

'Sing It Again' to Do Radio, TV at Once

By C. E. Butterfield

NEW YORK (AP).—When 'Sing It Again,' CBS giveaway, adds television it will do it differently than the competitive Stop the Music of ABC. That program has separate versions, radio Sunday nights and TV Thursday nights.

Ken Murray

Sing It will go on both mediums simultaneously, retaining its present Saturday night schedule. The switchover is scheduled for early in the fall upon the return of the Ken Murray TV show, which is to retain 8 to 9. The new Frank Sinatra program is being projected for the next hour, with Sing It to follow.

With CBS deciding to stick to variety entertainment on Saturday nights, Dumont will be the video network to carry a series of 26 weekend sport and other events from Madison Square Garden. CBS originally had an option on this schedule.

Starting off October 7 with the rodeo, the Garden pickups will include nine nights of college basketball, three of professional basketball and the spring tournaments. Other events are track meets and a horse show, the season to close March 30.

To make way for these items Dumont will shift its Cavalcade of Stars variety hour to Friday nights on September 8 and make other changes later, including delay of Chicago wrestling until after the Garden shows.

The amount paid for the rights is reported to be something under $125,000.

SECRETARY of State Acheson, speaking at Chicago on "Korea and the World Situation," has been scheduled for CBS broadcast next Tuesday afternoon.

NBC, which since the lifting of its ban against recorded or transcribed programs has refrained from going in for straight record or disk jockey type programs although carrying them on its local stations, has let down a bit on that too. It has had a tryout presentation of the Wayne Howell Show, heretofore heard locally only. Howell comments and plays records, a la disk jockey.

ED WYNN, who went into television on CBS for the first time last season, will move over to NBC in the fall.

That returns him to the network where he established himself as "radio's fire chief" back in the 1930's.

Wynn has been signed to make 11 appearances, one each month, on an exclusive basis. Details are to be worked out, including whether he will join in the Fred Allen-Eddie Cantor TV series previously announced for a fall start. Wynn concluded his sponsored run on CBS last week.

Groucho Marx, whose transfer to NBC radio from CBS becomes effective in the fall, also is scheduled for NBC television for the same sponsor. The telecasts are to be made in Hollywood by the motion picture process rather than by kinescope recording. Starting date is early in October.

Meantime Marx will have his introduction to TV via CBS Monday night as guest of the weekly Parade of Stars.

ROBERT Q. Lewis, summer replacement expert for CBS as a humorist with a flair for MC-ing, again is ready to go full tilt.

He makes the first addition to his increasing schedule by taking on a 15-minute telecast tonight for the sponsor who has just concluded with Faye Emerson.

On July 31 he again will be sub in Arthur Godfrey's morning radio show as he did last summer. He will be around for eight weeks.

WISHING WELL—

Senate Unit Rejects Choice Of Truman for Georgia Bench

A Senate Judiciary subcommittee yesterday voted against confirmation of M. Neil Andrews to the U. S. judge for north Georgia. He now is serving under a recess appointment.

The subcommittee's unfavorable vote is subject to full committee action—possibly Monday—but it is unusual for a committee not to follow the unanimous recommendation of one of its subcommittees.

Similarly, it would be a departure from tradition for the Senate to confirm a nominee opposed by the Senators from the State involved and who are members of the same political party as the President.

Senators Russell and George of Georgia told the subcommittee they opposed Andrews because the Constitution states that such nominations shall be made with the advice and consent of the Senate. In this case, they said, their advice and consent was not sought.

They said they had nothing against Andrews personally or professionally. Russell and George had recommended Boyd Sloan, a former Superior Court judge, for the post.

Russell and Andrews have been friends. Russell did not mention this in his testimony, but he did say it was "an unpleasant duty" for him to oppose the nomination. He said that in recommending Sloan he had to choose among a number of friends.

Peyton Ford, assistant to the Attorney General, told the subcommittee at the end of the hearing that the Executive Department (the President and the agencies directly under him) "had not tried to assume the prerogatives of the Senate" in nominating Andrews, and that "it is unfortunate there was a misunderstanding."

Maybe California Gals Go to Sleep at 7:30

"Please don't use my name," writes J. W. W., "because I don't want anybody to know that I read such a stupid comic strip as Mary Worth. But the guy who draws it really went to sleep in last Sunday's sequence.

"He had Greg calling from New York at 10:30 p. m. and saying to his girl in California: 'With the difference in time, you've probably been snoozing for hours.'

"For his information, the girl wasn't just coming in from a nightclub at 1:30 a. m., because California is three hours earlier than New York, and not three hours later."

Well, for your information, sir, I also read that strip and didn't notice the discrepancy. But don't breathe it to a soul, because I don't want anybody to know that I am not smart enough to catch such stupid mistakes.

PET PEEVE

Some motorists seem to delight in pulling up into the crosswalk when they stop for a traffic light, thereby making it necessary for pedestrians to walk around them.

In rush hours, when large crowds congregate at intersections, it's mighty annoying. I wish there were a truthful basis for the oft-circulated story of the irate pedestrian who astonished one such motorist by opening the back door of his car, walking through, and emerging from the other side.

GIVE-AWAYS

"The Tail-Waggers Club says you can find a good home for my large Siberian spitz, male, born a year ago in Alaska." (Appleton 4831.)

"Ten-week-old kittens, raised outdoors." (Alexandria 3146.)

"Will deliver sleek, black 4-month-old kitten to suburban home." (Union 1421.)

"Five 4-month-old gentle, affectionate puppies." (Union 7021.)

"Housebroken male kitten, six weeks old." (Emerson 8628.)

"One-year-old calico cat; we're moving to England." (Wisconsin 5326.)

"Four gentle, housebroken kittens, 2 months old." (Georgia 5207.)

"Three sets of four duplicate bridge boards in good condition." (Silver Spring 0553.)

YEAH, YOU, TOO

Anent our recent item about policemen who have been warned not to use official cars for private purposes, E. L. Springer of 2957 Upton st. nw. writes:

"The warning ought to be extended to include vehicles owned by the Federal Government, which are sometimes used for such non-Governmental purposes as transporting people to and from Laurel Raceway."

It should be noted that some high Federal officials are furnished with cars they may legally use for all purposes, public and private. The President and Veep, for example. But they're the exception, rather than the rule.

PERSONAL NOTES

Marion H. Bluitt, 1264 Hamlin st. ne.: Your offer to trade a hamster for a horned toad intrigues me, but I can't include it in the Give-Aways. First thing you know, they'd turn into a swap column.

MISCEI LANY

New business from Maryland residential areas has boosted Pepco's power output to a healthy 8 percent above last year's figures . . . Mrs. Lester A. Smith of 1825 Ontario pl. nw. observes that Pete Dickerson's "giddiness just over the left hip pocket" needn't have been any greater than the pain he'd feel in any other New York restaurant of quality comparable to the Cordon Bleu. "And the meals at the Cordon Bleu can't be equalled elsewhere," she adds, obviously unaware of the consummate culinary skill of the married lady I live with. . . Mary Royse, for more than 5 years a resident of Louisiana Hall at Arlington Farms, says we're all invited to the big Farewell Party there on the 24th to mark the closing of the last Hall for civilian Government Girls. A reporter with a mind to could write a real tear-jerker about the ousting of those gals . . . Ruth Contract of 906 Gallatin st. nw. will vouch for the fact that people are nicer than anybody. She lost a wallet on a streetcar the other day, and gave it up for lost. But a little boy (unidentified) found it, turned it over to a policeman (also unidentified), and the policeman dropped it off at her home with not a penny missing . . . Tip to public course golfers: The beautiful Fairfax layout is seldom crowded on weekday afternoons . . . Mrs. John Kangas of 152 N. Columbus st., Arlington, Va., writes: "When Baukhage comes on the air, he starts by saying it's Baukhage talking and he'll be back in a minute to tell us what people are thinking about in Washington. Then we get a commercial about Surf. So I guess what people are thinking about in Washington is 'washing dirty linen.'".

KID STUFF

Three-year-old Sharilyn Bovey of 320 S. Tennessee ave., Martinsburg, W. Va., is just learning her letters and numbers.

ADD DEFINITIONS

Mary Ellen observes that "capsule wit is the kind you couldn't swallow in larger doses."

Sen. Thomas' Oklahoma Setback

By Drew Pearson

One of the most significant senatorial primaries took place in Oklahoma the other day, where, unlike in most Southern States, the race issue was not raised.

Thomas

In Florida, North Carolina, South Carolina, the chief issue was who opposed the Negro most. But in Oklahoma, young Congressman Mike Monroney, who voted against FEPC, refused to use the race issue against elderly Senator Elmer Thomas, who assured Negro leaders he was for FEPC. He led Thomas anyway, though Thomas got the Negro vote.

Even more important, Thomas had the powerful support of the big utilities, which poured money into Oklahoma. He also had the support of wealthy speculating friends in New York and Chicago, plus a Federal patronage machine which included every income-tax collector and district attorney Thomas had appointed during his quarter century in office.

Despite all this, and despite the fact that Monroney had little money to spend, he won a healthy lead over Thomas—though he's now facing a runoff.

What broke Thomas' quarter-century hold on the State, however, was that Oklahoma voters got wise to his speculating activities.

For years, Thomas had been using his favored position as a Senator and as chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee to get advance information about commodity prices which other taxpayers could not get, to influence prices which other taxpayers could not do, and to speculate in commodities for his own personal profit.

Record on Cotton

When this column revealed in 1946 that Thomas had been speculating on the cotton market through his wife, the Senator's reply was: "Pearson is a liar."

Two years later—January, 1948—an official report by the Agriculture Department showed Mrs. Thomas was "300 bales long" on cotton in July, 1946. Therefore, Senator Thomas suddenly reversed himself and decided to tell the truth.

"I have been on the long side of cotton for many years," he told the United Press. Then, apparently forgetting the "liar" charge and his previous efforts at concealment, he added: "My dealings are open and aboveboard. I have nothing to hide. From time to time I have turned money over to Dyke Cullum and asked him to invest in cotton for me."

Incidentally, the Agriculture Department's official report also showed that Thomas' broker, Dyke Cullum, was long 500 bales; that his campaign manager Marty Heflin, held 400 bales; that Ralph Moore, another speculating crony, was long 1900 bales; and that Miss Beth Gage, the Senator's secretary, was also in the market.

It has been shown above that the Senator's family and friends were "long" on cotton in 1946. They were holding for a further rise in price. But in October, 1946, instead of rising further, the cotton market broke, causing Mrs. Thomas to lose her contemplated profit of $12,000. Other Thomas speculators lost varying amounts.

"Bear Raid" Charged

Hit where it hurt most, his pocketbook, Thomas sent indignant telegrams to the heads of the cotton exchanges and the Secretary of Agriculture, claiming a "bear raid."

"There has been a definite and well-laid plan among cotton exchanges, cotton brokers and their clients," Thomas protested. And since he was chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, his word carried weight.

Thomas also threatened further legislation to control cotton prices. But in none of his indignant telegrams did he breathe the fact that his wife, his secretary, his campaign manager, and his own personal brokers had lost heavily in the break in the cotton market.

Actually there was no bear raid, nor anything else wrong with the cotton market, except that the price had soared too high and the Thomas group got caught.

Since then the Senator from Oklahoma has tried to tell farmers that he was only trying to keep their prices up. What he has not told them is that he also speculates on various other commodities—wheat, beans, eggs, even silver—and that sometimes he has worked just as hard to bring prices down.

In the fall of 1949, for instance, the Senator from Oklahoma wanted the price of eggs to drop. In fact, he wanted eggs to come down just as ardently as he had previously wanted the price of cotton to go up, while most farmers in Oklahoma who raise chickens want egg prices to stay up.

Dealings in Eggs

There was a good reason for Thomas' position on eggs, though he did not tell anyone in Oklahoma about it. His broker, Dyke Cullum, had bought 10 carloads of eggs—short. In brief, he was committed to deliver 10 carloads of eggs on the futures market, and if the price went down, the Senator and his broker made money.

So the Senator proceeded to bombard the Agriculture Department with letters and ideas for bringing down the price. He also wrote a letter to Senator Clinton Anderson of New Mexico, chairman of an agriculture subcommittee, asking him to investigate the price support of eggs.

At no place in his letter to Anderson did he intimate that he and his broker had a personal, pocketbook interest to the tune of 10 carloads of eggs. In brief, what the Senator was doing was using the investigative machinery of the United States Senate and his prestige as chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee to influence a commodity in which he had made a personal investment.

He knew, of course, that the mere announcement of an egg investigation by the Senate was likely to send down the price of eggs, following which he and Dyke Cullum could deliver their 10 carloads at a profit.

Note—The 10 carloads were purchased through the William Hagerty Grain Corp. in Chicago in the name of the National Commodity Corp., the concern which Dyke Cullum set up to cover his and Senator Thomas' speculations.
